RUMOR APPARENTLY UNTRUE

Fear That Cowboys May Do Something That Will Cause Trouble—Mexicans Stay Indoors.

Special to The New York Times.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 15.—The report from the border that Mexicans numbering nearly 400 are marching on Rock Springs, Texas, has created intense excitement there, and if it be true slaughter awaits the Mexicans when they reach Edwards County.

The statement was wired from Del Rio that a rousing meeting had been held at Las Vacas, Mexico, at which speakers advised action against the Texans for the burning of Antonio Rodriguez. A large body of Mexicans, it was added, crossed the border, and, gathering more of their countrymen on this side, started for Rock Springs.

The news spread through Edwards County and adjoining counties, and to-day ranchmen and cowboys from the cattle ranges poured into Rock Springs, all heavily armed and anxious to defend the town and citizens.

Within a radius of three miles of Rock Springs there are nearly 2,000 men prepared to meet an attack. In fact, Sheriff Pope wires to-night that he is having a hard time to keep the mounted cowboys from riding out into the country to meet the army which is said to be on its way to the town. The people are incensed, and it is feared that the cowboys will commit some overt action that will cause serious racial trouble.

The Mexicans in and about Rock Springs are very orderly, but acting on the advice of the officials, they are keeping off the streets until the excitement is over.

An offer on the part of Gov. Campbell to send a company of rangers to the town has been declined with thanks, together with the explanation that the town is full of real ranger rough riders, many of them having seen service with Col. Roosevelt in the Spanish-American War.

The cowboy leaders stated to-day that the lynching of Rodriguez was not a racial affair and that "the cowardly brute's nationality was not considered." In fact, many Mexicans, it is stated, took part in the burning and it was they who cried "Burn him!" when the others having the prisoner in charge contemplated hanging him.

A late report says that riders sent out in the direction from which the body of Mexicans is supposed to be approaching have not discovered any sign of the "army" or mob.

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 15.—A report is current here to-night that a race demonstration is to be made in Juarez, across the Rio Grande River from this city, by an element of Mexicans opposed to President Diaz, living on both sides of the border.

The Chief of Police of Juarez is preparing for trouble and has already sworn in a large number of special mounted deputies.

DEL RIO, Texas, Nov. 15.—Rumors that a body of armed Mexicans was marching on Rock Springs caused considerable uneasiness here to-day, although it is practically impossible for any such body to reach Rock Springs on account of the precautions that have been taken by Federal and State officers.

Del Rio and Las Vacas, the Mexican town opposite, in which Antonio Rodriguez lived, are quiet.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 15.—There is no truth in the report that armed Mexicans are marching on Rock Springs.

LAREDO, Texas, Nov. 15.—Everything is quiet along the border in the vicinity of Laredo, and there is no semblance of disorder, either anti-American or anti-Diaz.

Consul Diedbold states that in the event of a disturbance the Mexican Government is amply prepared to cope with the situation. The border is protected on the Mexican side by infantry and cavalry.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The State Department is waiting with serious interest for information from Anadarko, Okla., where, it is reported, an enraged mob of Americans is in pursuit of a Mexican named Oscar Opel, with the intention of lynching him if caught. Such an outrage, following the recent lynching in Texas, would make our relations with Mexico very difficult.

Meanwhile Mexico is doing everything to make it appear that she is in earnest in her efforts to give the United States every satisfaction for the outrages that have been perpetrated against Americans in Mexico. Already over half a hundred persons have been arrested for the rioting in the City of Mexico, and to-day, though it is against the law for a foreigner under arrest to communicate with his friends, the law was suspended by executive decree to allow Carol B. Carothers, under arrest for killing a Mexican boy in self-defense, to communicate freely with his friends and with the United States Consul at Guadalajara.

PLEASED BY OUR COURSE.

Mexican Ambassador Says His Country and America Are Observing Law.

Members of the Quill Club dined last night at the Hotel Manhattan and heard both the Mexican Ambassador and the Peruvian Minister give their views on Pan-American relations. Silas McBee, President of the club, introduced Don Francisco Leon de la Barra, the Mexican Ambassador, who said in part:

"In former times two nations could be plunged into the horrors of war by the simple caprice of a sovereign. To-day such a thing would be impossible; the people impose their will, and within proper bounds they are the arbiters of their destinies. And you, gentlemen, you who control this great moral force, so worthily represented in the Quill Club, in enlightening public opinion, and in directing it through the proper channels, even in those cases where it is driven by passion or wrath, you are the active and invaluable co-laborers in the work of modern diplomacy. Sound and good, that diplomacy which is founded on truth and justice, a diplomacy which zealously defends sacred interests of the fatherland and

SEVEN HURT IN TAXI CRASH.

Two Unconscious and May Die—Trolley Hit Cab in Harlem.

An automobile containing six men and the chauffeur, speeding west in 130th Street, was struck by a northbound Madison Avenue trolley car shortly after midnight this morning. The automobile was crushed to twisted wreckage and the six occupants were thrown into the street. Three are unconscious in the Harlem Hospital and may die. They are:

LARKIN, CHARLES, 214 East Eleventh Street.
STIVERS, GEORGE, living on West Twelfth Street.

The others, who were badly bruised but able to go home, were:

FLOCCO, THOMAS.
LEE, THOMAS, 214 East Eleventh Street.

The party was returning from the Fairmont Athletic Club, and had hired the automobile at the garage of John Collins, 1,491 Broadway. Larkin and Stivers sat in the front of the tonneau, just behind the chauffeur. As the car whizzed across Madison Avenue it was struck head-on by the trolley car in charge of William Erb of 1,525 Grover Street, Westchester. The crash was followed by an explosion that could be heard for blocks.

When Policeman Meenagh reached the scene about ten minutes later he found a crowd of more than 1,000 standing around the wreckage, beneath which still lay Buchanan, Stivers, and Larkin. The others, covered with cuts and bruises, were attended by an ambulance surgeon from the Harlem Hospital, but insisted on going home.

Every window in the trolley car was shattered and traffic was tied up for half an hour. The police were unable to ascertain who was to blame for the collision and no arrests were made.

RUNAWAY WIFE ARRESTED.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Mrs. Edna McDonald, wife of a wealthy resident of Tolchester, Conn., who disappeared from her home two months ago, was arrested here to-day. Herbert Elliott of Rochester, N. Y., was also arrested.

The McDonalds have six children, two girls and four boys. The eldest girl, Edna, is 18 years old. When Mrs. McDonald disappeared she took her daughter, Elizabeth, aged 15 years, and her youngest boy, Sidney, aged 2 years, with her. They were found by their father to-day in the house in this city, which their mother occupied with Elliott.

Although her husband and children pleaded with the woman to return home with them, she refused, and now occupies a cell in City Hall. Mr. McDonald says his wife's mind is affected, and that he will have a commission appointed to inquire into her sanity.

The runaway wife was living here in a style much more humble than she had been accustomed to at her home. Lack of means is said to have given the clue which led to her capture when she endeavored to withdraw money she had on deposit in a bank in Norwich, Conn.

GIRL OFF BY FREIGHT TRAIN.

Constance Farewell, daughter of Mrs. Constance Farewell, who runs a boarding house at Centre Avenue and Relyea Place, New Rochelle, has disappeared. The police of New Rochelle have notified the authorities of New York City, Westchester County, and Connecticut, but, though the girl has been gone two weeks, no trace of her has been found. Miss Farewell is 14 years old. She has wavy brown hair, brown eyes, and a good complexion.

Mrs. Farewell told Police Captain Edward J. Timmons that her daughter had been seen to climb into a freight car at the junction of the Harlem River branch and the main line of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad as the train slowed down on a switch. Later the girl's little brother admitted that he had seen her standing in the car as it passed their home, and that she had waved her hand to him.

COURT LAUGHS AT LETTER.

Man Accused of Fraud Said Concern Was Looking for Suckers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The trial of former United States Treasurer James N. Huston, Harvey M. Lewis, and Everett Du Four on charges of conspiracy in using the mails for purposes of fraud to-day brought out a highly amusing letter, at which the spectators, and even the court, laughed heartily.

It is charged that the defendants conspired to get money through the agency of the National Trust Company, of which they were officers. The prosecution introduced a letter purporting to have been written by Mr. Lewis as general manager of the trust company to the National Bond Company of Rochester, N. Y. It appears that the bonding house had been asked to enter into relations with the concern and had written to Mr. Lewis for some account of his company's past history. The reply follows:

> Replying to yours of the 6th inst. requesting brief history of our company, would say that our forefathers came over in the Mayflower and some time thereafter organized this company. It has been doing business since the year oompteln and has recently established a branch for the discovery of the number of suckers left in the country by the National Bond Company. Confidentially, we think we will have to retire from business, as we don't believe you have left any.
> Our financial statement follows: $12,000,000,000 undigested securities; $65,000,000 indispensable pills; $16.50 furniture; $11.42 cash; $82 National banks; brains, nit.
> Don't get enlargement of the heart and send us all your business, but if you should see your way clear of using us where we can get a little dough, why, spit it out.
> Very truly yours,
> THE NATIONAL TRUST CO.

This letter was identified by Mrs. Octavia R. Johnson, formerly Lewis's chief clerk, as written by Mr. Lewis. It is understood that the defense will assert that the letter was written in a vein of sarcasm as a reply to what was considered an impertinent inquiry.

The trial is the outcome of a raid on the offices of the National Trust Company here by Post Office Inspectors last September. The company's scheme for guarantee of stock of other companies on the basis of a commission of 1 per cent. of the stock guaranteed was worked in connection with the National Trust Company of Delaware, which, according to the Inspectors, was organized with $1,000,000 capital. The Washington concern's original capitalization had been increased to $500,000. The Inspectors say they failed to find any material funds to justify the guarantee assertions.

Seven indictments were returned by the Grand Jury, each of them involving Huston, who was President of the Washington concern; Samuel Graham, a wealthy broker of Montreal, Canada, and Dufour, who has sometimes been known as Count Dufour.

DECLINE IN MEAT PRICES IS GENERAL

FURTHER DROP EXPECTED

Dealers Say the Lower Western Prices Will Reach the Local Markets Next Week.

In the last few days there has been a falling off in the price of nearly all kinds of meat all over the country, and particularly in the West. Beef, pork, lamb, and veal have declined from 2 to 4 cents a pound.

In this city the decline has been less noticeable, but wholesale and retail dealers said yesterday that a real downward revision of meat prices may be expected here by next week.

The biggest drop in prices affects only what is known as Western meat, and this has not struck New York yet. New York and New Jersey meat has not decreased in price to any extent, and where it has done so the causes are said to be purely local—a working out of the law of supply and demand. With an overstocked market and a demand not so great as it has been, butchers have had to cut their prices to keep from having an oversupply on hand.

Whether this situation will keep up any great length of time meat dealers here profess not to know. They all agree, however, that the Western prices will not strike New York until next week. When they do, another drop is expected.

While the retail and small wholesale butchers admitted that beef, pork, lamb, and veal were cheaper now than two weeks ago and that a further drop was in sight, the managers of the big firms refused to discuss the situation.

Throughout the wholesale meat district the butchers laughed at the reports from Chicago that packers had reduced the price of beef from 4 to 5 cents a pound. They said that while there had been a decline in the price of all meats, particularly pork, the packers in Chicago and other Western meat centres had nothing to do with it. Packers from Long Island and New Jersey had glutted the market, they said, and the condition might change back again without any influence from the West. It was the retail butchers who talked optimistically about the change in prices, and prophesied a greater fall.

A Table of Prices.

	To-day. Cents.	Two Wks. Ago. Cents.	Last July. Cents.
Porterhouse steak	26	28	25
Sirloin steak	20	22	19
Round steak	20	22	18
Flank steak	14	16	13
Rucks of lamb	20	22	14
Whole boiled hams	26	28	25
Leg of mutton	12	14	11
Loin of pork	18	22	16
Fancy pork tenderloin	28	32	26
Leg of lamb	14	16	12

City pork brought 18 and 20 cents at Washington Market yesterday, while the same quality a week ago sold at 23 and 25 cents. Western loins of pork dropped 1 to 4 cents, while smoked ham has fallen from 20 cents to 17 cents and smoked tongue from 20 cents to 18 cents. The figures on poultry are lower and turkeys have dropped from 2 to 4 cents a pound. Chickens for roasting show a five-cent a pound decrease, although broilers are 5 cents more than 1909. Meat, excepting pork, is selling at the same high figure at wholesale at which it was quoted six months ago.

"The drop in prices is not so great as most people are inclined to believe," said E. Joseph, a retail butcher at the Washington Market. "Western pork, wholesale, has dropped to $18.50 a hundredweight and city pork is now $15 a hundredweight, a drop from $16.50. Of course the retail man must add 2 and 3 cents to this to make up for waste. The price of meat fluctuates on account of the market, and the recent change doesn't necessarily mean that the present prices will continue.

"There is plenty of city meat and rather than have an overstock on hand the retail men are getting rid of it. Later, I expect the prices will go up again. Of course this applies entirely to city meat. If there has been a reduction in the price of Western meat it will take a week for these prices to get here. Then they will be the same as out West."

"Next week," said A. Goodman, "the prices will be better than this week. The present reduction in the city merely shows the market fluctuation. We have an unusual supply on hand, and it will take some time for this to be used up."

The unusually large grain crop, particularly corn, according to one butcher, is the cause for the drop in the price of Western meat.

Attributed to Big Crops.

"Before the cattle, sheep, and hog raisers can have big flocks and keep them fat for the market," he said, "it is necessary to have plenty of grain. Western farmers have been raising more stock than usual on account of good crops. The individual output may be small, but the total puts the supply high. The public is too quick to judge about prices. When it hears that the price of beef has fallen a quarter o a cent it comes to us right away and demands a 1 or 2 cent decrease in the retail price. The comparative scale is so small that it keeps the retail price about where it was before."

None of the representatives of the big packers in the city would admit yesterday that the price of meat had tumbled. F. J. Stoltz, head of the Armour concern here, refused to discuss the question. Asked if it was true that there had been a break in the price of beef, with the chances of it going still lower, he replied that he had nothing to say. Swift & Co. and Schwarzschild & Sulzberger likewise did not care to discuss the situation.

Large wholesalers who buy direct from representatives of the big packers for the hotel and restaurant trade said they had been notified that on short loin and rib beef there would be no reduction whatever. As for top and bottom round, long hip, chuck, and other cheaper grades, one dealer said a report had been going around to look out for a 15 to 20 per cent. reduction. Ham and bacon here will not decline, retail butchers said.

Game in general, according to one Washington Market dealer, is higher this year than last. Scarcity is given as the cause. There are no American grouse on the market this year, he said, although some English grouse is being offered as the home article. Quail are $3 dearer a dozen than last year, the present figure being $9. Partridges are worth $6 a dozen, compared to $4.50 in 1909. Wild duck are about the same price as last year. They sell as follows: Canvasback, $5 and $5.50

H. WALTER WEBB HAS AN ACTRESS BRIDE

A JUSTICE MARRIED THEM

Religious Ceremony to Follow Later, Mr. Webb Says, but Illness of His Mother-in-Law Delayed It.

H. Walter Webb announced last night his marriage to Miss Constance Eastman, an actress, who appeared last season with Montgomery and Stone in "The Old Town" at the Globe Theatre.

The marriage took place, according to Mr. Webb, on Nov. 3. The ceremony was performed by Justice of the Peace Tipple of Stamford, Conn. Mr. Webb said that the ceremony had not been placed on record because he had requested otherwise until a religious ceremony could be performed. Mr. Webb is a Protestant and Miss Eastman a Catholic.

The delay in the marriage announcement as well as the religious ceremony, Mr. Webb said, was due to the fact that his mother-in-law was ill.

Announcement of the marriage came as a surprise to Mr. Webb's friends, for the secret of his engagement had been carefully kept. He had been attentive to Miss Eastman, it is said, for two years, or from about the time he was graduated from Yale. He is 24 years old, and his bride is younger.

Mr. Webb is closely related to the Vanderbilt family. His father, the late Henry Walter Webb, was a brother of Major G. Creighton Webb and Dr. W. Seward Webb. His mother, who died last January, was Miss Leila Howard Griswold, daughter of John A. Griswold, the Troy iron merchant, who supplied the capital with which John Ericsson was enabled to build the Monitor.

Mr. Webb is well known in social life. He is a member of the Yale, Union, and Racquet Clubs, and before his marriage lived at 15 East Fifty-first Street. Mrs. Webb has been on the stage five years. She is said to resemble Edna May, and she received very favorable notices when she took the part of the Vision in the Montgomery and Stone play last year. Her first stage experience was in a minor part in a production in Chicago, her native city. Coming to New York, she succeeded Anna Fitzhugh in "Sergeant Bure" at the Casino Theatre, and had several speaking parts. She was engaged two years ago by Charles B. Dillingham.

Her sister is Mrs. Walter Scheftel, who also was on the stage at one time. In recent years Mrs. Scheftel has appeared as an amateur dancer for charities in which she is interested. Until her marriage Mrs. Webb lived with her mother in an apartment house at 542 Riverside Drive.

HAD ACCIDENTS TO ORDER

After being denounced as a swindler by Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions yesterday Mrs. Anna A. Strula, who pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining $500 from the New York Central Railroad after pretending to fall down the stairs at the 125th Street Station on Oct. 19, 1906, withdrew her plea and decided to stand trial. She insisted that the railroad officials had offered the money to her if she would not sue, and she said she had been told that if she pleaded guilty sentence would be suspended.

Judge Rosalsky read a list of seventeen accidents in which the woman had figured and in which she had collected judgments amounting to $4,500. He asked her if all were accidents which she had "faked."

"Most of them were," replied the woman, smiling. In this case, however, she said, the money had been given to her without action being taken by either party. Judge Rosalsky remanded her until Nov. 28 for trial.

In a majority of the cases in the list read by the Court the accidents were caused by slipping upon banana peels. She had a bag full of them with her at the time of her arrest, it is alleged.

MINERS DIE IN NEW DISTRICT.

Porcupine Prospectors Cut Off from Base of Supplies.

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—A score of lives have been lost and hundreds of miners and prospectors are destitute as a result of continuous heavy rains in the Porcupine mining district, according to W. R. McLean, an American mining expert, who arrived here to-day. He stated that a huge swamp had formed south of Frederick House Lake and cut off miners from supplies. Men were obliged to pack provisions on their backs and a number perished in the swamp.

"I saw two men go down out of sight in the soft mud," said Mr. McLean, "and from reports I believe a score or more have perished."

FORMAL OPENING JAN. 1, 1915

Ships to be Allowed to Use Canal During Intervening Period for Training of Workers.

PANAMA, Nov. 15.—The Panama Canal will be completed on Dec. 1, 1913.

This information was given to President Taft to-day while he was inspecting the famous Gatun Dam, on which he spent several hours. The official date of the opening remains Jan. 1, 1915, Lieut. Col. Goethals desiring one year in which to train the canal tenders and get the machinery working smoothly. Ships in the meantime will have the privilege of the canal, but at their own risk of delays incident to inexperienced operation.

It was also announced by Lieut. Col. Goethals that the report that President Taft's visit was the forerunner of a request for another $100,000,000 from Congress was unfounded. The canal will be completed in 1913, he said, and the cost would be within the $375,000,000 already authorized.

The President was tremendously pleased at the outlook for the early completion of the great work, and congratulated Lieut. Col. Goethals. He expressed amazement at the amount of work accomplished since his visit to the Isthmus in February, 1909.

He displayed a knowledge of the technical details of the canal that surprised and delighted the officials, his familiarity dating back to the time when he was Secretary of War, when he advocated a lock canal, as against a sea-level system.

He was greatly surprised, however, at the immensity of the dam, some idea of which he gained from the fact that the special train was under way nearly three hours on the spur tracks overrunning the great fill. The President exclaimed, "This is a mountain, not a dam!"

The visit of President Taft has utterly dispelled any fears gained from sensationalists respecting the stability of the dam base, which is half a mile wide, and so gradually sloped that it could never be recognized as a dam.

Col. Goethals explained to the President that the informal opening of the canal in 1913 would necessitate immediate action on the part of Congress relative to toll rates, because eighteen months will be required by shipping interests to adjust their rates to the new route.

The President expressed himself delighted to find the efficiency of the canal workers increasing daily. The canal is beginning to take the form of a waterway, and this accelerates the interest of the employes, thus hastening the completion.

Col. Goethals is not officially promising that the canal will be completed in 1913, as contractors' delays and trouble with supplies may interfere, but he is sanguine of accomplishing the great feat. Regarding landslides in Culebra Cut, all the possibilities of their recurrence have been estimated and provided for.

The President also rode over the relocated railroad and ended the day elated to see the wonderful project so near completion. He declared that it was impossible for any one to realize what was being accomplished without seeing it.

This evening the President briefly addressed the Americans engaged in the canal work at a reception given under the auspices of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Red Cross. To-morrow he will inspect the Culebra Cut and in the evening will dine with President Arosemena, this being made the occasion of a state function. On the homeward trip the President will go ashore at the proposed naval base at Guantanamo for a few hours on Saturday afternoon.

PRAISE CANAL WORK.

Members of the American Institute of Engineers Back from the Isthmus.

One hundred and twenty-four members and guests of the American Institute of Mining Engineers returned to this city yesterday after a twenty-five-day trip to Cuba, Jamaica, and the Isthmus of Panama. They had chartered the Hamburg-American liner Prinz August Wilhelm to attend what they called the "Canal Zone Meeting," the principal object of the trip being an inspection of the Panama Canal at the invitation of President Taft and the Isthmian Canal Commission. The party included about sixty-five of the foremost engineers of the country, a university President, and, as some one said, "twenty millionaires."

Although a scientific expedition, ten meetings being held on board at which engineering problems were discussed by members, the presence of wives and daughters gave to it the air of a pleasure tour. As the steamer came up the bay the band struck up "Home, Sweet Home," and the promenade deck became an improvised ballroom on which couples danced.

At the scientific meetings on the return trip the canal work was the topic. Unanimous opinion supported the methods being used, and a signed statement was issued indorsing the Government engineers in every particular. The views of the society regarding the canal work have been awaited by many engineers to form their opinion as to the conditions which exist on the Isthmus, as this is the largest disinterested body of engineering experts that yet has visited the ground.

The statement in a general way supports both the system under which the work has been carried on and the plans. It says that individual impressions will be given in detail in publications of the organizations, and rises to almost unscientific enthusiasm in a summary which declares that the completion of the work, as is now promised is a "consummation every American citizen should take a greater pride in than any victory of military or political conflict."

The members say the plan of the work is the best that could be devised under the conditions, and that the experience gained in the Culebra Cut throws such light on the sea level canal project that "prudent engineers would not now rec-

SENATOR CARTER LOSES.

Special to The New York Times.

HELENA, Mon., Nov. 15.—Election Canvassing Boards in Butte, Helena, and Philipsburg finished their labors to-day, and the result was a net gain of a Senator and a Representative for the Democrats, making the Legislature stand fifty-two Democrats and fifty Republicans. The Democrats may gain still another vote or two.

The leading Democratic candidates for Senator Carter's seat are W. G. Conrad, a millionaire banker, land, and mining man; T. J. Walsh, a wealthy lawyer; W. A. Clark, former Senator; C. J. Kelly, Chief Counsel for the Amalgamated Copper Company and C. S. Hartman, defeated candidate for Congressman.

LODGE LOSES ANOTHER VOTE.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Senator Lodge lost another vote in the Legislature in the Boston recount to-day. Representative Leonard G. Roberts of Ward 24 had been declared elected by one vote over his Democratic opponent, Thomas P. Curtin, but he was really defeated. Senator Lodge now lacks one vote of re-election if the Republican members who have declared against him remain firm and the Democrats are united against him.

One feature of the canvass is the unanimity with which leading Republicans mentioned by the opposition have come out to advocate the re-election of the Senator. Ex-Gov. John L. Bates was the man to speak to-day.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., Nov. 15.—William Martin, aged 80 years, and the oldest surviving member of the jury that convicted John Brown of treason at Harper's Ferry before the civil war, married Mrs. Bettie Ferguson to-day at Legato, Fairfax County. The bride is her husband's senior by one year.

UNION INVASION OF CHICAGO.

1,000 Men Will Solicit Funds for 40,000 Striking Garmentmakers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Settlement of the strike of 40,000 garment workers does not appear to be in sight. The employers say they will not listen to any proposal except on the basis of an open-shop agreement.

General Auditor I. Haskins of the United Garment Workers of America said last night that after the convention of the American Federation of Labor, now in session at St. Louis, closes, 1,000 union workers will be brought from St. Louis to aid the strikers.

They intend to assist the garment workers by soliciting funds, speaking at mass meetings, and obtaining employment in other cities for the single men who are out of work as a result of the strike.

$15,000 GEM THEFT.

Jeweler's Attention Diverted While Man Decamps with Tray of Diamonds.

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, Nov. 15.—A tray containing diamond valued at $15,000 was stolen by means of a familiar trick from the jewelry store of W. G. Spies here to-day. The theft was made by two well-dressed young men, who, so far, have escaped without leaving a clue.

The young men visited the store yesterday evening, and purchased a diamond ring, for which they paid $500 cash. They returned to-day, and asked to see some uncut stones. Spies, who is 78 years old, placed a tray on the counter before them. He was then called to the rear of the store on some pretext by one of the men. The other dashed out of the store with the tray, while his companion espaced by the rear.

NEW UNIVERSITY HEAD.

Vice Provost Smith to Succeed Dr. Harrison in University of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Nov. 15.—Edgar F. Smith, Vice Provost of the University of Pennsylvania since 1898, was chosen Provost of that institution to-day to succeed Dr. Charles C. Harrison, whose resignation becomes effective on Dec. 31.

Dr. Smith is a leading authority on electro-chemistry, and his work on that subject has been translated into several foreign languages, including Chinese.

ACQUITS PASTOR-DETECTIVE.

No Crime to Wear Marine's Uniform Getting Evidence Against "Blind Pigs"

SEATTLE, Nov. 15.—The Rev. F. A. Jensen, formerly a football player at the University of Chicago, was acquitted yesterday of having worn unlawfully the uniform of a United States sailor.

The navy yard town of Charlestown is, by law, but not in fact, "dry." Pastor Jensen in the uniform of a United States marine Sergeant found it easy to buy liquor in the "blind pigs" and obtained evidence. Then he was prosecuted for violation of the new law forbidding a civilian to wear the garb of the United States sailor.

The Justice ruled that the law was unconstitutional and pointed out women in the courtroom wearing sailors' caps and blouses.

THINK DEATH DUE TO HAZING.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 15.—The death of Charles Schnearer of Baltic, Ohio, at the Columbus Sanitarium yesterday may lead to an investigation of alleged hazing practices at Wittenberg College, Springfield.

Schnearer, who was a freshman at the Wittenberg Theological Seminary, collapsed in chapel on Oct. 24. The college authorities said his illness was due to overstudy, but his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Schnearer, say that study would have not affected a youth so who was sturdy and in good health up to a few days before he was stricken. They assert that he was the victim of hazing and have demanded an inquiry by the college Trustees.

Physicians admit that the boy was suffering from a severe nervous shock, which, while it might have been due to long hours of study, hardly would have had such an effect so early in the term.

THEY REJECT CONCESSIONS

Want the "Closed Shop" with None but Union Men on the Cabs—Opposite of Express Strike.

Following the abortive conference between the taxicab strikers and representatives of the companies on Monday, Mayor Gaynor, who brought about the conference, let it be known yesterday that the men refused all concessions that did not include the "closed shop," and intimated plainly that no attempt on their part to intimidate the companies into employing only members of the chauffeurs' branch of the Teamsters' Union would be successful.

Last night, it was announced at Police Headquarters that 1,100 policemen would be assigned to special strike duty this morning in a specially designated strike zone, many of them to ride with the strike-breaking chauffeurs or inside each taxicab. The policemen will be under orders to prevent all demonstrations against the taxicab drivers or the cabs themselves, and to see that the taxicab companies can carry on their business without let or hindrance. The police order against demonstrations by the strikers is based on Justice Goff's recent decision declaring illegal a strike established solely for the purpose of carrying out the "closed shop" principle.

The zone in which the taxicabs will be operated under police guard to-day stretches on the east side from Fourteenth to Ninety-sixth Streets and on the west side to Riverside Drive, between Fourteenth and Seventy-second Streets. All the avenues and cross-streets in this district will be more thoroughly policed than other parts of the city, and nearly 400 of the biggest men in the Traffic Squad will ride in the taxicabs.

The police order against the strikers, it was said last night, affects only two companies, the others having informed the Commissioner that their men are not on strike, and are willing to operate the cabs if the proper protection be given them.

Different from Express Strike.

The attitude of the taxicab strikers and their former employers is in direct contrast with that of the two sides in the express strike. Concerning this a city official close to the Mayor said yesterday:

"One week ago last Friday the Mayor induced the striking express employes to withdraw their demand that their union be recognized, and that only union labor be employed. To his great surprise, and although he did this at the request of the heads of some of the express companies, one of them stood out and said he proposed to discharge every union man, and would employ only non-union men. That was all that there was in the controversy since that time. Finally this man yielded to the exact terms of the settlement which the men proposed. To the Mayor's great surprise, however, some newspapers seem to think that it was just the other way; that the men held out for a closed shop against non-union men, whereas the truth was that the companies through this one man held out for eight days for a closed shop against union men."

No taxicabs were running yesterday except those owned by their drivers or small employers, a condition which has been unchanged since the strike of the chauffeurs was started more than a week ago.

Mayor Gaynor wrote a letter to John Tackney, who was Chairman of a committee of the employes of the Westcott Express Company, whose taxicab chauffeurs were recently ordered out in sympathy with the striking chauffeurs of the other companies, in which he took a stand flatly opposed to the closed-shop demand of the Chauffeurs' Union. The Westcott taxicab drivers appointed a committee to wait on Mayor Gaynor and urge him to end the strike, because, as they put it, they were being made the "goat" for the other strikers. They told the Mayor that they were getting better wages than the union demands and that their hours were satisfactory.

The Mayor Sets His Foot Down.

In his letter to Tackney the Mayor referred to the terms on which the express strike had been settled, and, adding that the taxicab companies were willing to settle on the same terms, advised the Westcott men to go back to work, and assured them that if they were in danger of attack "from idlers or loafers" a policeman would ride on each taxicab. This is the letter:

> OFFICE OF THE MAYOR,
> November 15, 1910.
> Dear Sir: After your delegation of eighteen of the taxicab drivers of the Westcott Company at the Grand Central Station called on me yesterday, and assured me that all of your 200 men were satisfied with their wages and treatment, and wanted to go back to work, but that the union would not permit them to, I brought about a meeting between the employing companies, the leaders of the union, and representatives of the State Board of Mediation and Arbitration last night.
> The employers conceded the demands in respect of terms of employment, and agreed to take all of the men back without regard to whether they belong to the union or not, and thereafter not to discharge any one for belonging to the union. They thus conceded the "open shop," as it is called, namely, open to union and non-union men without discrimination. But the union leaders demanded that every one be excluded from employment except union men, and would not yield on this head; in other words they demand the "closed shop," i. e., closed against every one except union men. The case is just the reverse of that of the express companies' strike. There the men withdrew their demand that only union men be employed, and the companies held out for a week thereafter on the proposition of discharging all union men, or not employing any, which they finally withdrew, for the reason that enlightened public opinion was against it. That same opinion is now as justly against the demand of the cab drivers' union that the shop be closed to all except union men. It holds that one side has no more right to demand "closed shop" than the other. Employes are now demanding what they condemned employers for demanding last week.
> I advise you all to go back to work at once, and if you are in danger of attack from street idlers or loafers, a policeman will be sent out with you on the cab, the same as a police escort on horse or bicycle was given to every express wagon that went out during that strike. Have no fear that you will not be fully protected. I have given the same advice and assurance to the employes of the Connecticut Taxicab Company, who are entirely satisfied with their pay and desire to go back also.
> Very truly yours,
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
> John Tackney, Esq.

Strikers Refuse to Recede.

When it became known at the headquarters of the strikers in Washington Hall, on Eighth Avenue, near Forty-eighth Street, that the Mayor had written a letter in which he told of the refusal of the strikers to agree to the peace terms of the employers, and had advised the Westcott men to return to work, the leaders were plainly displeased. The strikers, however, insisted that they would remain out until the union demands, recognition, and all, were agreed to by the companies and seemed certain that the companies would be unable to get enough strikebreakers to take their places.

The companies are just as certain that they will be able to get enough non-union chauffeurs to take the place of the strikers. They announced last night that 1,200 chauffeurs who have not been on strike, but who have feared to run taxicabs because of possible assault by mistake, will start work to-day. The companies have arranged to send out a number of their machines with licensed chauffeurs who were not previously employed.

Routes have been established by the police so as to afford them protection, and at the garages and the hotel stands policemen will be provided to prevent any outbreak.

Riot in Front of the Waldorf.

Soon after the Mayor's letter was made public and it became known that he had advised the Westcott men to go back to work with police protection if necessary several riots took place in the heart of the city. The worst was in front of the Waldorf-Astoria, where Alexander Walton, a cab driver employed by the New York Cab Company, was assaulted and his hansom wrecked. The Waldorf was crowded and the sidewalks about it thronged with many out-of-town visitors returning from the Horse Show. A steady stream of private automobiles and carriages were headed for the carriage way on the Thirty-fourth Street side when the outbreak started.

The attack was well planned. Walton was allowed to drive almost up to the main entrance before the crowd set upon him. In his cab was a well-dressed woman, who was stopping at the Waldorf. Just as the cab was about to enter the court the mob hemmed it in. Some one grabbed Walton and pulled him from his seat, while others caught the horse, quickly cut the harness, and turned the animal loose in the street. The woman in the cab leaped screaming into the street and ran into the hotel.

One man took Walton's whip and beat him over the head with it while others pummeled him with their fists and small sticks. When he was almost unconscious the mob overturned the cab, breaking all the windows and wrecking it.

Somebody in the hotel had telephoned a riot call to the West Thirtieth Street Station and the reserves appeared just as the battle ended. The crowd scattered in all directions. The police made one arrest, Vincent H. Allen, a chauffeur of 282 West 114th Street. The police said he was a ringleader. Allen was later held in $1,000 bail for examination to-day.

About 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon a man and woman entered a cab in front of the Hotel Astor. About 200 men and boys intercepted the cab at Seventh Avenue and Forty-sixth Street, and the driver, jumping from his seat, ran away.

"Please get out," a man said, opening the cab door, and the occupants made haste to comply with the request. Then the mob broke off a wheel, smashed the windows, and left the vehicle in the street. The police arrived after it was all over.

There was another cab riot at Fifty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue about 7 o'clock. Both the driver and the horse ran away. The cab was found several blocks away practically undamaged.

The Motor Car Owners' Association held a long session in the Hotel Imperial yesterday afternoon, when it was finally decided to begin service to-day without further waiting on the union.

Express Companies Making Up Time.

The work of the express companies to deliver the two weeks' accumulation of freight that piled up on them in their strike continued unabated yesterday. Last night the heaps of packages in the express depots had been reduced about one-third and there was every indication that the companies will be able to make good their conditional promise that all of the undelivered freight will be in the hands of the consignees by Saturday night.

A letter written to the Jewelers' Board of Trade by Vice President Julier of the American Express Company, and given out yesterday, showed that the strikers in that company ran the risk of forfeiting their right to share in a pension system maintained by the company, which retires men after twenty years' service on half pay; to the benefits of a sick leave fund which carries with it a month's salary in case of illness or injury; an annual vacation of one week with pay, and a co-operative bonding system by which the employes procure surety bonds at cost.

respects the rights of other nations, be they strong or weak.

"You have lately seen a proof of the beneficial effects of such international policy in the unhappy events which have produced passing disturbances on either side of our frontier. An atrocious crime committed in Texas on the person of a Mexican citizen inspired in my country a sentiment of indignation against the authors of such an atrocious act. The inquiry in which my Government is engaged at this moment will permit it to be determined whether the nationality of Rodriguez as a Mexican was established. The manifestation of public sentiment in Mexico, which would have been easily explicable within reasonable bounds, exceeded the limits required by law, but my Government, acting with the utmost promptness, repressed such unexpected disorders.

"The American Government was not responsible for the awful crime committed by those who burned alive that unfortunate Mexican, nor is my Government responsible for the punishable acts which gave rise to a public manifestation born of a legitimate sentiment, if both Governments discharge the sacred obligations imposed upon them by international law and by the reciprocal feelings of sincere and loyal friendship which binds them together. My Government has already shown by its prompt action in accordance with law, that it is fully aware of its obligations, and ready to discharge them consistently with the sovereign rights of Mexico, over whose integrity we are ever zealous.

"The American Government has already begun a careful and prompt investigation which will lead to the discovery and punishment of those guilty of the crime at Rock Springs. When this has been accomplished in a sincere spirit of justice and other legal consequences have been fulfilled, the incident will be a matter of history. But the lesson for the future will be a profitable one, without altering in the slightest the friendship which exists between the two countries and the two governments. Strong in their rights and the earnest desire to discharge their international obligations, they will continue with serenity the onward march of progress, justice and peace."

Don Felipe Pardo, the Peruvian Minister, in his address said:

"Two events that history will probably record as landmarks in the modern evolution of Pan-American relations are: Secretary's Root's visit to South America and the trip made by the powerful American fleet to our coasts. Confidence in the Pan-American policy and its results in favor of peace, welfare, and prosperity of the continents is to-day a matter of fact.

"Commercial relations between the United States and the Southern republics have not developed in proportion to the rapidity with which the ties of friendship, solidarity, and mutual confidence which generally precede the former, have become stronger. Until lately the United States exported principally natural products, similar to those exported by the sister republics, and imported from Europe manufactured products just as Latin American republics did. But in the last few years the situation has been modified. The United States exports to-day manufactured articles, while a large number of the Southern republics themselves try to produce the manufactured articles they need. On the other hand the latter countries continue preferably to import from Europe those articles which they do not produce."

MRS. STETSON DENIES LEADERSHIP PLOT

Still Devoted to "My Beloved and Revered Leader" and Unswervingly Loyal.

HASN'T BEEN IN WILMINGTON

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, the deposed leader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, who, as told in yesterday's TIMES, is alleged to be extending her influence throughout the Christian Science Church with a view to succeeding Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy on the death of the aged founder of the sect, sent to THE TIMES yesterday this letter denying the latest allegations against her:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Repeated denials by me of false and malicious reports should make it unnecessary for me to again refute the charge that I am in any least particular working against the cause of Christian Science, established by my beloved and revered leader, Mary Baker Eddy. However, the article which appears in your columns to-day, Nov. 15, affords me an opportunity to again publicly declare my unswerving allegiance to the great leader of Christian Science, Mrs. Eddy, my unfaltering adherence to her teachings as set forth in our text book, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and my implicit respect for and obedience to the rules and regulations of her Church as contained in the Manual of the Mother Church, nor will my students who are loyal to principle and to Mrs. Eddy and her teachings ever be found working in opposition to anything she has directed or may hereafter direct.

It is now nearly two years since our leader, Mrs. Eddy, said in The Christian Science Journal: "When my dear brethren in New York desire to build higher * * * and demonstrate Christian Science to a higher extent they must begin on a wholly spiritual foundation than which there is none other."

To this wholly spiritual work I am consecrated. I know that Christ's kingdom is not of this world. Our revered leader says in "Science and Health," (Page 192, line six,) "We are not Christian Scientists until we leave all for Christ." True Christian Scientists everywhere are seeking the "city that hath foundations," and are gaining glorious glimpses of the consciousness that reveals the spiritual fact, which our leader, Mrs. Eddy, expresses in these words: "Spirit is infinite, therefore spirit is all." In this wholly spiritual building, stationary stillness, and the reflection of divine love and truth are indispensable to the attainment of spiritual power over sin, disease, and death.

You have been erroneously informed in regard to my having been in Wilmington. I have not been away from my home for many weeks. I find my time fully employed in striving to possess "that mind which was in Christ Jesus," in healing the sick and teaching humanity to utilize the power and presence of our Heavenly Father, divine truth, life, and love, which demonstrates the infinite capacities of man when governed by God.

To my knowledge none of my students have assembled to consider the question of the proposed meeting of the members of the Church, nor have I heard anything from them relating to your statement that "they intend to take action." Instead of this they are striving to fulfill the law of love and establish the true brotherhood of man, "wherein one mind is not at war with another," ("Science and Health," Page 276, line 6,) "For God hath not given us the spirit of fear; but of power and of love, and of a sound mind," (Second Timothy i., 7,) and its correlative from "Science and Health," Page 183, line twenty-three, "Obedience to truth gives man power and strength."

The oft-repeated statement that I am to "supplant or succeed Mrs. Eddy as the head of the entire cult" I have repeatedly and emphatically denied. Christian Science teaches that life is eternal, man is immortal, and that no one can take the individual place of another. In reply to a clergyman who had said that "Christian Science will be improved in its teaching and authorship after Mrs. Eddy is gone," Mrs. Eddy says, in her message for 1901, under the sub-caption "Questionable Metaphysics," "I am sorry for my critic who reckons hopefully on the death of an individual who loves God and man; such foreseeing is not foreknowing, and exhibits a startling ignorance of Christian Science * * * for life is the principle of Christian Science and of its results. * * * Christ came, not to bring death, but life, into the world."

I adhere steadfastly to this teaching. Therefore I repeat: Each individual has his and her place in the body of Christ. No one can take the individual place of another.

I trust I shall not again be obliged to refute the erroneous statement that I contemplate erecting another material church edifice. That has been fully and finally demonstrated.

AUGUSTA E. STETSON.

Denial from Mrs. Remer.

Mrs. Remer, who was said to be associated with Mrs. Stetson in the effort to extend the Stetson influence through the Christian Science Church at large and at whose home meetings to this end were said to have been held, made this categorical denial of the statements:

In refutation of the first statement: "Meetings have been held at the home of Mrs. Remer and elsewhere and a strong organization of Stetson sympathizers has been effected." No meetings have been held in my home, nor elsewhere, to my certain knowledge, either to discuss the affairs of First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York City, or to consider the announced meeting of its members. My entire time is occupied in ministering to my patients, in healing the sick, and in demonstrating the teachings of Divine Metaphysics as taught in our textbook, "Science and Health, with Key to the Scriptures," by our beloved leader, Mary Baker Eddy.

Your statement that "Mrs. Stetson's lieutenants were very active yesterday marshaling their forces preparatory to the fight" is incorrect. I have investigated the charge and find that yesterday the practitioners and all whom I could learn about were pursuing their usual occupations and were not "yesterday" or at any previous time concerned by the announced meeting of the Church on Friday. I also wish to deny the statement that Mrs. Stetson was in Wilmington. She has not been out of the city for months. Allow me also to deny the repeated charge that she intends to build another material church edifice. She has completed her work along that line. All true Christian Scientists are emulating the life and following the example of Jesus, the Christ, and Mary Baker Eddy in fulfilling the law of love. "Ages pass, but this leaven of truth is ever at work. It must destroy the entire mass of error and be eternally glorified in man's spiritual freedom." "Science and Health,") Page 118.

In Second Chronicles, 20, xvii., we read: "Ye shall not need to fight in this battle; set yourselves, stand ye still, and see the salvation of the Lord."

KATE Y. REMER.

A "Denunciation" Ready.

From leaders in the Christian Science Church yesterday it was learned that if Mrs. Stetson should attempt to take Mrs. Eddy's place upon the latter's death a "denunciation" has already been prepared which it is believed would put an end to her ambitions.

Officials of the Mother Church have been informed that Mrs. Stetson has in her possession letters from Mrs. Eddy and from other prominent officials in the Mother Church, which she and her followers have construed as indorsing Mrs. Stetson as the logical successor to Mrs. Eddy. The Mother Church officials have been told that Mrs. Stetson is guarding these written communications as though for use in the event of Mrs. Eddy's death. The letters were written by Mrs. Eddy and others during the twelve years when Mrs. Stetson was practically in charge of the affairs of First Church, and when she was on a friendly footing with Mrs. Eddy and the officers of the Mother Church.

It was said among Christian Scientists yesterday that the special meeting of the First Church congregation, called for Friday night, to vote upon a new by-law bearing upon the privileges of the Stetson followers was really arranged to bring out the actual strength of the Stetson following here. Since the church election on Jan. 18, when the followers of Mrs. Stetson polled 482 votes against 732 cast by members of the church who opposed Mrs. Stetson and her teachings, the leaders in control of First Church have had no means of learing difinitely whether the Stetson sympathizers were growing in number of the movement was on the wane. But reports have been made to the leaders by those delegated to learn what Mrs. Stetson and her followers have been doing which are supposed to have alarmed those in authority.

Mother Church Stirred to Action.

Those familiar with the Stetson household have been in the secret of Mrs. Stetson's plans for several months, according to the Christian Science leaders, but news of these plans did not reach the Mother Church authorities until recently. The Mother Church Directors had supposed that all idea of succeeding Mrs. Eddy which might have been entertained by Mrs. Stetson or her followers a year ago had been dispelled at that time by the action of Mrs. Eddy and her Board of Directors in ousting Mrs. Stetson and sixteen of her students from the Church.

The Christian Science leaders believe that Mrs. Stetson's lieutenants have been successful of late in their efforts to increase her following. They say that Stetson propaganda has been spread all through the country, the chief argument used by Mrs. Stetson's friends being that Mrs. Stetson has been dealt with unjustly by the leaders of the Christian Science Church, owing to the fear of her growing influence in the affairs of the church at large. This argument is said to have won many Christian Scientists, just how many will not be known until Friday night.

A Christian Science leader here who is in close touch with the Mother Church Directors was asked yesterday what steps would be taken if Mrs. Stetson attempted to make herself leader of the Church on Mrs. Eddy's death. He said that plans had already been made by the Mother Church to counteract any such attempt, and that the proper arguments to frustrate such an attempt would be immediately forthcoming. But the death of Mrs. Eddy, he hastened to add, was not generally expected in the near future.

That By-law Not Revealed Yet.

Virgil O. Strickler, First Reader, and others who have to do with the management of First Church affairs, refused yesterday to divulge the exact nature of the by-law to be voted on at Friday's meeting, but it was admitted that the result of the meeting would probably have a decided effect on the next election of Trustees, scheduled for Jan. 17, 1911. At the next annual election the congregation will be called upon to elect four Trustees to replace George C. Franciscus, Charles K. Lipman, Copeland Townsend and Mrs. Abbie J. Bain, whose terms will expire. The other members of the board are Charles A. Dean, Chairman; B. F. Bailey, Treasurer; Mrs. Margaret Beecher White, Mrs. Suzanne S. Thomas and Arthur O. Probst, clerk to the board.

With the exception of Mrs. Thomas, who was a holdover from the old administration, all the members of the present board were either elected or appointed after the defeat of Mrs. Stetson and her followers.

MABEN GLAD WEDDING'S OFF.

Says Daughter Would Have Been Unhappy with Count de Nascimento.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 15.—Col. J. C. Maben, President of the Sloss-Sheffield Coal and Iron Company, who announced yesterday that the engagement of his daughter Betty to Count Mario de Nascimento of Portugal had been annulled, refused to make a statement to-day as to the causes. Some time ago Miss Maben entered the Catholic Church in New York in preparation for her wedding to the Count. The date was set and invitations sent out. Presents were pouring in when Col. Maben made the announcement yesterday.

"My main object in announcing that the engagement had been terminated," said Col. Maben this afternoon, "was to stop the inflow of the wedding presents."

In answer to a question he replied that the Count had not been in Birmingham. He stated, however, that he had seen him recently in Washington.

"He is a man of pleasing address and attainments and scholarly," said Col. Maben. "But certain things arose which made the wedding impossible. My daughter's happiness is the main thing to be considered, and I do not think that false pride should cause us to hesitate in preventing a mistake which would mean a life of unhappiness.

"Now I recall the story of a New York family, the daughter of which was engaged to a foreign nobleman. Preparations had gone on until the very ceremony was being performed. Then the foreigner made certain heavy demands for money on the family of his bride to be and the wedding was stopped immediately.

"No, I cannot make a statement as to the causes which led up to the termination of the engagement. It was all ended and we are very happy. I regret that it went as far as it did."

The wedding was to have been held in St. Paul's Church, Birmingham, Nov. 23.

THIEF ROBS POOR SHOPGIRL.

Judged by the closeness with which fifteen-year-old Fanny Lieberwertz of 71 East 115th Street hugged her handbag in the crowd of homeward-bound shop girls in the Fourteenth Street station of the Subway yesterday evening, it contained a considerable sum. While she was fumbling for money at the ticket seller's window Detectives McKenna and Cassassa of the Central Office saw a lean-looking, light-fingered acquaintance whom they recognized as No. 11,298 of the Rogues' Gallery, slip his hand into the bag and snatch out the small purse inside.

They chased him to the street, and there arrested him. Then they opened the purse. It contained just 11 cents. No. 11,2[illegible]3, otherwise known as Joseph Klein, gave out one long wail.

"I wish I was dead!" he moaned. "Honest, I wish I was dead! To get nipped nailing 11 cents makes me feel so bad I want to die."

Hampered by the law from granting his wish just then, the detectives took him to Headquarters on a charge of theft.

$29,134,000 CUT OUT OF OIL REBATE CASE

INDICTMENT MAY BE VOID

Tentative Ruling That Its Dates Are Wrong—Trial in Tennessee Will Proceed Under Restrictions.

JACKSON, Tenn., Nov. 15.—The indictment of the United States against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in the so-called Grand Junction concession charge, by which it was sought to have assessed penalties aggregating $30,084,000, to-night stands shorn of its magnitude.

The prosecution met reverses in a ruling of Judge John J. McCall in the United States Circuit Court late to-day as to a point of law, which in one sweep dwarfed the monetary feature of the issue by exactly $29,134,000, and in general played havoc with the bill of charges as set up by the Government.

In effect it was the ruling of Judge McCall that within the meaning of the Elkins law governing inter-State commerce, a settlement, and not an individual shipment, constitutes an offense. In the indictment as returned, it is charged that the Indiana corporation committed 1,524 offenses, basing each of the counts on a railroad shipment of petroleum or the products of petroleum from the company's refinery at Whiting, Ind., to points in the Southeast through Grand Junction, Tenn.

Evidence presented and declared admissible shows only forty-six settlements, all bi-monthly transactions between the Standard Oil Company and the carriers named in the bill during the years covered, 1903 to 1905. Hence, should the defendant company be found guilty on all charges now standing, the maximum penalty possible to be assessed would be $950,000. For each offense the statute provides $20,000 may be taxed. The minimum is $1,000.

Judge McCall also held tentatively that dates shown in the indictment should conform to the proof tendered. If made final this would develop a variance fatal to the indictment, its allegations being timed in accordance with the dates the shipments left the Whiting refinery, while the settlements for freight charges were in reality made several weeks later.

The ruling from the bench came unexpectedly and after a day of rather languid procedure. A huge case of documentary evidence was hauled into the court room early in the morning, and the first session was devoted to a somewhat ineffectual effort to have them identified and proved by several witnesses. Just before noon R. W. Stewart, councin-in-chief for the defendant, started things by informally indicating that the defense would probably admit that the thirteen-cent rate declared illegal by the prosecution was paid by the Indiana oil concern. Formal admission to this effect was withheld, however, and adjournment was taken to permit a conference between counsel looking to an agreement to this effect.

At the opening of the afternoon session this was not forthcoming, and in the absence of several tariff sheets desired by the Government, jurors and witnesses were excused until to-morrow.

"But," continued Judge McCall, "the session is not adjourned. There is something I want to say to counsel."

Defining his position, as later told in his ruling, Judge McCall asked that the attorneys for the two sides enlighten him as to their views. For the prosecution George Randolph, former District Attorney, spoke first. His contentions were that the indictment charges and phraseology were wholly within the proper construction of the law. Speaking for the defense, Mr. Stewart contended that the case had drifted from the indictment allegations. He held that, even should the railroad not have charged the proper rate, it was not incumbent upon the shipper to compel the railroad to do its duty.

The trial along the restricted lines will be resumed to-morrow. The prosecution, it is announced, will now endeavor to have the much-debated thirteen-cent rate from Whiting to Grand Junction, "for points beyond" proved illegal by the fact that, even should this rate in itself be legal, another rate, a higher commodity tariff applying from Evansville, a point along the line traversed, would make the thirteen-cent rate illegal.

BRAINSTORM DEFENSE FAILS.

Ticket Speculator Swartz Convicted of Manslaughter Despite His Wife's Story

William Swartz, the ticket speculator who has been on trial for murder before Judge Foster in General Sessions, was convicted yesterday for manslaughter in the first degree. Swartz was charged with the killing of John Strumph on the night of June 1.

The defense of Swartz was of the "brainstorm" sort similar to that by Harry K. Thaw. Mrs. Swartz, to save her husband, testified that she had been friendly with Strumph for some time prior to the shooting, and that she had told her husband so. Swartz said that he did not remember shooting Strumph. All he remembered was seeing Strumph in a saloon at First Avenue and Seventh Street, whither he had followed his wife. Swartz was remanded until Friday for sentence.

ommend the deepening of the Culebra Cut below the level now fixed for it." They say that a sea level canal would be inferior to the lock canal by reason of its liability to disturbances from which the lock is comparatively free.

They also praise the manner in which sanitation, excavation, transportation, and construction are carried on.

"A spirit of loyalty, emulation, industry, and pride seems to animate employes and officers alike," the report says, adding that this spirit, difficult to arouse among workers in tropical countries, is due to the inspiring example of Col. Goethals and his associates, and the splendid work of the sanitation department under Col. Gorgas.

The one serious difficulty upon which the visiting engineers comment is presented by the nature of the ground in the Culebra Cut. The report says:

"There have been extensive slides on the side of this excavation, and more of them are to be expected. But they involve nothing more than the cost and delay of removing the material which they will force into the cut. They will ultimately end, and we regard as reasonable the calculation of the engineers in charge as to the time and money which they will call for."

The statement ends with the opinion that the work is progressing satisfactorily and will be completed by the date set, Jan. 1, 1915, or sooner, "provided Col. Goethals and his associates receive the support of the American people and their representatives in Congress." It says the canal engineers are the right men in the right place.

Among the members of the society who made the trip were Dr. Henry S. Drinker, President of Lehigh University; William A. Lathrop, President of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company; E. W. Parker, chief statistician of the Government Geographical Survey, and Dr. Joseph Struthers, formerly professor in the School of Mines at Columbia University and executive secretary in charge of the trip.

GIVE TO MAYOR'S FUND.

Quick Responses to Call for Contributions to Pay Cost of His Illness.

John D. Crimmins, chairman of the committee of citizens who propose to receive contributions to the fund for defraying the expenses of Mayor Gaynor's illness and in part to provide a Thanksgiving offering for St. Mary's Hospital, where the Mayor was treated, announced yesterday that the plan and purposes of the committee were meeting with ready and enthusiastic response from the people of New York.

"It would be a reproach to our citizenship," said Mr. Crimmins, "if the Mayor of our city, shot down for an act performed in the fearless discharge of his public duties, should be allowed to pay the necessarily heavy expenses attendant upon his illness."

Mr. Crimmins said it was gratifying to the committee to observe the spirit in which the contributions came and also the number of small subscriptions from people of moderate means. "These small subscriptions are as welcome," declared Mr. Crimmins, "as any, and the committee wants the public to understand that a large number of small donations will add very much to the sentiment and spirit of the movement."

Mr. Crimmins announced the following subscriptions as a part of those already received:

AIRSHIP FLIGHT TO WARSHIP.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Eugene B. Ely's successful flight in a biplane yesterday from the deck of the scout cruiser Birmingham through a fog five miles to shore will have the effect, it is said here to-day, of interesting the Secretary of the Navy in the aircraft as a valuable and practical addition to the navy. Secretary Dickinson already has declared in favor of it as an aid to the army, and it is now believed that the estimates for both the army and the navy appropriations will call for a number of airships of various types.

Ely is considered to have solved one-half of the problem of aeronautics at sea; he has launched himself successfully from the deck of the ship. The other problem is how to bring the airships back to the deck without alighting first in the water. It is not believed, however, that this part of the problem will be left unsolved long.

a pair; redhead, $4 and $4.50; ruddy, $3; mallard, $2.50; bradbill, $2, and teal, $1.50.

First Report of the Slump.

The first indication of the fall in meat prices came from Chicago. The dispatch announcing it read:

"Within the last week the price of beef has been reduced between 4 and 5 cents a pound by the meat packers. The price of pork has declined about 3 cents from the price of 18 and 20 cents a week ago, and the wholesale dealers say that mutton and veal and other products will take a downward turn within the next few days."

The decline in prices did not strike Pittsburg, although dealers there admitted that everything points to an early reduction.

The reduction struck Washington yesterday. In the wholesale district there it was said that the price of beef had been reduced from 4 to 5 cents a pound. At the same time the price of pork dropped about 3 cents. Hope was held out that mutton and veal also would tumble in the near future. Veal is selling in Washington at the highest figure in ten years. Retailers there had not heard of the decrease officially except as to the price of pork.

A reduction of 1 cent a pound in the retail price of lard and of from 1 to 2 cents a pound in the retail price of beef was announced in Kansas City yesterday. It was said that fancy beef would be the next to come down. St. Louis retail markets bought fresh meats from 2 to 3 cents a pound cheaper than a week ago. Pork loins sold by wholesale at 15 cents last week brought 12½ cents yesterday. Beef carcasses declined from 11 to 8 cents and mutton from 9 to 8 cents.

The consumer has received the benefit of the decline out there. In Omaha there was a drop of about 2 cents a pound in the price of all fresh meats and a further decline by Jan. 1 of at least 5 cents on pork and almost as much on other fresh meats is predicted. In Cleveland a decline in all meats was reported on the live stock market. In the last three weeks hogs have dropped $1.50 a hundred.

In Cincinnati meat prices have dropped sharply in the last few days, bacon leading with a decline of 5 cents a pound. Other pork products are cheaper there. Coffee and potatoes, however, are steadily going higher, with butter and eggs remaining the same as last year.

In Philadelphia, while the retail prices of meats are 1 and 2 cents a pound lower, compared with last week's figures, dealers are optimistic and are laying in large supplies at the lower prices, in expectation of their shooting up again. Lamb chops are 5 cents a pound cheaper than last week, but 2 cents higher than on Monday last. Other food products show no change except dressed poultry, eggs, and potatoes, which are firmer.

Lower in Milwaukee.

In Milwaukee food products average from 10 to 20 per cent. below the prices of last Fall. A canvass of the principal provision houses of Detroit shows a marked reduction in prices within two months. In Toledo food products average from 10 to 15 per cent. lower than at this time last year.

In Columbus nearly all grades of meat were reduced yesterday from 2 to 3 cents a pound. Poultry was reduced 2 cents a pound and turkeys are quoted at 28 cents, as against 31 cents on Saturday. Pork is down 2 cents, and a further decline is predicted. In Mobile, Ala., smoked and cured meats were quoted yesterday a cent cheaper than on Monday. Beef and pork are lower on the New Orleans market than for many months. The price of beefsteaks has dropped from 2 to 3 cents a pound, and fresh pork is selling at a decline of 4 cents. Poultry and eggs are 5 cents lower than last year. Bay City, Mich., reports that the wholesale price of pork has dropped $1.50 a hundred in the last week, while beef is off 75 cents to $1.

Wholesale dealers in meats and pork products at New Haven, Conn., agreed that prices showed some recessions but that the reductions on cattle are slight. Neither Memphis nor San Francisco showed any reduction in prices, but at Seattle pork products have fallen a cent a pound and are expected to go lower.

The Canadian market has followed that of the United States in the declines in the prices of meats. This was indicated from reports from meat dealers at Montreal. Barrel pork has fallen from $33 to $26.50, hams have dropped from 22 cents a pound to 16 cents, and beef recently has declined more than a cent a pound.

MUNICIPAL REFORMER COMMENDS GAYNOR

"His Administration an Achievement of the Year," Secretary Woodruff Tells Leaguers.

CALLS RECORD REMARKABLE

As an Exposition of "New Municipal Idea"—Nomination and Convention Reforms Discussed and Approved.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Secretary Clinton Rogers Woodruff of Philadelphia submitted his report to-day at the sixteenth annual meeting of the National Municipal League, showing what had been accomplished by the league, and indicating also the progress of municipal reform all over the country. He commended highly the administration in New York under Mayor Gaynor and Borough President McAneny.

"It is interesting to note," Mr. Woodruff declared, "how generally Mayor Gaynor's work has been appreciated not only in his own State and city, but throughout the country. In fact, his administration is regarded generally as one of the important achievements of the year. He has proved an effective factor in raising municipal government to a high plane of consideration.

"He has lent the influence and dignity of his high office to a series of articles, letters, and published statements which have put the municipal problem effectively before great masses not only of New Yorkers but of his fellow-countrymen at large.

"The significance of this remarkable record lies, however, not only in its decrease in expenditures and increase in efficiency, but in the fact that it constitutes a concrete example of an advocate of the new municipal idea making good."

The best methods of conserving public interest in the granting of franchises, nomination and convention reforms, and municipal health and sanitation were among the subjects taken up to-day. Horace E. Deming of New York presided at a round-table discussion of nomination reform this afternoon.

Louis M. Greeley of Chicago spoke on "The Present Status of Direct Nominations." He reviewed in detail the progress of the movement in all States, and court decisions affecting direct nominations.

"The general result of recent experience," said he, "seems to show that where the voters are alert and interested the direct primary will accomplish the purpose for which it was intended—the democratization of nominations, the wresting of control of party nominations from the party boss or machine."

He pointed out other necessary reforms, including a substitute for the convention system and a short ballot.

"Admitting that the direct primary will only go a short way toward the reform necessary to purify our electoral system," Mr. Greeley continued, "admitting that the short ballot, the civil service reform, corrupt practices law, and the overhauling of our criminal laws and procedure, are reforms even more fundamental and important, it still remains true that direct primary is the initial reform, the first logical step in the path of progress."

Roger S. Childs of New York, Secretary of the Short Ballot Association, spoke on "The Principle of Wieldy Districts." The many phases of the franchise question were treated by Edgar N. Wrightington of Boston, Dugald C. Jackson of Boston, Paul Leake of Detroit, Stiles P. Jones of Minneapolis, J. W. S. Peters of Kansas City, and Dr. Delos F. Wilcox of New York.

FARM COURSE AT COLUMBIA.

Lectures on Practical Horticulture to be a Feature This Winter.

Farmers who may want to learn something new about fruits, soil, crops, bees, vegetables, dairies, horses, alfalfa, pigs, poultry, milk, and similar subjects will be able to obtain information from a course of sixteen lectures on Economic Agriculture, which will be given at Columbia University on Tuesday afternoons, beginning Nov. 29.

While dealing with the scientific aspects of the subjects announced in the course, the lectures, according to the announcement made yesterday, will be divested as much as possible of technicalities.

The course is intended to reach those engaged in farm operations or those who are interested in the agricultural problems of the country.

The lecturers in the course are men of scientific training, many of them owners of large farms, upon which the most advanced methods of farming and of horticultural work are being carried out. Others are in charge of work in the National or State Agricultural Departments.

The course will be given in Schermerhorn Hall, and a fee of $10 will be charged for the sixteen lectures. For single lectures a fee of $1 will be charged.

ARREST WOMAN IN FIFTH AVE.

A tall man, accompanied by two friends, all well dressed, approached Patrolman Albionio, in Fifth Avenue, near Forty-second Street, last night, and, pointing to a woman walking just ahead said:

"That woman robbed me."

The woman was dressed in a neat tailor-made brown suit, and wore a black hat, with feathers. The man said he was William Gates of 71 West 106th Street and in the "excavating shovel business."

At the East Fifty-first Street Station Gates said he met the woman last Sunday afternoon in Fifth Avenue, and after drinking with her missed his wallet containing $210.

The woman said she was May Wilson, a milliner, of 332 West Thirty-sixth Street. She protested her innocence and at times seemed on the verge of tears. She was locked up, as Gates persisted in making the charge.

William Gates, an engineer, is the Superintendent of the Grand Central Terminal Improvement Company.

ALDRICH MONEY BILL FOR THIS CONGRESS

Senator Believes It Would Be Wise to Start Discussion of It at Once.

PROBABLY A CENTRAL BANK

Great Changes in Our Financial System to be Proposed—Aldrich Seeks a New Washington Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—There is now a strong probability that a currency bill changing our whole financial system will be introduced at the coming session of Congress by Senator Aldrich or some other member of the Monetary Commission. The reorganization of our banking system has been the great ambition of the leader of the Senate for many years, and now that he has decided to retire on March 3 he is particularly anxious to set in motion the processes which he hopes will bring about the adoption of his ideas.

Mr. Aldrich has permitted his lease on the house he has occupied in Massachusetts Avenue to lapse and yesterday he was in Washington looking for a home for the coming Winter. It became known to-day that besides visiting several houses he also saw a number of prominent men and talked over with them plans for the coming session.

For two years Mr. Aldrich has been untiring in his efforts to arouse public interest in financial matters. He has been carrying on, with the aid of the National Monetary Commission, what he calls a campaign of education, and has spoken in various parts of the country on certain phases of the question. The present compromise currency law, which bears the names of Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Vreeland, has only about two years to run, and Mr. Aldrich wishes to begin to focus the educational work on his new plan. He would do this by introducing his bill at the coming session and attract the attention of the country by starting formal debate in both houses of Congress.

How far he expects to get with his bill by such tactics is problematical. A short session is notoriously a poor time for new legislation. Mr. Aldrich, however, realizes that this may be the last Republican Congress for some years to come, and while he has insisted over and over again that the currency question is non-partisan, it is only natural he should feel that he could impart to his favorite measure a greater momentum by launching it while his party is still in power than he could gain for it later from a Democratic House.

Mr. Aldrich's search for a house in Washington so near the end of his connection with the Senate suggests the possibility of his intention to retain his post as Chairman of the National Monetary Commission, and there have already been intimations of this sort. In that case he would naturally be often in the capital when the matter was pending before Congress.

What will be the form of the bill he will have introduced cannot be stated now. Mr. Aldrich undoubtedly is in favor of a central bank of issue. Some years ago he spoke in advocacy of that form of banking. Since the Monetary Commission was created he has taken the position that he had no definite plan, but that the commission was in search of a solution for our financial problems, but it is known he has not changed his mind. To his friends yesterday he gave the impression that many details are still to be worked out.

As to his loyalty to his ambition for establishing a central bank of issue and thereby becoming, as has been frequently said, "the second Alexander Hamilton," that was clearly apparent in the speech he delivered last Friday evening before the New York Academy of Political Science. He again declared that as yet the "commission has no plan," but he made plain that he felt the trend of the commission's studies had been toward the central bank.

"American capitalists, it is said," to quote from Mr. Aldrich's speech, "have undertaken to underwrite a loan to China for $50,000,000. Suppose we had an organization here that had the confidence and the strength which some of the institutions of England and France and Germany have—don't you believe that American credit in foreign countries would have stood higher than it does to-day?"

The reference there is undoubtedly to the Bank of France, the Bank of England, and the Imperial Bank of Germany. The inference can only be an argument in favor of a central bank for the United States.

In discussing the matter yesterday Mr. Aldrich argued for the immediate introduction of the bill, on the ground that the question is essentially non-partisan and that it was in nowise affected by the Republican reverses at the polls. This idea was also the burden of his New York speech, and those who have known him intimately and who understand how earnestly he desires to establish a new system, believe that in urging non-partisanship he is sincere.

TAFT DEFENDS BALLINGER.

Pinchot Told Cabinet Member Had Referred Coal Cases to the President.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The publication to-day of a letter written at President Taft's direction to Gifford Pinchot and his brother, Amos, discloses the fact that Secretary Ballinger long ago took the precaution to guard against such criticism as was directed against him by the Pinchots.

The deposed forester and his brother on Nov. 7 wrote the President expressing a fear that remarks by Mr. Ballinger might have an intimidating effect upon the subordinates in the Interior Department, to whom had been left the disposition of the Cunningham cases. They accordingly urged the President not to let any final action be taken without his knowledge, and pass favorably upon the claims until they could present a brief. This request the President grants.

The President, through his secretary, takes occasion, however, to defend his Cabinet officer. He recites that as long ago as last June, Secretary Ballinger asked him to take personal charge of the cases, and he has done so. The letter reads:

> Gentlemen: I am directed by the President to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of Nov. 7 and to reply as follows:
> On the 1st of June last the Secretary of the Interior invited the attention of the President to the Cunningham coal claims, consisting of thirty-three coal entries in the Juneau land district of Alaska of approximately 160 acres each, and suggested that in view of the unusual character of these claims and in view of the public interest relating to the disposition of these claims the President direct that no final action be taken by the General Land Office looking to the issuance of patents therein without first advising the President of the action contemplated.
> Under date of June 6, 1910, the President issued the direction recommended and on June 8, 1910, this order was communicated to the Commissioner of the General Land Office, and that official issued orders to his subordinates in accordance with this direction. The President further directs me to say that if you desire to submit a brief on the question of issuing these patents you may do so and forward the same to this office. He is not advised when the evidence will be submitted to him, but he thinks it would be well if your brief were presented before the first of December.
> Very truly yours,
> CHARLES D. NORTON,
> Secretary to the President.

Though the Norton letter does not mention it, a day before the Pinchot letter was published Mr. Ballinger permitted a section of his annual report to come out, and showed his intention to ask to have the disputed claims referred directly to the Court of Claims in order to relieve his department of the embarrassment of settling them.

Balloon is Still Missing.

ESSEN, Nov. 15.—There is still no trace of the missing balloon Saar, which disappeared soon after the start of a race from this place on Sunday. The second balloon which was missing, the Hessen, landed safely to-day in North Germany.

Twenty-two German torpedo boats and other war craft searched the North Sea in all directions yesterday and to-day. They gave up the search to-night.

There is a possibility that the Saar has been driven to Scandinavia. Lieut. Rommeler, Capt. Lange and a civilian, Herr Zimmermann, are on board the balloon.

HARD TO UNTANGLE ESTATE.

MacDonald Kept No Books, His Son-in-Law and Partner Declares.

Edmund K. Stallo filed yesterday with the Surrogate an inventory of the estate left by his father-in-law, Alexander McDonald, a Standard Oil Director, of Cincinnati, who died at Long Beach, Cal., last March, in his eighty-second year. Mr. Stallo's two daughters, Laura and Helena Stallo, the granddaughters and wards of Mr. McDonald, will inherit between them something over $1,500,000. The accounts are not thoroughly balanced, as the partnership accounts of the firm of McDonald and Stallo have not been settled. Mr. McDonald, though possessed of large means, kept no books and depended on his associates and those with whom he did business for a record of his dealings.

The inventory was filed at this time in compliance with an order from the Surrogate, application for which was made by Twombly, Putney & Twombly, lawyers, representing a claim of something over $2,000 against the McDonald estate. With the affairs of the firm of McDonald & Stallo not yet completely settled, Mr. McDonald's personal assets and liabilities are kept separate from those of his holdings in the firm. The firm, it would seem from the figures of the inventory, was insolvent by a slight margin, though the exact share of the estate in that liability is not yet determined. Mr. Stallo rather thinks there will be a small balance in his favor.

Should the balance be against the administrator, he declares, that he will promptly pay it, and in the other event, the solvency of the estate would not be affected anyway.

The chief interests of the firm was the plan to build, through the Alabama Securities Company, a railroad from Mobile to Chicago, a plan never carried to completion. So intimate was the relationship between the two men, Mr. Stallo explains, that there was never any effort to keep accurate partnership accounts, and that both he and Mr. McDonald had made advances at different times, depending solely on who had the cash on hand whenever there was a call for any.

Mr. McDonald's estate, during the latter years of his lifetime, was estimated variously between $15,000,000 and $30,000,000, and the two granddaughters were often referred to as among the greatest heiresses of the country. According to the inventory filed yesterday his assets, aside from his part in the firm, amounted at the time of his death to $2,035,138, of which $1,775,035 is in stocks. The bulk of this sum is the $1,488,000, which represents 2,400 shares of Standard Oil. The list of assets further includes bonds, $36,030; notes, accounnts receivable, cash, &c., $121,787; real estate, $35,620, and household goods, $66,666. The liabilities are estimated at $287,416.55, among which is an obligation of $1,722.50 to the Waldorf-Astoria.

The assets of the firm are placed at $2,447,471, and its liabilities are set down as $2,685,719, which includes nearly two million and a half owned to the Metropolitan Trust Company. Mr. Stallo explains that some of the valuations given are made of his personal knowledge, and where this was not possible the opinion of conservative experts was relied upon.

Much has been written and told of the Stallo heiresses, who are both under 20, and who have been brought up to love out of doors and to know and ride horses well. They have frequently stayed with their grandfather at the Waldorf, and only last Spring they were at the Plaza prior to sailing for study in Paris.

Edmund K. Stallo married Laura McDonald, and after her death he married Mrs. Dan Hanna, daughter-in-law of the late Senator Hanna. Last August he applied to the Surrogate for an increase in the allowance of his daughters.

Mr. McDonald came to this country in 1851 and settled in Cincinnati. He was a partner of John D. Rockefeller in the oil business and was President of the Standard Oil Company of Kentucky, Vice President of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, Director of the Big Four Railroad, of the Third National Bank, and of the Carnegie Trust Company.

ROBIN COOPER FREED.

Son of Carmack's Slayer Acquitted by Direction of the Court.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 15.—Robin J. Cooper, charged with the murder of former Senator Edward W. Carmack Nov. 9, 1908, was found not guilty in the Criminal Court this morning on recommendation of Attorney General A. B. Anderson. This action brought to a close one of the most celebrated court cases in the annals of Tennessee.

Attorney General Anderson stated that he would like to have a jury for the disposition of the case, and Jury 1 was called.

The Attorney General said: "This defendant and Col. Duncan B. Cooper and John Sharp were indicted jointly for the murder of Senator Carmack. The case resulted in the acquittal of Sharp. Col. Cooper and this defendant were found guilty of murder in the first degree. The Supreme Court affirmed the case of Col. Cooper, but as to this defendant there was a reversal."

Judge A. B. Neil then stated to the jury that in view of the statement of the Attorney General and in view of the fact that no further effort was being made to prosecute the case, the jury would return a verdict of not guilty, which was accordingly done.

Robin Cooper shot and killed ex-Senator Edward Ward Carmack in a street in Nashville as the outcome of scathing editorials against Col. Cooper in The Nashville Tennesssean, of which Carmack was editor. At the time of the shooting Carmack was talking to Mrs. Charles H. Eastman, when he was approached by Col. Cooper and his son.

Robin Cooper testified that he was shot twice in the shoulder before he opened fire on Senator Carmack. Both the Coopers were convicted and sentenced to twenty years' imprisonment each. The Supreme Court upheld the conviction of the father, but remanded the son's case for retrial on the ground of error by the trial Judge in failing to charge the jury separately as to Robin Cooper's plea of self-defense.

Gov. Patterson immediately pardoned Col. Cooper, with the result that he ended his own political career in the State.

SKIPPER'S WIFE A SAILOR TOO

She Took a Hand at the Pumps When the Schooner Began to Sink.

The crew of the three-masted schooner Lucy E. Friend, which was sunk off the Virginia coast on Monday morning, was brought into port yesterday on the Atlantic Fruit Company's steamship Livingstone. The members of the rescued crew were Capt. Frank E. Lowry, Byron Wallace, the steward, 70 years old, four negro seamen, and two animals. The skipper's wife was also aboard. Traddles, the ship's dog, and Booffles, Mrs. Lowry's pet cat, were brought along.

The schooner sailed from Newport News on Saturday night bound for Bridgeport, Conn., with a cargo of pig iron. She sprang a leak off the Virginia coast, near Winter Quarter Light on Sunday morning. The crew worked all day and that night at the pumps, at which Mrs. Lowry took her regular turn, but there was no saving the vessel.

A lot of pig iron stowed on deck was jettisoned, and the Captain's wife's hands bore the marks made by helping the crew in their efforts to save the ship. Two steamships passed the sinking schooner without stopping to offer aid, and when the Livingstone was sighted on Monday morning before daylight the Captain lit some tar barrels to attract her attention, and had the yawl lowered.

Mrs. Lowry and the four sailors got into it while the skipper and the seventy-year-old steward remained to keep the tar barrels blazing until the steamer signaled that she was coming to their aid.

HOUSE PAPER USED FOR PRIVATE SCHEME

Congressman Coudrey's Name Is Signed to Letter Offering a Fine Business Opportunity.

A BIG INSURANCE CONCERN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Use of the official letterhead of the House of Representatives to push a private financial scheme over the name of Representative Harry M. Coudrey of St. Louis has caused much talk here. Mr. Coudrey was defeated in the recent election. The following letter has been sent out:

> House of Representatives, Washington.
> Washington, D. C., Nov. 3, 1910.
> Harry M. Coudrey, Twelfth District, Missouri.
> Dear Madam: The purport of this letter is to state that I desire to take up with you an exceptionally fine business proposition, and make inquiry to learn if you care to have the facts placed before you.
> The foundation has been laid; also, the cornerstone, and the balance of the structure is to be composed of the persons of standing. To this end I have conferred with many people who are in a position to say who are desirable. You have been so recommended; therefore this letter of inquiry.
> The writer would greatly appreciate hearing from you. I am,
> In your reply please refer to Personal File "C."
> Yours sincerely,
> H. M. COUDREY.

Mr. Coudrey could not be located here to-night. He had not returned to his hotel up to midnight. "The business proposition," which he mentions under the official letterhead of the House of Representatives, probably is the same which he has been promoting here for several months, and the nature of which has been known in certain quarters heretofore. His enterprise is called "The Lincoln National Holding Corporation of America," which is advertised as having "proposed capital and surplus of $15,000,000."

The literature issued advertising this concern makes it appear to be an embryo insurance trust. The Lincoln Company declares a purpose of organizing and buying a controlling interest in many subordinate insurance companies, which "will handle ninety-four different kinds of insurance combinations."

The ninety-four kinds of insurance include everything, from life, fire, theft, hail, tornado, burglary, and lightning insurance to insurance for court bail bonds, gas explosions, team accidents, and registered mail. His circular also includes a little biography of Mr. Coudrey, which is described as "extract from the official Congressional directory." In his biography in this book are these sentences:

> Mr. Coudrey has excellent connections in the business world, being a member of the Merchants' Exchange, the Business Men's League, a Director of the Commonwealth Trust Company, a member of the Loyal Legion, a member of the St. Louis University, Noonday, Mercantile, Athletic, Glen Echo, and Field Clubs, Vice President of the Washington National Bank, President of the National Association of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, and a Director and Treasurer of the Universal Adding Machine Company. From 1897 to 1899 Mr. Coudrey was a member of the Municipal Assembly, where he won the commendation of the public by his vigorous opposition to all boodle measures.

Mr. Coudrey is also actively campaigning to sell stock in the Lincoln Company, and, judging from another letter circulated here, he probably wanted to sell stock to the "Dear Madam" mentioned. In this letter Coudrey offers a large commission to the person to whom it was addressed for selling the stock.

"It is our intention," he says, "to organize and buy control of insurance companies as fast as our stock is taken, so our stockholders' money will commence to earn dividends almost immediately, which we are permitted to do under our charter. This is an extraordinary opportunity; the size of the corporation, the character of the men behind it, and the well known enormous profits in the insurance business commend the stock to every one."

He proposes to sell the stock for $25 a share and pay $3.50 on each share as commission. The preliminary work in connection with the insurance business was done in Mr. Coudrey's office at the House of Representatives office building. Recently, however, he moved down town and has rented the entire third floor of the Westory Building, Fourteenth and F Streets.

MAY NOT LAUNDER OLD BILLS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The New York woman who washed and ironed a dollar bill to such good effect that a banker declared the note a counterfeit and sent it to the Secret Service here may be the cause of a change in the Treasury Department's desire to launder all the dirty paper money.

Chief John E. Wilkie to-day placed the laundered bill beside a new counterfeit of the same denomination and asked several persons to say which was the genuine. Each picked out the counterfeit as legal tender.

Washing a bill which has been worn at all makes the sharp lines of the engraving indistinct and gives to the note the appearance of a poor imitation.

MAINE INCREASES 47,905.

Population Is 742,371, an Increase of Only 6.9 Per Cent.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The population of the State of Maine is 742,371, according to the thirteenth census statistics made public to-day. This is an increase of 47,905, or 6.9 per cent., over 694,446 in 1900. The increase from 1890 to 1900 was 33,380, or 5 per cent.

Androscoggin, 59,822, compared with 54,242 in 1900.

HEINZE COPPERS AT AUCTION

Mercantile Bank Collateral Once Valued on Loan at a Million.

Among the advertised list of securities to be sold at auction to-day at the Vesey Street Salesroom are a batch of the stocks of the Heinze mining companies almost exactly corresponding in amount to the collateral put up by him while President of the Mercantile National Bank for the loan of $430,000 just before the collapse of the Heinze pool in United Copper on Oct. 15, 1907, and which started the panic in full swing.

The advertised securities are 40,000 shares of Ohio Copper, 28,128 shares of United Copper, and 18,700 shares of Davis-Daly Copper, "second assessment paid." When the Federal authorities were presenting their case for violation of the Federal banking laws to the Grand Jury last April the $430,000 loan and a loan of $500,000, made by Heinze to himself a few days previously, when his balance in the bank was only $7,917, were part of the strongest evidence the Federal attorneys had to offer. At that time Emil Klein testified that the collateral behind the $430,000 loan consisted of 40,000 shares of Ohio Copper, 20,000 shares of Davis-Daly, and 29,328 shares of United Copper, besides 200 shares of the stock of the State Savings Bank of Butte, Mon.

Cashier Klein estimated that the collateral was worth just before the slump of Oct. 15 $1,996,000 on a valuation of $50 for United Copper, $4 for Ohio, and $7 for Davis-Daly.

Davis-Daly, which has in the meantime paid an assessment of $1 a share, is now selling at 1⅞, Ohio Copper at the same price, and United Copper, which, under the Heinze manipulation in 1907 sold up to $70, is now selling at $6 a share. At present valuations on the Curb the shares to be offered at auction are worth less than $280,000. The Mercantile National Bank long ago charged off the Heinze loans, and whatever the shares net will be so much addition to the bank surplus. President Willis G. Nash refused over the telephone at his home in Yonkers last night to identify the securities as part of the Heinze loan. Neither would F. A. Heinze himself nor any one at the firm of Sullivan & Cromwell, who have represented the bank in its dealings with Heinze, discuss the matter.

FINANCING PITTSBURG STEEL

Speyer & Co. Take $7,000,000 7 Per Cent. Preferred Stock Issue.

New financing for the Pittsburg Steel Company was announced yesterday, when it was made known that Speyer & Co. had purchased $7,000,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. The company, which is a large manufacturer of wire in Pittsburg, had been capitalized at $6,000,000, and had a bonded indebtedness of $3,750,000 6 per cent. sinking fund bonds. The capital is now increased to $14,000,000, of which $7,000,000 is common and $7,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock. Besides the $7,000,000 preferred stock which Speyer & Co. have taken, the sale of the $1,000,000 additional preferred stock has already been provided for, the present owners of the property having subscribed for the full amount.

With the funds provided, the company will retire the $3,750,000 bonds due Jan. 1, 1911, and will be supplied with working capital for the introduction of further economies in manufacture. The present bondholders will be offered the privilege of exchanging their bonds for the new preferred stock at the Union Trust Company of Pittsburg. Application will be made to the Stock Exchange to list the preferred issue.

The Board of Directors will be increased to nine, and William H. Nichols, the Chairman of the General Chemical Company; William A. Nash, President of the Corn Exchange Bank, and Henry Ruhlender of Speyer & Co. will enter the Directorate. Speyer & Co. announced yesterday afternoon that the stock issue had been oversubscribed.

STEEL FOUNDRIES INCOME UP

Gross Earnings Large, but Somewhat Behind the Record of 1906-7.

The annual report of the American Steel Foundries Company for the year ended July 31, made public yesterday, contains besides the financial statements for the twelve-month period an audit covering operations for the past five years during which the present management has been in control.

Gross sales for the year were $17,173,740, and gross earnings from operations of plants and other incomes, after deducting costs and management, were $1,896,072. The net income applicable to surplus of $1,030,220 is the remainder after deducting all charges, including $1,199,983 for repairs and maintenance and $355,693 for depreciation of fixed properties and $162,570 for sinking fund.

From the sinking fund $138,500 of first mortgage bonds were bought and retired during the year, and the report states that with the annual instalment paid to the Trustee Oct. 1. there will have been retired to date $1,150,000 out of the original issue of $3,500,000.

The income statement covering five years shows that while the gross sales of $17,173,740 compare with only $7,138,008 last year, they are still below the record made in 1906-7 of $19,463,521.

A CITY BOND ISSUE SOON.

Financial District Expects It Will Be Put Out at 4½ Per Cent.

Although Controller Prendergast would not say more yesterday than that he is "anticipating a bond issue in the near future," Wall Street was much interested yesterday afternoon in the stories that the city officials are sounding banking sentiment on the market for a fifty-million-dollar issue of long-term bonds. The last issue was made last March, and bore 4¼ per cent. interest. At the sale the issue averaged 101¼, and in the market reached 101⅝, but they have since sold as low as 100.

Interest centres on the interest rate. Prices of high-grade bonds have declined since the 4¼ per cent. issue of last Spring, and the opinion was freely expressed yesterday that the issue, to be successful, would have to go back to the 4½ per cent. rate borne by the bonds put out in February, 1908. These bonds sold at an average of 104, and are now selling at 107.

When asked about the rumored sale Controller Prendergast said: "It is true that I am anticipating a bond issue in the near future. What the amount will be or what the rate will be have not yet been decided. That is all I can say about the matter at this time."

PLAN WOOD PULP INQUIRY.

Tariff Board Expects to Make a Clear Report to Taft.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Tariff Board has completed the schedules by which it hopes to determine the cost of production of pulp and paper in the United States. An elaborate system has been devised by which the investigators expect to obtain all the information necessary to make recommendations to President Taft for a possible revision of the duties on wood pulp and print paper.

Chairman H. C. Emery of the board said to-day that pulp and paper manufacturers were co-operating with agents in the field.

NEW BRANDS OF SWINDLERS.

Posing as Political Leaders, They Seek Subscriptions in Wall Street.

Wall Street has been more than ordinarily interested in politics this year, and it may have been the current stories of the Street's satisfaction in the turn of the State election which introduced new brands of swindlers to the brokerage houses this week. The Stock Exchange Detective Bureau was notified yesterday that a man had been soliciting subscriptions to a complimentary dinner to be given to himself as the Congressman-elect from the Eighth Congressional District, which includes the financial district.

A middle-aged, smooth-faced individual, dark and somewhat undersized, appeared at the office of Stoppani & Hotchkin of the Consolidated Exchange and introduced himself as Peter Justus Fogarty, Tammany leader of the district and the Congressman-elect. He got around too late to see the heads of the firm and was invited to call this morning. Col. Hotchkin knows enough about politics to have in mind that Daniel J. Riordan is the Congressman-elect and the Tammany leader downtown. "Congressman Fogarty" got no money, but he escaped arrest.

Fur Coats for Auto Comfort

For auto wear only—a specialization

Our auto furs are made for auto comfort. They are made for that one specific purpose, and, when completed, show a definite, accomplished end—the work of the specialist. Combined with comfort is auto style—which is a style unto itself.

Our furs for street wear have no place in this advertisement, for they have no constructive relationship to specialized auto furs. We build them along different lines—they are for walking comfort and street styles. They are made to combat the elements from a different angle—walking.

The auto furs sold here are made here — in our own workrooms on the premises. The raw skins are bought in distant fur markets and come to us direct—escaping the middleman.

We know the skins by personal inspection before manufacture; everything that goes into the garment is carefully selected—we know the "insides" just as thoroughly as we know the outside. We know every inch of its manufacture and we know just what we are talking about when we talk reliability.

Our assortment of strictly automobile furs is the largest in the world.

There may be larger assortments in general furs, but for specific auto furs, built for auto wear—and auto wear only—there is nothing in Europe as large as ours, and we have no serious competitors in this country.

Our prices are low because of the way we handle the proposition, from trapper to autoist. We save the fat profits of the middlemen, and are satisfied with a slender profit over cost.

Oriental and American Rugs

In a Decisive Stock Reduction Sale

WE have taken $57,000 worth of Rugs and practically cut the prices in two. The following is a limited number of items, giving one an idea of how the prices will prevail during the entire sale, and is applicable to practically every rug in stock.

27 Bales or Parcels Oriental Rugs, as they are called in the Orient.
This is the greatest collection that was ever imported by us. There is not an undesirable rug in the 27 bales. Every rug is practically indestructible because of the toughness of the yarn, in addition to the fact that it is dyed with a pure vegetable dye, and the rug is made by the nimble fingers of the Persian weavers. The fact that a vegetable dye has been used leaves the wool in the natural condition, not brittle like the rugs dyed with the mineral dye; consequently anybody securing one of these rugs will have a rug that will almost never wear out. $30 to $35 and even $40 is the asking price in regular rug shops for this weave. Sizes range from 3 to 4 ft. wide and from 6 to 7½ ft. long. Our price because of our tremendous reduction will be........ $18.75

Kirmanshah Rugs.
The Kirmanshah Rug is the art Rug of Persia. This weave has been patronized by the Shahs of Persia for years and years. It is difficult to reproduce these pastel shades of the Kirmanshah in almost everything, even the oils of the artist find it a difficult task.
We have two lots of our Kirmanshahs:
Lot No. 2—Size approximating 9½x12 up to 10x13, estimated worth $475. Sale price...... $295.00
Other and larger sizes up to $1,700.00.

Persian Serappi Rugs.
We believe we have more Persian Serappis than the combined stock of a half dozen Rug Shops; being direct importers and retailers we eliminate wholesale or so-called jobber's profits and are able to sell Ghorevan Rugs as follows:—
Lot No. 2, Sizes ranging from 9x12 to 10x13. Usually retailed at $185 to $225; sale price.......... $137.50

11 Bales of Baloochistan Rugs. Our customers who are familiar with Baloochistan Rugs know what a Baloochistan Rug is. The prevailing color is a subtle shade of red. The design is different to any other Rug brought from the Orient or in fact any other part of the world. The quality of yarn used intensifies the silkiness into an almost unbelievable sheen. The sizes range 2½ to 3 ft., 6 ft. 6 inches wide and 5 to 6½ ft. long; we have made two price lots; No. 1 smaller size.......... $7.50
No. 2 Largest and most beautiful, estimated worth $35, $36, $37; sale price.......... $22.50

150 Turkish Mats.........each $1.00

TOLSTOY IS BETTER; HIS WIFE WITH HIM

The Count Is Very Weak, but the Doctors Say There Is No Immediate Danger.

THERE HAD BEEN A QUARREL

TULA, Russia, Nov. 15.—Count Leo Tolstoy is suffering from bronchitis, and, owing to a high fever, is in an extremely weak condition. A message from his daughter Alexandra, who is nursing him at Astopova, giving this information, adds that the physicians say no immediate danger threatens.

Count Tolstoy suffered from a severe attack of bronchitis in the Winter of 1909, and as a result was readily susceptible to a recurrence of the disease when he exposed himself to a long journey in the cold and rain.

The home of the station master at Astopova is quite comfortable, and the patient is receiving skillful attention at the hands of Dr. Makovetsky and one other physician, in addition to the loving care of his daughter. Newspaper correspondents, who are gathering around the little flag station, however, although not aggressive in their attempts to obtain the latest details, are hampering the attendants, and Alexandra Tolstoy has issued a request that her father be left in peace.

According to the official diagnosis of the physicians, Tolstoy is suffering from a catarrhal inflamation of the lower lobe of the left lung. His heart action is good. The maximum temperature to-day was 102, falling at times to 99, which is practically normal; pulse 104, dropping to 90; respiration fair. The physicians add that expectoration and diuresis are sufficient, and that the patient has enjoyed tranquil sleep, 's in good spirits, and is resting quietly.

Altogether, this is considered a very satisfactory report, particularly in view of the high temperature which was maintained yesterday, and the symptoms of mental distress which Count Tolstoy was said to have developed.

Countess Sophia Tolstoy, after the first shock caused by her husband's sudden abandonment of his home and family, displayed astonishing energy this morning, and insisted upon being taken to the Count. Accompanied by her sons and Count Vladimir Tchertkoff, who was formerly Tolstoy's representative in England, she proceeded to Astopova by special train.

The illness of the great author brought about a reconciliation between the Countess and Count Tchertkoff, whose embittered feelings in recent months caused Tolstoy much anguish. Count Tchertkoff was summoned by telegraph to Yasnaya Polyana, where he joined the Countess and her sons. Tolstoy himself in a letter had expressed a particular desire for Tchertkoff's presence.

The differences between the Countess and Tchertkoff arose over Tolstoy's literary legacy. Tchertkoff had collected a large quantity of unpublished material—copies of "Hadji Murat," Tolstoy's latest work, and other stories, as well as various documents—which he has been forwarding for safekeeping to England. These he intended to offer for free publication, in pursuance of the author's wishes. Countess Tolstoy, on behalf of the family, insisted that Tolstoy should procure copyright for all his publications, the returns from which would serve to aid his very numerous family instead of filling the pockets of the publishers.

Three months ago, when an administrative order expelling Tchertkoff from Tula Province was repealed he visited Yasnaya Polyana, but departed hurriedly, as the Countess had peremptorily forbidden him access to the grounds. Tolstoy thereupon visited Tchertkoff on his estate, three miles away, in Moscow Province, in spite of the attempts of the Countess to dissuade him.

Serious family misunderstandings arose, and in consequence recent visitors to Yasnaya Polyana remarked clouds over the customary serenity of the place. The health of the Countess suffered seriously, and a professor of nervous diseases from Moscow visited her several times prior to Tolstoy's pilgrimage.

To-day the Countess, who had been in a very serious condition, astonished her physicians by rallying and demanding that she be taken to her husband. She would not listen to objections and became so insistent that arrangements to remove her to Astopova were made. Earlier in the day the Countess had received the last sacrament. When her husband disappeared last Thursday she attempted suicide. Since then one nervous crisis after another had followed. For four days she had not touched food

The Countess exhibited marked improvement to-day after the receipt of a touching letter from her husband. It was written at Shamardino after the Count had learned from his daughter Alexandra of her mother's distress.

Those in close touch with the author say that Tolstoy felt the approach of death and that his disappearance from home was influenced by a desire to spare his family pain and the complications that might ensue regarding his funeral because of his excommunication from the Greek Church.

Prince Obedenski, who first gave to the world the news that the Count had abandoned his home secretly to seek solitude, pointed out to-day that Tolstoy was always deeply interested in the legend of Alexander I., who, it is said, did not die when he was supposed to have done so, but passed many years as a hermit in Siberia under the name of Kusmitch.

KLUGMAN CAUGHT IN LONDON

Alleged Forger Held There Until the New York Police Can Get Him.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—Morris Klugman was arrested here to-day and remanded in the Bow Street Police Court charged with having committed forgery in New York City.

Klugman was a bookkeeper for Goldstein Brothers, cloak manufacturers, at 23 East Twenty-first Street. He was indicted after disappearing last June for appropriating to his own use $5,000 of the firm's money. An examination of his books revealed, according to the indictment, that he had indorsed and cashed checks sent in by customers and manipulated the books to hide his defalcations. Detective Frank Price will sail for London to bring him back.

Morocco to Pay Spain $13,000,000.

MADRID, Nov. 15.—Morocco has agreed to pay $13,000,000, the indemnity demanded by the Spanish Government following the successful Spanish campaign against the Riff tribesmen in the Summer of 1909.

False Fire Alarms Downtown.

Between 3:27 and 4:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon three false alarms were sent in from broken signal boxes in the Broad Exchange Building, 25 Broad Street; the United States Realty Building, at Trinity Place, and the Singer Building. Each brought out four engine companies, two hook and ladder companies, Deputy Chief Binns, and two Battalion Chiefs. The police think all three false alarms were sent in by the same person.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

MELBOURNE, Nov. 15.—The Commonwealth Government to-day decided not to accept the Canadian Government's proposal to renew the Vancouver-Australia mail service with calls at Auckland and Sydney only.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A dispatch from Shanghai states that twenty-three persons have been killed by an explosion in a cartridge factory at Pao-Ting.

OUR SHIPS REACH EUROPE.

Three Divisions of Atlantic Fleet at French and English Ports.

TORQUAY, Nov. 15.—The first division of the American Atlantic battleship fleet of sixteen vessels that will make a two months' visiting cruise of French and English ports on the English Channel arrived off Tor Bay to-day and anchored five miles from Torquay.

It is expected that the division will proceed to Portland Harbor to-morrow. It consists of the flagship Connecticut, (Rear Admiral Schroeder, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet,) the Delaware, the Michigan, and the North Dakota.

CHERBOURG, Nov. 15.—The battleships Louisiana, Kansas, New Hampshire, and South Carolina, forming the second division of the American Atlantic Fleet, arrived here to-day. As the vessels steamed into the harbor they exchanged salutes with the land batteries.

The construction of the visiting battleships is observed with interest in France's great naval port. Their masts especially are objects of comment.

The American officers report a rough voyage from Norfolk, but all are well on board. The commanders and the French authorities will exchange official visits to-morrow. Receptions for the officers and entertainments for the men are also being planned.

The families of many of the officers arrived to-day on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse from New York.

The battleships were visited this afternoon by Commander Chapin, American Naval Attaché at Paris, and by Octave Canuet, American Consular Agent at this port.

BREST, Nov. 15.—The fourth division of the American battleship fleet, comprising the Georgia, Nebraska, Rhode Island, and Virginia, arrived here to-day. As the squadron entered the roadstead salutes were exchanged.

The municipality has arranged a series of receptions for the officers. Special trains will take the bluejackets to Paris in groups of 1,000.

SEINE KEEPS ON RISING.

Riverside Dwellers in and Near Paris Fear Another Disaster.

PARIS, Nov. 15.—The Seine rose at the rate of half a centimeter (nearly a fifth of an inch) an hour to-day.

The official statement that the maximum flood will be reached next Thursday has not reassured the riverside dwellers in this city and in the suburbs, who see the waters advancing slowly in the streets bordering the stream, and fear another disaster.

The return of flood conditions has convinced the Government that the raising of the parapets is but a makeshift measure, and accordingly it will push the big project of a canal to divert the waters in time of flood.

The construction of this canal will be a matter of years.

THE JAPANESE BUDGET.

TOKIO, Nov. 15.—Roughly stated, the budget for 1911-12 shows the following amounts in yen, one yen being equivalent to about 50 cents in American money.

Receipts—Ordinary, 491,000,000; extraordinary, 51,000,000.

Expenditures—Ordinary, 408,000,000; extraordinary, 134,000,000.

Appropriations by Departments—Civil list, 4,500,000; foreign, 4,000,000; home, 23,700,000; finance, 211,200,000; war, 98,300,000; navy, 86,100,000; judicial, 12,700,000; education, 8,700,000; agriculture and commerce, 14,900,000, and communications, 77,600,000.

New Work for Frederick D. Greene.

Frederick D. Greene, for five years assistant general agent of the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, has resigned to become general agent of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association in the United Charities Building. He will take the place of Frederick F. Cook, who has acted in this capacity for twenty-eight years, and who was made Honorary General Agent. The Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, so named because it originally only sought collections on the last Sunday in the year and the Saturday preceding, now maintains a continuous activity and collects about $90,000 annually, which is distributed among about forty-five of the leading hospitals of the city.

The managers declare that there is urgent need for a large increase in gifts, which may be sent to Charles Lanier, Treasurer, 59 Cedar Street, New York.

FOR THE TABLE.

The express strike has had a direct effect in increasing prices on perishable foods. White leghorn eggs, considered the most delicate and best morning breakfast eggs, were selling yesterday for 75 cents a dozen. Fresh eggs where the breed of the hens is not considered are selling for 55 and 65 cents.

Individual egg cozies, to keep the breakfast egg warm and in the most expensive breed, the white leghorn, cost 15 cents for the cock and 10 cents for the hen. They are the heads of the animals made of white flannel with bright red flannel combs, and are slipped over the egg while the consumer is finishing his bath.

One can find quail for 85 cents, partridges for $5.50, ruddy ducks, $4.50, and other ducks $3.

Preserved ginger, a dutch variety put up in pretty little pottery jars with gayly colored Dutch figures upon them, are 65 cents a jar.

There are dainty little women gowned in delicate muslin and silk who serve for tea cozies and they may be had as low as $4. A really beautiful one, an exquisite Parisian of olden times in bouffante skirts, will cost as high as $15.

A Turkish red fez with a black cat, in fighting trim on the top, is also a tea cozy, and in a small size, large enough for an ordinary teapot, costs 85 cents and larger size $1.25.

ACTION BY TORIES DELAYS THE CRISIS

KING GEORGE TAKING A HAND

General Election Before Christmas Regarded as Certainty—Asquith to Make Statement To-morrow.

LONDON, Nov. 15.—A general election before Christmas is a practical certainty, but the steps whereby this will be brought about are still unknown. The King is evidently taking an active part in affairs, and his Majesty's influence may have an important bearing on the situation.

Parliament reassembled to-day, but the political crisis has been postponed until Friday. This is believed to be due to a clever move on the part of the Opposition. When the House of Lords assembled this afternoon the Marquis of Lansdowne, the leader of the Opposition, played a card which may possibly be the prelude to a highly interesting development in the political game. He would to-morrow, he said, move "that this House invites his Majesty's Government to submit to its consideration the terms of the Parliament bill." This is the official designation of the Veto bill, which is the centre of all the trouble.

The Earl of Crewe, Liberal leader in the Upper House, replied that he hoped to be in a position to-morrow to state the Government's intentions with regard to the Parliament bill.

It is understood to-night that the Government will accede to Lord Lansdowne's demand on condition that no dilatory tactics are employed for the mere purpose of gaining time. As it cannot be supposed that the Lords will accept the Veto bill, this move is not likely to have much effect for long on the situation. It is, however, regarded as an astute piece of strategy.

When the House of Commons met to-day an adjournment until Friday was taken at the request of Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George, who said that circumstances had arisen "which in the judgment of the Government render it undesirable to proceed with the business set down for to-day." He added that Premier Asquith would be in a position on Friday to make a statement of the Government's plans.

The House was crowded to its capacity and nervous tension was noticeable during the preliminaries. These over, the Chancellor at once sought and obtained a postponement of the crisis.

The delay in the presentation of Premier Asquith's official statement until Friday was made in deference to the convenience of Mr. Balfour, who has an engagement to address an important political meeting at Nottingham on Thursday.

An indication of the Unionist policy comes with the publication of the resolutions which Austen Chamberlain, after consultation with Mr. Balfour and Lord Lansdowne, has decided to submit to the Unionist Conference at Glasgow on Nov. 25. These resolutions concede that the possession of a peerage should no longer of itself give the right to sit in the House of Lords, and welcome any reasonable proposals which will increase the efficiency of the House of Lords by the addition of life pers or representatives elected for a term of years from those outside the peerage. At the same time, the resolutions maintain that when the two Houses disagree on vital issues it is the people who alone have the right to decide between them.

All sorts of rumors are afloat. The Globe this evening gave currency to a report that Mr. Asquith was considering the resignation of the Cabinet because the King had refused the guarantees sought by the Premier.

By Friday the Premier will have seen King George and laid before his Majesty the decisions reached by the Cabinet at to-day's session, which was unusually prolonged.

Lord Lansdowne this afternoon took occasion to deny the report that the Constitutional Conference broke down because the peers would not allow Mr. Balfour to accept certain terms. He said there had been no consultation whatever with the peers regarding the terms proposed at the conference, and he intimated that although the conference did not reach a definite agreement, other and more successful conferences might be possible.

THINK GRIEF KILLED HIM.

Ex-Policeman Dies Soon After His Sister Was Burned to Death.

Grief over the death of his sister, who was fatally burned last Saturday, is believed to have killed Michael J. Boyle, 60 years old, of 54 Underhill Avenue, Brooklyn. He came home from the funeral of his sister on Monday afternoon and complained of feeling ill. He retired shortly before midnight, and about 4 o'clock yesterday morning his condition alarmed relatives, who stayed at his home for the night. They sent a call for a physician, but by the time he arrived Boyle was dead.

Boyle was an ex-policeman. He and his sister Anna, 63 years old, both of whom were unmarried, lived at the Underhill Avenue address. Last Saturday the woman's clothes caught fire from the explosion of a lamp. Boyle tried to smother the flames by throwing bed clothes over her. They caught fire, too, and Boyle tried to stamp the fire out. His age was against him and his strength gave out in the attempt. He finally ran to a window and yelled for help. By the time assistance arrived the woman was burned to death and Boyle was found helpless on the floor in another room. He was burned on the neck, face, and arms from the burning clothes of his sister. He received medical attendance immediately, and on Monday appeared well enough to attend his sister's funeral.

This marvellous increase in the demand for Smith Gray & Co. overcoats—quadruple that of any previous corresponding season in all the years Smith Gray & Co. have been synonymous with standard in fine overcoat construction is your assurance of absolute correctness of style—that the assortment is wider, that the quality is higher and that the values are greater.

The assortment comprises some 30 distinctive models for every conceivable service—all from the choicest and most exclusive fabrics from the world's best mills at prices ranging from $18 to $75.

Great, big, loose, warmth without weight Motor Coats—coats that have kept our tailoring plant working day and night to supply the demand—warmer and lighter than a fur coat; can be worn to business, suitable for any service; are storm and weather proof, stylish and comfortable; made from softest, lightest Irish frieze, meltons, fancy vicunas and chinchillas, in smart colorings of grey, browns and olives—also blacks and Oxfords; full lined and half lined with lightweight extra warm camels hair (an exclusive Smith Gray & Co. feature). The ideal overcoat for motor, storm, travel and driving service £32.50 to $45.00

Finest vicuna, melton and kersey overcoats, lined with finest silk, tailored exactly the same as finest custom garments; decidedly dressy garments, cut on exclusive Smith Gray & Co. models—garments that represent unusual values at $45.00, $50.00 and $55.00; because the fabrics came to us underpriced and the tailoring was done in our dull season they are $37.50

The most remarkable Overcoat values that New York has known for many a season are the $15.50 and $18.50 Smith Gray & Co. Overcoats. They represent a saving to every man of $4.50 to $11.50. Included are garments of every description—black, Oxfords, greys of every shade, new browns and tans—there are every new stripe or wale weave in every new conceivable design; there are models for men, young men and boys; full box, semi-box, tourists and convertible collar models, in every length from 45 inches to 52 inches.

These garments result from various sources; these unusual prices are largely because of the fact that while the assortment is large, they are to be had in only 3, 4 and 5 of a kind—but the prices instead of $20.00 to $30.00 are $15.50 and $18.50

There are also many very handsome overcoats that we have specially priced—$22.50 and $27.50.

They include garments of nearly every conceivable model and fabric, and represent a far greater money worth than indicated by the price, which is now $22.50 & $27.50

M'DONALD OPPOSES TRIBOROUGH ROUTE

FAVORS SEVENTH AVE. LINE

That with a Tube in Third Avenue Connecting with the Bridges Would Best Serve the Public, He Says.

John B. McDonald, the contractor who built the present Subway, has sent a letter to the Chamber of Commerce, upholding its objections to the proposed triborough route, and strongly favoring the suggested extensions of the Interborough system south from Times Square under Seventh Avenue and north from Forty-second Street under Lexington Avenue. Mr. McDonald says that he does not believe the construction of the Triborough route would be for the best interests of the city on account of its great cost and the indefinite provisions for its equipment and operation.

In his letter he lays great stress upon the need for better transit facilities on the east side and suggests the construction of an entirely new route to run from the Harlem River south under Third Avenue, the Bowery, and Park Row to City Hall, and from there under William Street to Old Slip, and thence by tunnel to Brooklyn, with a branch to diverge at Third Avenue and Stuyvesant Place, and to run through Astor Place and down Broadway to the Battery. This branch is to have a two-track extension running south under Vesey and Church Streets. Here is Mr. McDonald's letter:

> Gentlemen: As a member of the Chamber of Commerce, I have been consulted regarding the future development of the rapid transit lines of the City of New York, and as I am not now officially connected in any way with any of the prominent transportation companies, I feel at liberty to submit my views upon this question. I have, as you know, given the subject of rapid transit development in Greater New York a great deal of study, and I have but one desire, and that is to see a wholesome, competitive, well-organized and well-managed development in the greater city.
> The densest population requiring the greatest solicitude is that population lying to the easterly side of the city, and their greatest need is quick transit throughout that section, and also to the Bronx and to Brooklyn. The general improvement in the whole condition of life on the east side cannot be estimated if the transportation development there takes place which the situation warrants.
> I desire first to say that I am not in favor of the present triborough route or plans because of the great cost and because of the indefinite provision for equipment and operation. The cost of construction alone is very indefinite and the time of completion remote.
> Secondly, from my study of the question and from my experience as the contractor for the original Subway, and from my observations made since that time, I am in favor of the city making extensions to the present Subway so that it may have an east and west side line on the most direct routes, as was contemplated by the city and the contractor and his associates during construction. By this I mean the much-needed line down Seventh Avenue affording facilities to traffic at Times Square, Herald Square, and Pennsylvania Station, and to the Bronx on the Lexington Avenue route.
> However, long before these extensions can be completed, the necessity for more adequate rapid transit facilities will confront the City of New York; in fact that is plainly to be seen now. I therefore, submit the following suggestion:
> There should be constructed a line from Harlem River south through Third Avenue; a subway with six tracks—four express tracks and two local—to Stuyvesant and Astor Place, with four tracks from that point continuing down the Bowery to City Hall, with two tracks from that point continuing through William Street to Old Slip, and thence under the East River to Montague Street in Brooklyn, and to be extended to whatever point or points in Brooklyn which may require transportation facilities; four tracks diverging at Third Avenue and Stuyvesant Place, through Astor Place, down Broadway to City Hall; thence to the Battery, with two tracks by way of Vesey Street and Church Street, and the northern extension passing under the Harlem River with four tracks may be extended upon any of the routes adopted by the commission.
> Under reasonable modification of the present contract requirements I believe this system would be very attractive to private capital. This route would furnish ample facilities for traveling from Brooklyn to Manhattan. It would in effect reach all of the bridges as well as furnish convenient travel from the Bronx to Manhattan. It would serve the vast and increasing population of the east side, and it would tend to improve the conditions of life in that section to a marked degree. Yours respectfully,
> JOHN B. McDONALD.

The letter has been referred to the chamber's Special Committee on Transit and will probably be transmitted by it to the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission.

GERMAN LLOYD CHANGES.

Oelrichs & Co. Still the Agents of the Steamship Line.

This statement was given out yesterday by Oelrichs & Co. in reply to the reports published in yesterday's TIMES regarding changes in the management of the American agency of the North German Lloyd Company:

> Certain rumors have appeared in the press regarding the relations of our firm with the North German Lloyd in Bremen. The firm has been since 1861, and continues to be, the agents of the North German Lloyd in this city. No change has been made in those relations, and no change has been made or is in contemplation as regards the membership of the firm. Certain changes recently made in the internal management of the office, which are of no interest to the general public, may have given rise to the unfounded rumors prevailing.

Charles von Helmolt, the new general passenger manager of the North German Lloyd, arrived here from Bremen in September. It is understood now that he came with full power to reorganize the business in this country and has reached a satisfactory agreement to that end with Oelrichs & Co.

HITS ROCKEFELLER CHARTER

Schurman Objects to Self-Perpetuating Trustees to Administer Gift.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—While applauding the spirit that prompted John D. Rockefeller to ask Congress to incorporate the Rockefeller Foundation, Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, to-day delivered a powerful phillipic against the provisions of the proposed charter that would permit such an aggregation of wealth to be used for the uplifting of the human race, the relief of suffering, and the education of the masses. His attack was delivered before the delegates to the National Association of State Universities in session here.

Dr. Schurman's attack practically was directed entirely at the proposal to leave the administration of the vast fund in the hands of a self-perpetuating Board of Trustees. He pointed out the evils that, he said, might arise under such a system of administration, although such evils need not be feared during the lifetime of the donor. The indefiniteness of the proposed charter, he added, was another serious drawback to the acceptance of its provisions.

He advocated the formation of a Board of Trustees on the plan of that governing the affairs of the Smithsonian Institution. Such a plan, he declared, would overcome much of his objection, and, in his opinion, safeguard the fund and prevent its misapplication.

MRS. LADENBURG'S APPEAL.

Special to The New York Times.

MINEOLA, L. I., Nov. 15.—Mrs. Emily Ladenburg filed application at the court house here to-day for permission to use from $10,000 to $17,000 a year for the education of her sixteen-year-old daughter, Eugenia Marie Ladenburg, in this country and abroad for the next few years, the money to be taken from an income of $21,000 a year settled upon her by her father, who specified that it was to be drawn when she is of age.

The father, Adolf Ladenburg, was supposed to have been lost at sea from a vessel plying between New York and Bermuda many years ago. About six years ago a sensation was caused when the girl was held up while riding on the Hempstead Plains, supposedly by kidnappers, but more probably by robbers. She dug her heels into her horse and escaped. Mrs. Ladenburg, her mother, is one of the foremost huntswomen of America.

Owing to a technical flaw in the drawing up of the application the papers were returned to Mrs. Ladenburg's lawyers. The Surrogate will probably make an allowance, although possibly not the sum requested.

GENERAL MOTORS NEW BOARD

Note Issue Taken by Bankers Provides for All Matured Debts.

Final arrangements for the future of the General Motors Company, which controls several automobile manufacturing concerns, came with the announcement yesterday that its debts and the debts of its subsidiary companies had been covered by the flotation of a note issue through a banking syndicate headed by J. & W. Seligman & Co. of this city and Lee, Higginson & Co. of Boston, and that checks for payment of all matured debts of the concern were in process of being mailed.

Announcement was also made of a meeting at which, with one exception, the old Directors of the company had failed of re-election, and new ones had taken their places, all of them with the approval of representatives of the banking interests interested. The only Director who was re-elected was William C. Durand, Vice President of the company.

It is regarded as significant that Anthony N. Brady, known as an Albany traction and Chicago gas investor, is mentioned second in the list of new Directors. He is interested with members of J. Pierpont Morgan's firm in the United States Motors Company, which has hitherto been regarded as the principal rival of the General Motors Company. Mr. Brady's interests in the United States Motors Company, together with his partners, is regarded as practically controlling, and his appointment yesterday set going anew the old rumor that there was to be a great merger of automobile manufacturing interests.

To provide for the repayment of the advances by the bankers the company has issued $15,000,000 of 5 per cent. five-year sinking fund notes out of a total authorized issue of $20,000,000. These are secured by first lien upon the manufacturing plants controlled to the Central Trust Company of New York as trustee. The deed of trust provides for a sinking fund payable in yearly installments.

With the exception of William C. Durand all the Directors elected yesterday were new to the company, and none of the old Directors was retained. The statement given out by the company says that the new Directors were approved by the Voting Trustees, who represent the banking interests which floated the recent note issue. Following is the list of Directors elected at yesterday's meeting: William C. Durand, Anthony N. Brady, James J. Starrow, Albert Strauss, J. H. McClennent, Nicholas L. Tilney, Richard Lukenan, Jr., Benjamin F. McGuckin, H. L. Carlebach, and R. P. Bush, Jr.

LINER COMING IN UNDER SAIL

Hamburg-American Freighter Cheruskia Lost Her Propeller on Oct. 28.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15. — The Hamburg-American freight steamer Cheruskia is creeping along under sail about 600 miles east of the Bermudas with her propeller gone. She was on her way from the Persian Gulf, bound for New York, when the accident happened.

The Cheruskia was spoken by the United States steamship Wheeling on Nov. 11 about 745 miles east of the Bermudas. She reported that she had lost her propeller Oct. 28 and had been making about fourteen miles daily under sail, trying to cross the track of the Hamburg-American steamers running from Europe to St. Thomas.

The Wheeling, owing to her small size and scant coal supply, was unable to tow the big liner, which already had broken all of her large hawsers in the effort to take a tow from a British steamer nine days previously.

The Navy Department has reported the facts to the Hamburg-American Steamship offices in New York.

Emil Boas, resident director of the Hamburg-American Line, said last night that no steps had been taken to assist the Cheruskia, as she was in no danger.

COMMISSION FOR WATTERSON

KINGSTON, N. Y., Nov. 15. — County Judge Cantine appointed to-day a commission composed of ex-District Attorney Frederick Stephan, Dr. Daniel Connelly, and Leon J. Quick, an editor, to inquire into the sanity of Ewing Watterson, son of Col. Henry Watterson.

Young Watterson has interposed an insanity plea to his indictment for assault in the first degree for shooting Michael J. Martin, a Saugerties saloon keeper, last August.

The commission will hold its first hearing Nov. 30.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The temperature in the greater portion of the United States was below normal Tuesday night, but no unusually low readings were found in any section. Rain had developed in the West Gulf States, and rain or snow continued in Colorado. Elsewhere in the United States much cloudiness prevailed, but beyond some snow flurries in the lake region the weather was fair. Rain will spread eastward into the East Gulf States Wednesday, and into the South Atlantic States Thursday.

Winds along the New England Coast will be brisk west; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate west; South Atlantic Coast, moderate northwest.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have brisk westerly winds and generally fair weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, New England, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Generally fair Wednesday and Thursday; not much change in temperature; moderate to brisk west to northwest winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

3 A. M.	48	35	4 P. M.	57	40
6 A. M.	48	34	6 P. M.	55	39
9 A. M.	49	36	9 P. M.	52	37
12 M.	52	40	12 P. M.	52	36

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 38; for the corresponding date last year it was 52; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 44.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 34; at 8 P. M. it was 38. Maximum temperature, 43 degrees at 2:30 P. M.; minimum, 34 degrees at 5 A. M. Humidity, 86 per cent. at 8 A. M. and 58 Per cent. at 8 P. M.

MONITOR CRIPPLED IN EXPLOSION TEST

EFFECT SURPRISES EXPERTS

Special to The New York Times.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 15.—If the armor plate on the ships of the United States fleet is similar to that used in the construction of the monitor Puritan, it is not proof against an explosion of gelatine-glycerine, even when the explosive is unconfined. This was demonstrated to-day, when, under a test arranged by the Navy Department, the monitor was badly damaged and left in a sinking condition after two explosions.

The test took place in Hampton Roads, off the mouth of what is known as Tanner's Creek, and was witnessed by a number of naval and army officers.

Capt. Austin M. Knight, President of the special board of naval ordnance, conducted the experiments.

The two charges of 200 pounds each were exploded by electric wires. In the first test the armor of the aft turret was wrecked. The second test was made on the side of the monitor, aft at the water line, and stove it in. Leaks developed at once, and one compartment was flooded. The stern of the monitor immediately settled to the bottom, one foot below her draught.

The amount of damage done by the explosions surprised the officers. They expected to see only minor damage, and some seemed to think that the paint on the ship would hardly be injured. The concussions were heard for miles, and shook buildings in the neighborhood. It was the opinion of those who witnessed them that, had the explosive been confined, it would have reduced the monitor to scrap iron. Capt. Knight said the second explosion was very severe, and he expected the damage to be even greater.

A number of navy tugs, the monitor Tallahassee, and small boats stood off about 600 yards during the explosions. The officers who witnessed the tests were Rear Admiral N. E. Mason, Chief of the Bureau of Ordnance of the Navy; Chief Constructor R. M. Watt, Brig. Gen. Arthur Murray, Chief of the Coast Artillery; Major Edward P. O'Hearn of the Ordnance Department of the Navy, and several powder experts.

Immediately after the last test the navy tugs and the Tallahassee went to the side of the crippled monitor and pumps were used to keep her afloat. She will be brought to the Navy Yard as quickly as possible for an examination as to the damage done below the water line. It is expected that the monitor will be repaired and later used for other tests.

Several live chickens and a cat were placed in the turret first exposed to the explosive to determine to what extent the concussion would be dangerous to life. All were found alive.

The new explosive is the invention of Willard S. Isham, who was present at the tests. It is composed of ninety-two parts nitro-glycerine, seven parts guncotton, and one part marble dust. It forms a gelatinous substance. He claims it is far more powerful and more destructive than the present form of explosive.

The naval experts present claim that in spite of the damage done a modern 12-inch shell would have done more harm. It was also pointed out that the Puritan is an old vessel, that her armor plate is not as strong as that of a modern battleship; that there was no locking, and that both tests were made against perpendicular surfaces with no slant.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The department has not yet received a report of the test on the Puritan, but discussing the question unofficially officers admitted that the disabling of the ship supported the claims of the inventors of the gelatine. The problem which now presents itself, they added, was by what means could a similar unconfined charge be placed and exploded along the side of a ship in time of war. Some officers intimated that the airship might be utilized for dropping the explosive on a battleship, although they emphasized the fact that an aerial craft would have to be at least 5,000 feet above a vessel to be outside the range of its guns, and at this great height the warship, notwithstanding its massive proportions, would present a small target.

The test was held in accordance with a provision of the Naval Appropriation bill, which stipulated that the $100,000 appropriated for ordnance experiments would not be available unless experiments were held to show the effect of the explosion of at least 200 pounds of unconfined explosive gelatine against the belt and turret armor of a war vessel.

STOVER SLICING OFF A RIVERSIDE HOUSE

Park Commissioner Begins the Work of Cutting Down Encroachments on City Ground.

FIVE HOMES ARE INVOLVED

Park Commissioner Stover began to pull down the front of 102 Riverside Drive yesterday on account of its encroachment on park property, and thus a controversy which has been before the courts for eleven years has entered on its last stage. In addition to 102, slices must be cut from 103, 104, 105, and 107, but in these cases the owners of the buildings have consented to undertake the work themselves.

These changes have been brought about through the claim of Mrs. Charlotte V. Ackerman of 331 West Eighty-second Street that the Park Board had granted illegal permission to the owner of the plot just north of her own at West Eighty-second Street and Riverside Drive to build out a row of six five-story buildings, so as to encroach from three to four feet on Riverside Drive, whereby her view was spoiled and her light and access to her house were impaired.

She bought the corner lot on Nov. 15, 1898, and soon afterward the encroachment began. She brought suit against Clarence F. True, whom she believed to be the owner of the houses in question, eleven years ago, but met with many obstacles through the difficulty of discovering who was the legal owner of the houses she wished to have altered. The lots were conveyed many times and the allegation has been made that these transfers were made with the deliberate intention of impeding Mrs. Ackerman.

Thus Edwin L. Kalish of Lindsay, Kalish & Palmer, 27 William Street, Mrs. Ackerman's attorney, in an affidavit which he made in connection with a motion made by Mrs. Bates, the present owner of one of the houses, to be made a party to the action, says:

> There have been many conveyances of Mrs. Bates's parcels; several of the parties evidently were creatures of True in the procession of changing owners; and others were relatives of Mrs. Bates, none of whom held the title for a long time during the period of Mrs. Ackerman's search for "present owners."

In 1905 the difficulty of finding the legal owner of the property came to a head. The first suit brought by Mrs. Ackerman had been carried to the Court of Appeals, and it ordered a new trial. On Jan. 21, 1905, this terminated in a judgment for Mrs. Ackerman, and a mandatory injunction was issued against True, ordering him to remove the nuisance. He appealed the case on the plea that he was no longer the owner of the lots in question, the property having been conveyed to one Applegate.

The court took the view that the judgment ordered True to enter on another man's property and destroy his building, which he could not do, and that the order issued against him could not be made to apply against Applegate.

In this dilemma Mrs. Ackerman, through Mr. Kalish, decided to bring action in Special Term against the Park Board itself, as it was under its permit that the nuisance had been erected. On Feb. 16 last Commissioner Stover answered to her suit that it was impossible for him to tackle the nuisance himself, as it involved the pulling down of the fronts of the houses at great risk of injuring those who lived in them, and that he had in the Park Department no employes capable of undertaking such a task.

The Special Term refused Mrs. Ackerman's application and bade her discover the "present owners" and make them also defendants. Mrs. Ackerman appealed to the Appellate Division, and there obtained a peremptory writ directed to the Park Board, which was issued on May 25. The time fixed in it was July 5, but the Park Commissioner obtained its extension to Nov. 15, on the ground that he might be able to induce the owners of the houses to alter them.

Commissioner Stover was disposed at first to carry the case to the Court of Appeals, but on the advice of the Corporation Counsel determined not to proceed further. The decision of the Appellate Division consequently stood. In the meantime Mrs. Bates applied to Justice McCall for an injunction restraining any interference with her property, but this was denied on Oct. 17. In the same way one of the foreign owners of the buildings in question also applied to the United States Circuit Court for an injunction, but this was denied.

The extension of the period laid down in the writ of the Appellate Division expired yesterday, and Commissioner Stover was expected to report to Justice Bischoff on what steps had been taken. The report, however, went over by consent till to-day. It is understood that this morning the Park Board will state that it is itself cutting back 102 Riverside Drive to the building line, as the owner will not do so himself, but that the owners of the other houses concerned will see to the trimming of their own premises.

REGAN VERDICT REVERSED.

New Trial Ordered In the Case of the Alleged Importation of a Chef.

James B. Regan, manager of the Hotel Knickerbocker, was sued early in the year by the Government to recevr $1,000 penalty for his alleged importation under contract of a chef who had previously been employed as a pastry cook at the Hotel Carleton, London. The jury returned a verdict for the amount sued for, but on appeal Mr. Regan won a victory yesterday, the United States Circuit Court of Appeals reversing the judgment of the lower court and ordering a new trial.

The reversal was based on exceptions to the trial Judge's refusal to charge that the United States must prove its case beyond a reasonable doubt.

Ruth St. Denis, Dancer, a Bankrupt.

Ruth St. Denis, famed as a dancer here and abroad, filed a voluntary petition in bank ruptcy yesterday in the Federal Court in Brooklyn. Ross of London, England, who managed some of Miss St. Denis's tours, and whose claim is $10,005. Another claim is for $250 attorney's service. Her assets include costumes worth $250, patents worth $100, and books valued at $5. Henry W. Rianhard of New Brighton, S. I., has been named as referee.

SIX OTHERS ARE HURT

Second Suspicious Fire Soon Afterward in the Same District—Rescue Work by Police.

Two fires in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, both supposed to be of incendiary origin, resulted in the mortal injury of Mrs. Ray Schusterman of 203 Moore Street and less serious injuries to six others early yesterday morning. The police arrested Benjamin Friedland and his wife on suspicion of having set fire to the house at 1,101 Flushing Avenue.

The fire started in Friedland's candy shop on the ground floor of the building soon after 1 A. M. The attention of Policeman Christian Waldeck of the Stagg Street Station was attracted by the screams of two young women, who had seen the flames in the candy shop as they passed. Waldeck turned in an alarm, and then started through the floors above the store waking up the tenants. He was followed by Policeman Haas.

After he had gone through the house knocking on the doors and crying out that the house was afire, Waldeck, on his way downstairs, stepped into the apartment on the second floor occupied by a family named Stader. Lying unconscious on the floor was Anna Stader, 16 months old, who had been left behind in the hasty flight of the older members of the family. Waldeck carried her to the street, where she was receivd by a surgon from St. Catherine's Hospital.

Policeman Haas, who had entered the apartment on the same floor, across the hall, found August Feldmeyer lying on the floor overcome by smoke. He had not lost his senses entirely. Shaking him into action, Haas helped him down to the street.

Waldeck arrested Friedland and his wife because when the firemen broke into the candy shop there was a strong odor of kerosene, and they found a lot of oil-soaked rags, it was said. Turning his prisoners over to other policemen, Waldeck ran through the lower hallway, meaning to go up through the house a second time by way of the fire-escapes in the rear. He was found later in the rear of the hallway overcome by the smoke. He was revived and went home.

The fire engines and police had hardly got back to their stations when the second fire was reported at 203 Moore Street. A citizen passing the three-story double frame tenement at that number noticed smoke curling up from under the front stoop, and notified Policeman Kessler of the Stagg Street Station, who sent in the alarm. Accompanied by Policeman Carroll, he ran through the house waking up the tenants.

They were soon joined by the firemen of Hook and Ladder Company 58. Fireman Aloysius Froelich, who had done excellent work at the Flushing Avenue fire, getting the tenants out, ran up to the second floor. He found Hyman Schusterman and his five children so excited and befuddled that they were helpless. Froelich helped them down to the street, where they were taken care of by neighbors.

Hearing a scream from a third-floor window, the firemen looked up and saw a woman apparently preparing to jump to the street. A ladder being run up to that Window, Froelich raced up to help down the hysterical woman, who was Mrs. Hyman Schusterman. She had run upstairs before the rest of the family were taken from the second floor.

Froelich had hardly reached the top of the ladder when Mrs. Schusterman, unable longer to restrain herself, threw herself at him. The shock of the collision loosened Froelich's hold on the ladder, and both fell to the street. The fall broke both Mrs. Schusterman's legs and injured her internally. She was removed to St. Catherine's Hospital, where it was said she could not live. Froelich escaped with a sprained ankle and knee.

Other firemen brought down several other tenants who were so excited that they could not have escaped by themselves. Mrs. Yetta Feldman and her eight-year-old son Abraham, who were found overcome by smoke in the hallway of the second floor, were carried down to safety soon after the firemen arrived.

In both cases the flames were extinguished before they had done more than $3,000 or $4,000 worth of damage.

WANTS HER AUNT'S $50,000.

Niece of Mrs. Kleiner Begins a Contest of the Aged Woman's Will.

A contest of the will of Mrs. Louis Kleiner, a blind and aged woman, who left an estate said to amount to $50,000 to a friend who had aided her in her last years, has been begun in the Surrogate's Court in Brooklyn. Objection to admitting the document to probate is made by Mrs. Ida Reinhardt, a niece of the testatrix. Ferdinand Steinbach of 127 Engert Avenue, Brooklyn, is made the sole beneficiary under the will.

Mrs. Kleiner, who was about 80 years old, formerly lived with Mrs. Reinhardt in Yonkers. In August, 1908, the aged woman was committed to the Hudson River State Hospital at Poughkeepsie. Through the efforts of Steinbach, who had known Mrs. Kleiner for many years, she was released in April, 1909. Mrs. Kleiner went to live at the Steinbach home, and there she spent her last days.

Mrs. Reinhardt alleges that at the time the will was made, September, 1909, her aunt was unduly influenced.

E. S. Connette, transportation engineer of the Public Service Commission, testified yesterday at a hearing on the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company transfer controversy that after studying complaints he recommended the establishment of transfers at twenty additional points.

A few weeks ago the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company inaugurated a new scheme of transfers, and patrons took exception almost immediately. After the commission had started proceedings modifications were suggested by the railroad, and the committee's ideas represent a still further extension of the transfer privilege.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Representative R. L. Henry of Texas to-day announced that he was not a candidate for the Speakership of the Sixty-second Congress.

Want to See a Play?

Most of us don't know how. We look at the stage, the actors, the situations, but we don't really see them. But we can. We can know the secrets of the stage,—why this play is good and that one bad; why Sarah Bernhardt at sixty-seven can play a girl of seventeen; why Julia Marlowe "gets a dollar and fifty cents' worth out of every dollar word." We can easily get a dollar and fifty cents' worth out of every dollar we spend in the theater. It's worth while. Read "How to See a Play," by Gellett Burgess, in the December DELINEATOR.

NOTHING TO RECANT, COL. ROOSEVELT SAYS

FIGHT HAS MERELY BEGUN

Progressiveism Will Go On to Triumph Despite Initial Checks or Failure of Leaders.

The first comment on the election from Col. Roosevelt is to appear in the forthcoming issue of The Outlook. Here it is:

> On every hand, personally and by correspondence, I have been asked to make a statement regarding the election. So far as I am concerned, I have nothing whatever to add to or to take away from the declaration of the principles which I have made in the Osawatomie speech and elsewhere, East and West, during the past three months. The fight for progressive popular government has merely begun, and will certainly go on to a triumphant conclusion in spite of initial checks and irrespective of the personal success or failure of individual leaders.

In his Osawatomie speech Col. Roosevelt set forth the New Nationalism platform on which his subsequent political utterances have been based. He declared first of all for the abolition of special privilege, advocating to this end these five measures: Complete and effective publicity of corporate affairs, including prohibition of corporate contributions to campaign or other political funds; Government supervision of capitalization; limitation of franchises so that the operation under them can be controlled and abuses prevented, the holding of officers, especially Directors of corporations, personally responsible for violations of law, and complete control of combinations.

The Colonel went on to demand a permanent expert Tariff Commission, and a revision hereafter of the present tariff, schedule by schedule; a graduated inheritance tax to deal with "swollen fortunes"; such scientific investigation as would make possible a complete reform of the financial system; conservation of the Nation's natural resources; an extension of the work of the Agricultural Department as well as the Departments of Agriculture of the various States and agricultural colleges to "uplift" the farmer; curbing the rights of property to give more benefit to the rights of men; comprehensive workmen's compensation acts; both State and National laws to regulate child labor and the work of women; practical educational training in the schools; better sanitary conditions for workers, and extension of the use of safety appliances in industry and commerce, and an enlarged and efficient army and navy.

In his tenth plank the Colonel declared for the direct primary system coupled with a strong and efficient Corrupt Practices act. He also favored the principle of the recall in these words: "I believe that prompt removal of unfaithful or incompetent public servants should be made easy and sure in whatever way experience shall show to be most expedient in any given class of cases."

He closed with this explanation of his New Nationalism:

"This New Nationalism regards the executive power as the steward of the public welfare. It demands of the judiciary that it shall be interested primarily in human welfare rather than in property just as it demands that the representative body shall represent all the people rather than one class or section of the people."

ROLL CALL FOR 96 HOURS.

New Mexico Constitutional Convention Faces a Long Ordeal.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 15.—Ninety-six hours of practically continuous roll-call is what faces delegates to the Constitutional Convention as the final adoption of the Constitution draws near. There are 300 sections, and under the rules a separate roll-call is required on each section. Each roll-call takes about twenty minutes.

The prohibition question and the apportionment of the State for legislative and judicial purposes are practically the only propositions to be considered before the final adoption of the Constitution takes place. There is a strong probability that the prohibition issue will be passed over on the ground that it has no proper place in the Constitution.

$37,000 SPENT BY FOSS.

Massachusetts Campaign Cost Gov. Draper $17,000—New York Expenses.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—The successful campaign of Eugene N. Foss, the Democratic candidate for Governor at last week's election, cost him $37,000, according to his sworn return filed late to-day. This is $20,000 more than was expended by Gov. Eben S. Draper, who was defeated. Mr. Foss paid $31,000 to the Democratic State Committee, while the balance went to the Democratic City Committee of Boston. Gov. Draper gave his $17,000 to the Republican State Committee and his personal managers.

ALBANY, Nov. 15.—State Engineer Frank M. Williams, who was defeated for re-election, certified to the Secretary of State to-day that he spent $869. He contributed $750 to the Republican State Committee.

Other statements of election expenses filed included: For Congress—Frank D. Roosevelt, Twenty-sixth District, $1,766.34; Richard L. Connell, Twenty-first District, $295.09; J. William Sanbury, Thirty-seventh District, $27.16; W. M. Horton, Thirty-fourth District, $5.51; A. L. Byron Curtis, Twenty-seventh District, nothing.

DIX KEEPS MOVING.

Motors to Albany and Goes to Camp—May Visit Quebec.

ALBANY, Nov. 15.—John A. Dix, Governor-elect, left to-day on the Empire State Express for his mountain camp at McKeever. He may leave there to-morrow for a business trip to Quebec. Mr. Dix motored down from Thomson last evening and spent the night at his town house here.

"I have made no political appointments for November," said Mr. Dix to-day, "nor do I expect to make any, as I must devote the rest of the month to adjusting my business affairs."

The Governor-elect said the engagement to dine with the Merchants' Democratic Association in New York on Thanksgiving Eve was made before election. He has no other social engagements in view.

TO VERIFY THE VOTE.

City Board of Canvassers Organize—Work Will Take Ten Days.

The City Board of Canvassers, which draws up the official returns on the vote cast in the recent election, organized yesterday, and its members were sworn by the four County Clerks of the city. The board is composed of the Aldermen.

The New York County Board was sworn in by County Clerk Schneider in his office in the County Court House yesterday morning, and immediately adjourned to City Hall where it organized. Alderman Dowling, the Tammany leader of the board, was chosen Chairman, and Deputy County Clerk Gehring, Clerk. The board then adjourned to this morning, when the actual canvass will be commenced.

It is planned to take up five Assembly Districts each day, and it is expected that the work will be completed in ten days at the utmost.

MANHATTAN CHANGES POLICY

Vaudeville Performances Begin Nov. 28—"Hans" Goes on Tour.

The Manhattan Opera House saw one serious change at the beginning of the Fall. It will see another on Nov. 28, when Mr. Hammerstein will bring the career of "Hans, the Flute Player" to an end and install vaudeville in the house. Ganné's opera-comique will be taken to Philadelphia on Nov. 28, and from there to other cities.

"I am going to London about the 1st of January," said Mr. Hammerstein last night, "and for the present therefore I do not care to make any more productions here. The Manhattan will be transferred to my son William, and two performances will be given here every day. Arthur will assume control of 'Naughty Marietta,' which will remain at the New York Theatre all Winter, and 'Hans' will go on the road."

Mrs. George B. McClellan Home.

Among the passengers arriving last night on the Red Star liner Finland from Antwerp was Mrs. George Brinton McClellan, widow of the civil war General and mother of the ex-Mayor of this city. She had been in ill-health, and was met at the pier by her son.

BIG OPERA RECEIPTS AT METROPOLITAN

Season Opened with More Than $12,000 House, and Advance Sales Are Tremendous.

TO ADD SPECIAL MATINEES

Average Week of Busy Season Estimated at $80,000—Speculators Seem to Have Some Subscription Seats.

On Monday night the Metropolitan Opera House opened its doors upon a season which promises to be the most brilliant financially of its career. John Brown, the controller of the house, gave more than $12,000 as the receipts for the opening night.

For a long time it has been known that the advance subscription sale has been very large. Many prominent people have tried in vain to get orchestra seats for some favored night. The largest sales, of course, are for Monday and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoon. Practically nothing on the first floor of the house remains for any of those performances; nothing at all in the orchestra for any of them. There are a few scattered seats in the circle.

The box sale has been tremendous, and all of the stall boxes have been subscribed for for the season. The stall boxes are situated back of the grand tier boxes, and some of them are not very good for seeing from. However, they have been eagerly snapped up.

This tremendous interest in the opera has had many results, but the most prominent is the number of performances announced for the last half of the season. It has just been decided to add seven special matinees to these. These matinees will be a special subscription series of classic operas.

At present there are no performances at the Metropolitan on Tuesday and Saturday evenings. Last night the company visited Albany, presenting "Madama Butterfly" there, and for a time Saturday evenings will be devoted to Brooklyn. However, after the first of the year there will be a special series of Saturday night performances.

The company will visit Philadelphia on Tuesday nights later, but the Philadelphia-Chicago company will give performances here on that night, so the house will be open continuously night after night from Sunday to Sunday and with at least two matinees on Thursday and Saturday each week, a state of affairs unprecedented in the history of the house.

Besides these performances there will be a special matinée series of Wagner's 'Ring" and several special matinées of "Parsifal" and "Hänsel und Gretel," the latter at popular prices, the only popular-priced performances to be given during the season.

Outside of Brooklyn and Philadelphia and last night's performance in Albany no out-of-town performances will be given during the season.

The present indications seem to be that the house will be crowded night after night. In other words, $10,000 houses will be no rarety. In that event, during the busy months at the end of the season the average week should be about $80,000.

"The sale has been tremendous," said Mr. Brown yesterday. "However, it must be borne in mind that it is impossible to make as much as is spent in an institution of this sort. The fact of the matter is that it costs about twice as much to give opera now as it did several years ago, and yet the price of seats has not changed. I predict that eventually a rise in the price of seats must come. It is the only logical outcome.

"One thing which has occupied my mind very much is the ticket speculators. They seem to have gotten hold of some of the subscription seats. It is impossible to find out who all the people are who buy seats, of course, but we have done everything in our power to prevent the speculators from getting them.

"The point is that the gains are tremendous, and they seemingly have very little to lose. Once I had seven speculators arrested for disorderly conduct on the sidewalk, and spent a whole morning in Jefferson Market Court. However, they were only fined $1 apiece, which is nothing to them. Another time a speculator struck a policeman who was asked to remove him from the lobby. He was only fined $3.

"As I say, I am doing everything in my power to prevent seats from falling into their hands, but it seems to be impossible to entirely prevent it."

CHICAGO OPERA PROSPERING.

Crowded Houses Hear Miss Garden—Young American Singers Please.

Reports from Chicago indicate that the first week of the Chicago Opera Company at the Auditorium has been a money maker. Miss Garden's first appearances in Chicago in "Pelléas et Mélisande" and "Louise" have been signalized by crowded houses, as have several other performances.

Mr. Dippel also seems to have been successful in his engagement of young American singers like Carolina White and Lillian Grenville, who seem to have fitted into the niches reserved for them in the opera season.

CITY CLUB RESENTS BENNET'S MEETING

The officers, Trustees, and members of the City Club are much incensed over the anti-Griscom meeting held by Congressman William S. Bennet within the traditional non-political portals of the clubhouse on Monday afternoon.

Letters of protest poured in on the officers and Trustees from the members of the club all yesterday, and so great is the agitation that the matter will be taken up by the Board of Trustees at its meeting to-day.

The Congressman is accused of violating the club's most sacred rule of conduct in holding a political meeting in the house. The membership is almost equally Republican, Democratic, and independent. So strict are its traditions against joining in partisan politics that when Borough President McAneny, who had been President of the club for years, ran for office last year no indorsement was made of his candidacy.

Despite all this Mr. Bennet, a member of the club, called a meeting at the clubhouse on Monday of various Republican district leaders, with the object of signing the official death warrant of Chairman Griscom of the Republican County Committee. The fact that the success of Mr. Bennet's effort was very slight only adds to the tragedy of the situation.

Nov. 15, 1910.

My Dear Mr. Strong: I notice in this morning's TIMES an article in respect to a meeting held at the City Club yesterday, from which I quote the following:

"The fact that the meeting was held at the City Club was looked on more or less as a joke on the organization, which has been so prominent in 'uplift' movements in the city."

As a member I write to ask upon whose authority that meeting was held in the club. Rule 5, Paragraph 6, of the House Rules provides as follows:

"The House Committee may extend the privilege of meeting in rooms of the club to other organizations, associations, or committees which are organized for purposes generally similar to those for which the club is organized."

I called up the Chairman of the House Committee this morning and he informed me the committee had not authorized this meeting.

Mr. Bennet is not an "organization, association, or committee," nor can his movement be said to be "for purposes generally similar to those for which the club is organized," but as a self-appointed reorganizer of the Republican County Committtee and General Manager of the Universe I suggest that he be called upon by the Board of Trustees to explain his infraction of the club rules.

I think it is unfortunate that the club's name should be thus coupled with the unsuccessful effort of a disgruntled, defeated candidate to get even with somebody because his constituents had voted to retire him to private life.

Faithfully yours,

EDWARD K. BAIRD.

When Mr. Strong was seen at his home last night he said:

"I deplore the occurrence very much. If I had known of the meeting before it took place, I can assure you it would not have been held at the City Club. The first I or any of the other officers of the club heard of the meeting was when we read of it in THE TIMES this morning.

"As every one knows, the City Club is most careful to keep out of politics. We did not even indorse Mr. McAneny, and never indorse any candidate for public office. We would just as soon open our rooms to a pro-Griscom meeting as an anti-Griscom gathering.

"The only excuse I can make for Mr. Bennet is that he probably called the meeting in the belief that if held at the City Club it would be secret, and not reach the press, as it would undoubtedly if held elsewhere. Of course, it got away from him, and this does not excuse his lack of discretion as a member. I have not talked with him, but I feel sure that this idea of secrecy was what prompted him to hold the meeting at the City Club."

We wish to make known the fact that Gimbel Brothers have been appointed sole retail distributors in New York City for

Underwear
For women and children

THIS underwear needs no introduction, much less a preamble upon its quality.
Suffice it to say:

that every Harvard Mills garment is subjected to hygienic processes in manufacture, even extending to the employees engaged in the factories, that every garment is thoroughly steamed (a sanitary precaution) and made as nearly non-shrinkable as underwear can be made by this process as well, that under the Harvard Mills brand will be found the underwear best suited to occupation and location, no matter what each may be—and that in sizing and shaping every type of build has been considered—stout, medium and slender, tall and short forms, and in all the weights.

But the most important fact to consider, especially if you already wear "Harvard Mills" underwear, is that every number can now be obtained at Gimbel Brothers, and in every size—among which are

Women's—

Merino vests and pants—white and natural—sizes 2 to 10 years, 50c. 12 to 15 years, 60c. Wool or silk and wool vests and pants. Sizes 2 to 10 years, 85c. 12 to 15 years, $1.

And in this connection it may be pertinent to draw your attention to the Gimbel hosiery and underwear stocks in general. Here are complete lines of imported Swiss-ribbed silk underwear, silk and wool non-shrinkable underwear, all-wool non-shrinkable underwear, silk and cotton, wool and cotton and all-cotton underwear in vests, tights and union suits—and in Italian silk garments the newest ideas in vests, bloomers, tights and union suits, in plain and hand-embroidered effects, and Italian silk vests and union suits with improved shield—prices ranging from $1.45 to $8.50.

Why Men Find Gimbel Shoes Worth Buying

If this were just the usual stock of men's shoes, bought in hap-hazard fashion, we shouldn't have much excuse for asking men to buy them here, rather than elsewhere.

But it isn't. First of all, it is a BRAND-NEW stock—free from old styles, or mistakes that must be "worked off."

Then, it is a CAREFULLY GATHERED stock—selected by experts who know their business thoroughly. Each style chosen because it serves some special need—in the aggregate, styles that serve ALL needs. Each quality accepted because it could not be bettered today at the price for which we sell it—though there isn't a Gimbel shoe that we won't better if we can.

It is in charge of experts who understand giving GOOD SHOE SERVICE—a man may be sure of getting the style he prefers, in his proper size and width.

which we present in 18 styles, in black patent or dull leather, or tan, in shapes to suit the young man or the conservative business man. Made of sturdy materials, with oak-tanned soles, with the details that mark shoe elegance handsomely carried out.

Our orthopedic expert, constantly in attendance, will assist in selecting shoes for feet requiring special fitting; and will also fill physicians' prescriptions. Third Floor.

A Leather Goods Store of Unbounded Fascination

In establishing this Leather Goods Store as part of the Gimbel Service, we resolved to have it as perfect and complete as merchandising experience could dictate.

To that end we specialized it—assigned its branches—the foreign and American leather goods, the beaded bags, the belts, and so on—each to a different expert who knew it thoroughly. The splendid stock resulting will be of greatest interest to the Gimbel public, especially with the approaching holidays, when leather goods find their widest appropriateness as gifts.

In the collection are exquisite bags from Paris, and art leather goods from Vienna. There are evening and opera bags, in tinsel and other rich fabrics; and every possible convenience in leather for travelers.

Of handbags for women, the variety is lavish; with particularly fine choice at $5. There are leather goods in great assortment for men.

What is probably the finest gathering of imported beaded bags in New York is displayed here; and the women's belts include styles in leather, tinsel, silk and studded effects. As a special offering, we announce today:

Women's Fitted Hand-bags, Special at $5

Hand-bags of alligator or beaver calf and pigskin, also long-grain morocco, with 10 in. heavy polished gilt frames; leather-lined and fitted with puff box, mirror, purse and card-case. Extremely well made and offered at $5, instead of considerably more, because of a specially favorable arrangement with the maker.

IMPATIENT TO GET GOULD'S TESTIMONY

Back of the repeated failures of George J. Gould to give his testimony in the suits instituted by Wabash Pittsburg Terminal bondholders, which became known on Monday, the latest of four dates set for the taking of his testimony, the bondholders represented by the Chaplin Committee, for which Samuel Untermyer is acting as counsel, see a deliberate effort to put off the taking of testimony in the many suits which have been brought, some at the instance of the Wallace Committee and some at the instance of the Chaplin Committee, until some plan can be devised for the reorganization of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway, which will do away with the prosecution of these suits.

It is known that the Wallace Committee, which was formed in 1908, soon after the appointment of receivers for these two roads, has been working on a plan which it is hoped will be acceptable to the bondholders. The formulation of this plan has involved negotiations with the Gould interests for settlement of claims against the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway by the Wabash Railroad. These claims are contested by the Chaplin Committee, but the Wallace Committee has regarded an adjustment of them as a prerequisite to the reorganization of the two roads.

Lately it has been understood in the financial district that the Gould interests have been disposed to adopt a less uncompromising attitude than they at first assumed, and that the plan which the Wallace Committee has been working on would, to this extent, be more favorable to the bondholders than previously formulated plans. On the other hand, the bondholders represented by the Chaplin Committee say that they are so thoroughly convinced that the property covered by their bonds could be made to be worth the full value of their bonds that no plan which may be suggested by the Wallace Committee, short of one giving the equivalent of par and interest for the first mortgage bonds of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway, will be acceptable to them.

Positions of the Two Committees.

While no suggestion has yet come from the Wallace Committee as to the probable value to be expected for the first mortgage bonds in the reorganization, it is regarded as well assured that no par and interest proposals will be made. Meanwhile, the Chaplin Committee has laid its plans with the idea of itself taking over the reorganization of the property in the event that the offer made by the Wallace Committee is not accepted by a sufficient number of bondholders to make it operative. Already the Chaplin Committee, for which the Columbia Trust Company is acting as depositary, has received numerous deposits of bonds and of certificates of the Central Trust Company issued to those who had previously deposited their bonds with the Wallace Committee and subsequently transferred their support to the Chaplin Committee.

In addition a suit has been brought to compel the Wallace Committee to return some bonds placed with it. The Colonial Trust Company has about $400,000 of Pittsburg Terminal bonds deposited with the Central Trust Company, and it wants to get them back to turn them over to the Chaplin Committee. The Central Trust Company, acting as the depositary of the Wallace Committee, refused this demand on the ground that the agreement of deposit provides that bonds may only be withdrawn after the promulgation of a plan.

In this situation the Chaplin Committee bondholders say that a large number of bonds now on deposit with the Wallace Committee will come to the Chaplin Committee either through the publication of a plan and the refusal of many of the bondholders to accept it, or through the litigation which has been brought to compel the return of bonds with or without the publication of a plan.

Plan to Attack Gould Interests.

According to the view of some of the bondholders, the Gould interests were intent upon keeping possession of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway for the Wabash Railroad and its allied lines without properly protecting the holders of the Pittsburg Terminal bonds. In these circumstances the Chaplin committee has been taking the stand that it was through an attack upon the Gould interests in the courts that the best results were to be obtained, and not by an effort to reorganize the property with the co-operation of the Gould interests, including the Wabash Railroad. This committee points out that men prominently identified with the Gould interests are among the most active members of the Wallace committee, and they go to the length of saying that the committee was formed at the instance of the Gould interests. They say, too, that because of the relationships existing between certain members of the committee and the Gould interests, which are held responsible for the difficulties in which the Pittsburg Terminal bondholders now find themselves, there is no chance of the bondholders getting their full deserts through any committee in which the Gould interests are represented.

On the other side it is admitted that men close to the Gould interests have places on the Wallace committee, but the reason for this, it is said, is that it was regarded as desirable to have on the committee men who were thoroughly familiar with the Pittsburg Terminal property and with the facts surrounding the organization of the company. This has proved to be the main point of contention between the two committees, and has led to much criticism by the Chaplin committee bondholders of the fact that after two years and a half of receivership no plan has yet been formulated by the Wallace committee. The Chaplin committee, moreover, has contended that the legal rights of the bondholders had not been protected with sufficient energy, and when the Chaplin committee came into the field, a few months ago, it caused hearings in one or two cases to be reopened and started several new suits.

A Chain of Lawsuits.

The litigation growing out of the receiverships of the Wheeling & Lake Erie and the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway now in progress includes eight or ten separate actions, most of them more or less directly connected with the effort to foreclose the general mortgage of the Wheeling & Lake Erie, $12,000,000 of whose bonds are pledged as security for the $8,000,000 of notes which were taken up by a syndicate headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Blair & Co., under a guarantee from the Wabash Railroad. The original foreclosure suit was filed in 1908 by the Central Trust Company, as trustee of the mortgage. The New York Trust Company, as trustee for the notes, intervened in this suit, and later the Mercantile Trust Company and the Equitable Trust Company intervened and filed answers as trustees, respectively, of the first and second mortgage bonds of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway.

In the Spring of this year, at the suggestion of the Chaplin committee, the receivers of the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal also intervened in this foreclosure suit, and in addition they hae filed a cross-bill seeking the carrying out of the traffic and trackage contract between the Pittsburg Terminal and the Wabash and Wheeling Roads, and also seeking to have the claims of the Wabash Railroad subordinated to those of the Pittsburg Terminal bondholders. In another action the order originally granted in August, 1908, setting aside the traffic agreement was modified so as to open the way to litigate the questions regarding this contract raised in behalf of the bondholders.

The other suits include the Colonial Trust's suit against the Central Trust Company and the Wallace committee, a suit of the Mercantile Trust against the Wabash Railroad to compel the return to the terminal company of stock and bonds of the Pittsburg Terminal Railroad & Coal Company, a suit of the receivers against the syndicate managers of the Pittsburg-Toledo syndicate which built the Wabash Pittsburg Terminal Railway, and still another suit of the receivers, in which the Wabash is asked to account for all sums due up to June, 1910, under the traffic contract with the terminal company.

Bondholders Grow Impatient.

In addition to all these, another suit is ready to be filed seeking to hold the Wabash Railroad responsible for the $8,000,000 alleged to be due on the stock of the terminal company.

Some of the Chaplin committee bondholders have grown greatly impatient over the delays in getting Mr. Gould to give his testimony, and they are saying that the time has come to substitute a court subpoena for agreements between counsel. It is contended that a great many facts could be brought out in the examination of George J. Gould and others which would go far to strengthen the position of the bondholders.

Unless the rights of the bondholders are more fully recognized than they have been so far, the Chaplin committee promises to push the litigation along every available line until the bondholders are re-established in the position in which they believed themselves to be when they bought the bonds at prices above 90. The bonds have sold as low as 32. They are now in the neighborhood of 47.

Early this year the Wallace committee formulated a plan for the reorganization of the property, under the terms of which the bondholders were to receive mostly stock in exchange for their bonds, but much opposition developed, and the plan was never officially published.

OFFER TERMINAL BONDS.

Morgan & Co. and Lee-Higginson Put Out Kansas City Railroad Issue.

J. P. Morgan & Co., Lee, Higginson & Co., and the Illinois Trust and Savings Bank have purchased $7,500,000 first mortgage 4 per cent. bonds of the Kansas City Terminal Railroad. The bankers are offering the unsold balance of the issue at 97 and interest.

A simultaneous offering will be made in London by Higginson & Co. and Morgan, Grenfell & Co. The bonds are callable as a whole on Jan. 1, 1930, or on any following interest date at 105 and interest. The original issue of $12,500,000 is listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and application will be made to list bonds now offered.

QUEENS ACCOUNTANT TESTIFIES TO GRAFT

SUSPECTED POSTAGE THEFTS

Murphy Says Gresser's Troubles Are Due to the Men Exempt from Civil Service Rules.

Chief Bookkeeper David W. Murphy of Queens Borough at the continuation of the hearing into the charges against President Gresser of Queens before Commissioner Ordway, said that the fact that unlawful acts were committed by subordinates might not lessen the responsibility of President Gresser. One of the charges against Mr. Gresser is that he appointed to office and retained in their places subordinates who were incompetent and dishonest.

"As far as I am able to form an opinion," said Mr. Ordway, "some evidence has been shown here of improper conditions in Queens. Whether President Gresser can be held responsible for these conditions I cannot decide until I hear further evidence."

Mr. Murphy is considered one of the capable men in the employ of the Borough of Queens. He is a certified public accountant, and although he has been a political follower of ex-Borough President Joseph Cassidy, since the charges were preferred against Gresser he has gone to the aid of that official, and through the investigation he has kept close to the elbow of Chase Mellen, counsel for Gresser, and has supplied him with valuable information.

Becoming suspicious of certain expense accounts, particularly heavy purchases of postage stamps, Mr. Murphy said that for his own protection he took the expense and postage stamp vouchers to Joseph Sullivan, the then Commissioner of Public Works, and demanded of that official that he attach his certification to the sworn vouchers submitted to him by the persons making up the bills.

Mr. Murphy said he saw a charge of $100 a month for postage stamps, and this, together with talk he overheard, made him suspicious. When pressed to tell the nature of the talk he overheard he said it came from Louis J. McNally, who had charge of the postage stamp vouchers, and was always talking about "graft and how much there was in it for him." He refused to receive McNally in his department, and in consequence he was retained in the office of the Borough President. When he asked Commissioner Sullivan to sign the postage stamp and expense vouchers he said he gave as his reason that they "looked fictitious."

Expense vouchers for car fare between Far Rockaway, Jamaica, and Long Island City for daily trips, except Sundays, for the months of January, February, and March, which were put in and collected by John Hippel, also attached to the Borough Hall, were questioned in the evidence. Mr. Murphy said he was suspicious of the bills, and obtained a double certification from Commissioner Sullivan before he entered them in the pay rolls.

He also testified that at the instance of President Gresser he inaugurated the first complete system of bookkeeping ever put in operation in the borough. He said that for more than ten years some of the departments kept no books at all, and in many instances it was necessary to send down to the Bureau of Finance in Manhattan to find out just what balances were still credited to certain funds. In answer to a question by Commissioner Ordway Mr. Murphy said that he believed Gresser's troubles were due to his exempt subordinates, that is personal appointees who did not come under the civil service classification.

Commissioner Ordway complimented Mr. Murphy on his testimony, which the Commissioner declared was frank and truthful. The Commissioner said that from his knowledge of financial affairs he considered Mr. Murphy a valuable employe of the city.

BIG STORES CONSOLIDATE.

Siegel Cooper Co. and Greenhut & Co. Form a $6,000,000 Firm.

Siegel Cooper Company and Greenhut & Co. have consolidated and will form a combined company with a paid-up capital of $6,000,000. It is announced by Benedict J. Greenhut that the present stores of both concerns will be run for a time along the same lines that are being followed now, but Mr. Greenhut promises later to introduce a plan which, he says, will be of great benefit to the public.

The officers of the new company will be Joseph H. Greenhut, President; Henry Morgenthau, Jerome Siegel, and William H. Cooper, Vice Presidents; Benedict J. Greenhut, Secretary and Treasurer, and Joseph B. Greenhut, Nelson W. Greenhut, Henry Morgenthau, Jerome Siegel, William H. Cooper, Ben Hellman, Frank C. Cadden, and E. R. Wolfner Directors.

In discussing the combination yesterday, Benedict J. Greenhut said: "The two concerns have been very close for the reason that my father and I own a substantial majority of the stock of both."

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 15.—Papers of consolidation of the Greenhut-Siegel Cooper Company of New York, with a capital of $6,000,000, were filed to-day with the Secretary of State.

Not the Same Frank Partridge.

Frank Partridge, an art dealer at 741 Fifth Avenue, was beset yesterday by patrons and friends who had read of the arrest of F. H. Partridge for smuggling just after the latter crossed from Canada into this country. Mr. Partridge explained that he was not the man involved, and that he had arrived on the Mauretania in New York only a few days ago with his wife. His friends have stopped asking questions.

GEN. BINGHAM A WITNESS.

Asks the Court to Make His Cross-Examiner "Behave Himself."

The trial of Jacob Rouss, a lawyer, for falsifying the records of a police trial, was continued before Justice Blanchard in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court yesterday. The principal witnesses were former Police Commissioner Theodore A. Bingham and former Deputy Commissioner Bert Hanson. The cross-examination resulted in a lively tilt between the witnesses and Charles Le Barbier, the counsel for Rouss.

Gen. Bingham had testified that the words "I want an adjournment" had been interpolated in the record. It is charged that Rouss interpolated these words so that Policeman George Mencke, who had been dismissed from the department, might successfully appeal his case on the ground that he had not received the forty-eight hours' notice to which he was entitled before being brought to trial.

In his cross-examination Gen. Bingham became irritated, and asked the court to tell the lawyer to "behave himself."

Hanson, before whom the trial of Mencke took place, was positive that no request for adjournment was made, as appears in the record. He also was angered at Mr. Le Barbier's questions.

Bank Teller Gets 5 Years for Theft.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Harold B. Faxen, who, while teller, abstracted $7,300 from the People's National Bank of Roxbury in 1903, and was arrested last month in Goldfields, Nev., pleaded guilty to the charge to-day and was sentenced to five years' imprisonment.

Faxen told the court that he lost the money in speculation.

The "History" of the Wednesday Sale Briefly Told

Up until nearly 2 years ago, we disposed of Used Pianos taken in exchange for new Knabes in semi-annual sales. Due to the enormous increase in recent years in the sale of the Knabe Piano in New York City alone, and the rapid accumulation of instruments of various makes (from the greatest to the least), taken in part payment, and the fact that we could not afford to use our valuable floor space for the storage of used pianos, even though our warerooms are the largest in New York, we figured the way out was to thoroughly repair and remodel the pianos in our shops—TO MAKE THEM AS GOOD and in some cases BETTER THAN WHEN THEY WERE NEW, and offer them weekly at such figures and on such easy terms that they would find IMMEDIATE PURCHASERS.

The plan "took," and took so well with the public of New York that Knabe Wednesday Sales—an innovation that has become a permanent institution of this House—have reached the 100th Wednesday Sale.

Many thousands of music lovers who have taken advantage of the extraordinary values have excellent reason to remember the Wednesday Sales, and to recommend "Wednesday at Knabe's" to their friends.

THE "NEW" FEATURE.

To meet the demand of a certain class of music lovers who feel they are not financially prepared at the time to buy a Knabe Piano or Knabe Player Piano, we have made a specialty of offering and will continue to offer at our Wednesday Sales the following exceptional Piano values from time to time.

This is done simply because of our faith in the instruments, and the belief that those who purchase them will take advantage of our liberal exchange privilege and eventually purchase Knabe instruments.

The third day of the Horse Show brought yesterday, both at the day and the night sessions, a large and brilliant attendance. The excellent music, the equine display and the people and their gowns all came in for as much attention as they received on the first day.

Not only were all the arena boxes filled, but the seats back of them were taken, and there were, indeed, few empty seats anywhere. There was a good deal of calling from box to box, as the boardwalk was not too crowded for comfort.

A feature of the afternoon session was the advent of a dozen or more small girls from "The Bluebird" company in charge of a grown-up. Each carried a blue flag with a darker bluebird adorning it, and these they waved gently as they walked about, and when they sat together just back of the arena boxes on the Twenty-sixth Street side of the Garden. They were a quiet, well-bred little party, and each girl, in addition to her blue flag, had a knot of blue somewhere about her hair or frock.

Another feature that interested the promenaders as well as the adjacent box holders was the photographers, no less than four, who set up their cameras opposite Mrs. McKim and snapped her to their hearts' content as she sat in Box 66. If Mrs. McKim was disturbed she did not show it. She walked about the promenade with her sister, Mrs. Jaffray, and her father, Mr. Emerson, and wore a purplish blue coat and skirt, chinchilla furs, and small blue turban pulled far over her coiffure and head.

Society Arrives Late.

In the evening society was rather late in arriving at Madison Square Garden. Anyhow, the boxes did not fill until the evening exhibition was well under way and therefore society missed some clever performances by a few handy polo ponies, which classes opened the programme. Society also missed an opportunity to see one of its favorites, John E. Cowdin of polo fame, who was judging the classes, exercise his prerogative in that capacity to mount the respective candidates for his good opinion. This he did in evening clothes and silk hat, bending and turning the shifty little nags this way and that until it made one almost dizzy to watch him. Once he wheeled a pony so sharply that it collapsed under him, but he picked it up and set it going again without so much as crumpling his immaculate shirt front. J. B. Thomas, Jr., won on Barabel in one class and H. S. Phipps of the Meadow Brook Polo Club on the very clever black mare Skait in the other.

Park four-in-hands, shown before drags, only amateurs driving; horses to count 50 points, drag 20, harness 20, and liveries 10, made their usual big hit with the spectators. This class was regarded around the boxes as the best feature of the afternoon, and many eyebrows were raised in polite surprise when the apparently perfect turnout shown and driven by Alfred G. Vanderbilt, the President of the National Horse Show Association, failed to win one of the three prizes. William H. Moore carried off the coveted blue, and with it he won the handsome challenge cup presented by Jay F. Carlisle. Clarence Watson, who won the trophy last year, was second on this occasion, so it remains in competition.

Society again had occasion to express mild astonishment when the perfectly appointed victoria and pair of Clarence W. Watson was given the gate, and soon was followed into the dim region beyond by the equally well-appointed turnout shown by Alfred G. Vanderbilt. A buzz of excitement ran around boxes and tiers and much wonder was expressed. Society was not able to divine the judges' reasons for so summarily dismissing what appeared to be two of the smartest and best-appointed turnouts ever shown at Madison Square Garden.

Vanderbilt Pair Refused to Back.

The official reasons were that the Vanderbilt pair refused to back, as required by the conditions of the competition, and that Lord Baltimore, who was being driven double with My Maryland to the Watson victoria, kicked wickedly right before the judges, which, to say the least, was decidedly impolitic on the part of this hitherto undefeated champion.

The talent around the ringside commented audibly as Lord Baltimore and My Maryland were driven out of the arena that this was the first time this celebrated pair had been defeated in this class.

The most exciting event of yesterday's programme was the class for qualified hunters ridden over the jumping course by ladies. There were nearly forty entries in this class, and every one that filled the engagement and responded to the bugler's call to enter the arena came bravely forth bearing a member of the fair sex, closely habited and silk-hatted and booted and spurred. All rode side-saddle but one, a sixteen-year-old miss from Elliott City, Md., Miss Lucy Cherbonniere. On Blenheim Farm's Aristocrat she made a clean score over the course and received a splendid round of applause. She also rode Paradox, from the same stable, with almost similar honors. But in spite of these performances, neither horse was called back into the ring to be judged for conformation.

"Do the judges refuse to officially recognize a woman riding astride in the ring at the New York Horse Show?" was the question that flew around from box to box and from tier to tier. Verbally, the judges did not answer. But their action was construed by many to mean just that, and nothing less.

The following cablegram was received during the evening by Alfred G. Vanderbilt as President of the Horse Show Association, from M. Duteil, President of the Concours Hippique, Paris:

"Sincere wishes for success. Regret impossible to be present."

Box Occupants and Costumes.

There were a lot of box parties in both the afternoon and evening, and a distinctly fashionable air prevailed.

Miss Lucile Thornton entertained a box party that included Mrs. E. Reeve Merritt, Mr. and Mrs. Julian Little and Mrs. Corbett.

Mrs. Louis Haight, in the Haight box, also had a party, and looked very smart herself in a black and white checked coat and skirt costume topped by a flat black beaver hat wound with green ribbon with a touch of green at the throat.

Mrs. Charles B. A. Alexander in a black velvet coat costume braided in soutache and topped by a hat to match half covered with shaded gray and white plumes, paid several box calls, and her smallest daughter, Miss Mary Alexander, was very girlish in a little blue cloth frock with peasant sleeves, with yoke and undersleeves of blue chiffon piped with brighter blue, and a small matching hat. The latter went about with a party of young school girls.

Mrs. George Heye had in her box her sister, Miss Williams, and Miss Hofeton Atterbury, Miss Isabel Atterbury, and Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Pell. Mrs. Heye was in black with black silk beaver hat decorated with a bird of paradise. The Misses Atterbury were in dark green and blue respectively, and the rest wore black, all-tailored costumes.

Mrs. Elbert H. Gary, also in a tailored costume, and Mrs. Henry Seligman in a cloth costume were among those entertaining box parties.

In the Boxes at Night.

Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, who was Miss Mary Harriman, and Mr. Rumsey made their first appearance at the Horse Show last night in the Reginald Vanderbilt box.

Mrs. Rumsey looked very fit in her black chiffon frock, with the neck cut out a little and transparent about the top. Her small hat was black, as she is still in mourning for the late E. H. Harriman. She also wore a long string of pearls.

Mrs. Clarence Watson was in black chiffon, with the neck cut out a trifle, and a large black hat almost covered with light tan ostrich feathers.

Mrs. Joseph W. Harriman had among her box guests Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. The hostess was in pale blue jetted net, with a slightly décolletté bodice, and a large ostrich-plumed black hat; the contrast between her youthful face and prematurely white hair was most striking.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman wore a close-fitting robe of purplish blue cloth, covered with a scroll design of inch-wide velvet bands, and her hat was small but high.

Miss Angelica Brown was in cerise chiffon and lace over guaze of the same shade and had on a scarf of cerise satin half enveloping her figure. Her small mushroom hat was of rose-pink net and chiffon.

Mrs. Joseph Laroque wore a dahlia-colored velvet robe, with bands of lighter bead trimming, and a small hat of duller hue.

Mrs. G. G. Heye was in mauve chiffon, and wore a transparent brimmed hat of mauve net with aigrettes.

Mrs. Frederick Roosevelt and Mrs. Henry Rokenbaugh, who were in the same box, were both in black and dark colored cloth and satin, respectively.

WATSON'S FOUR DEFEATED.

William H. Moore Captures Park Team Challenge Cup in Garden.

There was an absence of important classes on yesterday's programme at the Horse Show. Despite this the interest of the first two days was maintained throughout the three sessions. Hunters and saddle horses made an excellent showing, the standard being exceptionally high and the classes well filled. Competition, however, was devoid of any special interest.

The unexpected defeat of C. W. Watson's park team was the surprise of the day. The event was for four-in-hands, with amateurs to drive, while the Carlisle Challenge Cup was the prize. Mr. Watson secured one leg on the trophy, and a victory yesterday would have given him absolute possession of the cup. The hitherto invincible team from the Fairmont Farm's stable went down to defeat before the team entered and driven by William H. Moore. The last-named entry showed superior all-around style, and traveled at a well-regulated and even pace. The Watson four appeared somewhat showy for park use, and received the second ribbon. Paul A. Sorg and Alfred G. Vanderbilt occupied the driving seats on the other coaches. It was an exceptionally strong class, and it is doubtful whether four better matched and mated teams ever before appeared together in a ring in this country.

Lady Dilham's Victory.

Joseph W. Harriman's champion hackney, Lady Dilham, repeated her last year's performance and scored a notable victory over a strong field of harness horses. After the event Bertram Mills of London, England, offered Mr. Harriman $15,000 for Lady Dilham, but the offer was declined.

There has been considerable difference of opinion among the judges of the saddle horses as to the standard in determining the points of a saddle horse. Capt. T. Kennan of Caskeknock, Ireland, who came over to act as one of the three judges in these classes, has not been in entire harmony with his associates regarding the merits of the prevailing type that is used here. In discussing his position he said:

"While I have been reported as giving more attention to the canter than the walk or trot, that is not what I intended to convey. We are required at this show to pass upon these three gaits, and I consider each one of them as equally important. If any preference is shown it should be for the walk. In my country we ride a horse from the walk to the trot and then break him into a canter. Over here it seems to be the fashion to pull the horse from the trot back to the walk and then rush him into the canter. That would not win prizes at the Olympia in London or at the Dublin Horse Show.

"My idea of a good type of saddle horse is that he should have two good ends with a nicely put on head and neck, having range enough to give plenty of length in front. This requires plenty of slope from the shoulders to the withers. He should be deep of heart, standing on good legs, with knees and hocks of good size and plenty of muscle on the second thighs. He should have an aristocratic tail—that is, one well set up and arched in a natural way."

Walter Winans will drive in the matinée to-morrow on the Speedway Drive. He will probably drive the Austrian bred trotter Willy, 2:07¼, winner of yesterday's roadster class. Mr. Winans last Summer in England sold the saddle horses Richmond and Avoca, not caring for them, as he considered they had lost their usefulness. The horses were brought to this country. In one class Mr. Winans has been defeated by Richmond, while in another Avoca was placed ahead of his entry.

In connection with the purchase by Mr. Winans of E. T. Stotesbury's roadsters, Lugano and Como, for a good round sum, the two most valuable horses in the Garden are owned by his brother, Louis Winans, who resides in England, and who has never been in this country. They are the stallion Willy, 2:07¼, made on the Grand Circuit this season, and Allen Winter, 2:06½.

Mr. Winans has refused $50,000 for Willy, who won the Speedway Cup for trotters for amateurs to drive at the Empire track, Yonkers, last August. To-day in the roadster class for trotters with records of 2:30 or better, Mr. Winans will show Allen Winter, for which he paid $50,000 two years ago. Allen Winter that Summer won at Boston the $50,000 American Handicap—the most valuable race for trotters ever held in the United States. Mr. Winans took Allen Winter to England to be raced on the Continent, but did not face the starter. He has now been sent back to this country, and after being shown here to-day will be retired for the Winter and raced here next Summer with Willy. The horses, which represent $100,000, will be in charge of Al Pennock of Cleveland, Ohio.

Percherons and Clydesdales were the types in the ring for the morning, the most important and valuable heavy draught horses of the hour, and also the medium by which the native light draught horses will be bred with more bone and substance.

There had been a heavy entry of Percherons by McLaughlin Brothers of Columbus, Ohio, who have for thirty years brought to this country the prize winners in the breed of the Paris heavy horse show, and who visit annually the largest breeders of the Province of La Perche in search of young stock. They are also breeding them. W. O. Thompson of Columbus and the Ohio State University's Agricultural Department had also entries of Percherons. None of these Columbus entries came on, as the owners had heard that several carloads of horses had been held up in transit by the express strike, and they were afraid to risk loss for a similar reason. The only Percheron shown was the fine imported Independence, a winner at the Syracuse State Fair, and owned by Charlotte E. Ward of Rome, N. Y., which received a blue ribbon in the class for two-year-olds on general excellence, although there was no opposition.

Fine Exhibit of Clydesdales.

There was a fine exhibit of Clydesdales in four classes: R. A. Fairburn of the Fair Acre Farm, of New Market, N. J., took the blue ribbon in the class for mares, 2 years and over, with Princess Fortune, and he was the contender against the Canadians, the Graham Renfrew Company of Toronto, in the other classes. The Clydesdales represented the prize winners at the best Scottish shows and their descendants. They were well judged by Prof. Galbraith of Wisconsin. Mr. Fairburn is the only gentleman farmer of New Jersey and the Eastern States to specialize in heavy draught horse breeding. The Jersey State Bureau of Live Stock Breeding has been importing heavy draught stock to improve the draught horses of its territory. In the opinion of horsemen, Mr. Fairburn's private enterprise already is of more importance in that direction than the efforts of the State Bureau.

The Graham Renfrew Company won first and second prizes in the class for Clydesdale stallions with Sailor King and Wamphay Lad respectively. The same exhibitor's Baron Marcus won the blue rosette for two-year-old stallions and Gay Spring the prize for four-year-old stallions.

William H. Moore scored a notable victory in the class for pairs of harness horses over 15 hands 3 inches, with the bay geldings Highroller and Hinocker. It was a difficult class to judge and the victory was secured only after a close contest with George Watson's Florham Regent and Florham Royal. The latter pair made an excellent showing. Lehman Strauss showed a promising pair in Hector and Stellas, which gained favor with the spectators. C. W. Watson's Moonshine and Lady Witcham Friar received the white rosette.

The American Saddle Horse Breeders' Association's prize for the best three-gaited saddle horse up to carrying 160 pounds went to Godfrey Preece's chestnut mare None Nicer, which was well ridden by Jimmy Sweigert. None Nicer is a well-built chestnut mare with great possibilities. Myron H. Oppenheim's Fairy Queen captured second honors from George Watson's bay mare Florham Belle.

Walter Winans scored in the light-harness class with his big bay stallion Willy, which performed very creditably and in direct contrast to his actions on Monday, when his erratic behavior in the ring led to his exclusion from the prize money. Under the expert handling of Al Pennock, Willy showed all the fine qualities of a well-bred trotter. William M. V. Hoffman's Teneriffe was placed second in this class.

Shetland ponies made a pretty showing, but the qualities of the entrants were so pronounced that the judges showed little hesitation in selecting Mrs. E. F. Hawley's Bressay of Pittsford as the winner. Mrs. John Gerken's Toronto captured the second prize. Fair Acre Farm's Evader was easily the class for Clydesdale stallions of any age.

Women held the centre of attraction in the class for pairs of mares and geldings shown before ladies' phaetons. The women drivers made a splendid showing and drove with considerable skill and judgment. The real contest was between W. H. Moore's Phyllis and Menella, driven by Mrs. A. E. Kellar, and Kitty Grey and Norena, with Mrs. C. W. Watson driving. The competition was for the Baudouine Cup, which, after a keen contest, went to the Moore entry. Mrs. Watson's pair was placed second, with Paul A. Sorg's Tease and Torment, driven by Mrs. Belle Beach Bain, third.

Miss E. Rasmussen rode H. R. Rea's Indian Flower to victory in the class for thoroughbred saddle horses. The winner is a magnificent chestnut mare and made a splendid appearance in the ring. Godfrey Preece sent Indian Flower into the ring in excellent condition. Miss Vera Morris hode her own horse, Tantalus, and secured the second prize. Tantalus was on his best behavior and went through his paces in the most approved fashion. Jack Bowman's riding did much toward getting the third prize for Walter Winans's Bugle March.

Amateur Whips in Contest.

Four of the leading amateur whips in the country drove in the best entry list of four-in-hands ever judged in this country. The teams were owned by William W. Moore, E. W. Watson, Paul A. Sorg, and Alfred G. Vanderbilt. The Watson coach was driven by E. H. von der Horst Koch, while the other exhibitors drove their own horses. It was the most difficult class of the day to judge. Several times the ring officials mounted the box seats of the coaches and carefully scrutinized the work of the horses. The competition narrowed down to the Moore and Watson entries, but final judgment went to the former, although public opinion was about evenly divided between the first and second teams. Mr. Moore drove splendidly, while his horses trotted smoothly and easily. The Watson horses were rather too showy for park use.

J. W. Harriman's Lady Dilham, under the clever handling of Jack Donnelly, showed all her old-time action in the harness horse class between 14 hands 2 inches and 15 hands. Lady Dilham carried herself well and developed plenty of speed. William H. Moore's bay gelding Flourish and the same owner's Whitewall Ariel were placed second and third, respectively. Mr. Moore drive Flourish, but failed to bring out the bay gelding's best efforts. Whitewall Ariel earned the orange rosette over Fairmont Farm's Ringing Bells.

Qualified hunters kept the judges busy for more than an hour. Thirty horses were first sent over the jumps and then judged on their conformation. There was considerable difference of opinion among the judges on conformation, the blue ribbon finally going to Mrs. Thomas Hitchcock's chestnut gelding, Coronet, a good weight-carrying hunter. Henry C. Phipps got the second prize with Streator Cyclone, while Edwin H. Weatherbee's Keswick was placed third on the list.

Polo ponies opened the evening session; the light-weight division brought out four entries, all of which proved handy and well mannered. Barabel, a clever acting bay mare, entered by the Valley Farm and driven by J. B. Thomas, was adjudged the winner, while the heavy-weight class, up to carrying 200 pounds, went to the black mare Skit, owned and ridden by Henry C. Phipps. The second prize went to Pilgrim, with Mr. Thomas riding.

There was lively competition in the big saddle horse class, in which Henry Rea's champion, Heartspring, met with unexpected defeat. Godfrey Preece rode Heartspring, but the judges selected George Watson's chestnut mare, Florham Flirtation, for the blue ribbon. Florham Flirtation is a powerful, well acting horse, and showed to advantage.

In the appointment class for pairs of mares or geldings to be shown before victorias, the judges sent three pairs out of the ring, leaving but William H. Moore's Lord Seaton and Lady Seaton, and Paul A. Sorg's Dignity and Manhattan. The former pair won the premier award, and somewhat easily earned the decision.

There was plenty of excitement during the judging of the tandem class. Morris G. Howlett, who drove James McLean's Leader of Fashion and Lady of Fashion with his leader rearing and rolling had trouble throughout the judging, which continued with his leader rearing up and rolling over in the tanbark. Several of the tandems gave their drivers a busy time, but once straightened out the horses made an excellent showing. J. W. Harriman's Lady Dilham and Starlight won the class, with A. G. Vanderbilt's Columbia and Madge second. W. H. Moore with Lonsdale and Menella received the yellow rosette, while J. Campbell Thompson, who made his first appearance at the show, was behind Mrs. J. S. Walsh's Honesty and Honor Bright.

A novel spectacle was presented in the closing class, which was for ladies' qualified hunters to be ridden by women. It was one of the largest classes of the day, and several of the fair riders rode more than one horse. In style, fearlessness, and judgment the women were in no way behind the men who rode earlier in the day. They fenced well and won unstinted applause by their cleverness. Forty-one horses were entered in the class, and it required more than an hour to return the winner. Nine horses were selected after the jumping for conformation. Miss Hilda Halloway rode Peggy Comer, the winner. It was Miss Halloway's first win in the jumping class in the Garden. E. H. Weatherbee's Taconite, ridden by Mrs. Julian Morris, was second, and Hon. Adam Beck's Sir Thomas, with Mrs. Adam Beck riding, secured the third prize.

THE INTERBOROUGH'S DUTY.

On the day which was to witness the award of the contracts for the Triborough Subway, it is said publicly that delay is necessary because of the doubt that the awards would be approved if made. This creates a difficult situation, and one impressed with an opportunity—perhaps even a duty—for the Interborough. On the one hand is a plan for transit relief which is so impracticable as to be measurably near abandonment. No one who defends it discusses the criticisms of experts. The arguments are that the people have voted for it—although it was not in existence when the people voted—and that the Interborough ought to suffer for its profits. On such reasoning the city is urged to spend every dollar it can command for ten years, and there is no alternative in sight. The Triborough or nothing is the apparent alternative.

It is clear what an embarrassment this creates for any one who is charged with an official discretion, and who finds himself compelled to act under a degree of duress. It is conceivable that an official might be satisfied with the expert condemnations of the Triborough plan, and yet might shrink from vetoing the only plan in sight. The situation would seem to contain the last remnant of threat to the Interborough that the city would build if the Interborough did not. It is true that this big stick has lost much of its weight by the discredit attaching to the present Triborough plans, but it is also true that they are capable of such amendment that their vitality might be restored. The way for the Interborough to avoid what would be so undesirable for itself is to provide something which would be equally desirable for both the public and itself. The way for the Interborough to defeat the Triborough is to provide an alternative preferable from all points of view.

Nothing could be easier, and the Interborough's duty arises from the fact that its contract places it in such a position of monopoly that the city otherwise can supply itself only with the second best possible rapid transit on any plan whatever. Nothing can make good the preference possessed by the Interborough through its command of the best routes. All other routes must be inferior to the H route until such time as the expenditure of unlimited treasure shall perhaps make over the city to fit its rapid transit, instead of having the rapid transit fitted to the city. That was the policy pursued by the city with its bridges, and they have had hardly an appreciable portion of the anticipated effect in making over the city, and have failed of their best usefulness exactly in that proportion. Repetition of that experience, with $200,000,000 pledged to the experiment, would be a calamity. Admittedly the Interborough is discharging the full measure of its contract obligation. It is even so much better than its contract that it is carrying twice as many passengers as was anticipated. It is paying double dividends because it is performing double service, and is unpopular precisely on that account. We are not appealing to its better nature, not even to its civic sentiment. We are merely addressing to it the same caution which not so long ago we addressed to the Public Service Commission. We urged it to be cautious how it pressed too far the advantage it possessed in the unpopularity of the Interborough, and in its opportunity to devise plans which should force the hands of the enemy corporation. The advice was not heeded, but we are mistaken if the Commission does not now regret that its position is less commanding than it was, or than it might have been made. So now we caution the Interborough not to presume too far upon its renewed advantage. The crisis makes its constituency almost desperate, willing well-nigh to approve plans which could be made to seem preposterous. Let the Interborough propose something more attractive, in reliance that if it shall do so it will not be grudged even twofold profits if again it shall provide twofold service. The time is short.

NOT THE GOVERNOR OF A PARTY.

Gov.-elect Wilson makes a declaration of his policy as Governor identical in principle, and almost identical in words, with a similar statement of intention by President Taft:

> It will be my pleasure and privilege to serve them, not as the head of a party, but as the servant of all classes and of all interests, in an effort to promote the common welfare.

Mr. Wilson ought to be strengthened in such good intentions by observation both of the applause which greeted Mr. Taft's similar declaration, and of the retribution which fell upon Mr. Taft whenever he departed from it. Such misfortune as has befallen President Taft followed fast upon the heels of his attempts to act as Republican leader rather than as President of the United States. For example, he approved a tariff devised by Republicans for Republicans, and found himself in disagreement with the majority of Americans, and his party none the better for his mistake.

It would have been better if President Taft had remembered his declaration that he was the President of the Democrats also, and his misadventure will be a warning to Gov. Wilson to remember that he is Governor of Republicans as well as of Democrats. Assuredly Democratic votes alone would never have given him a majority which marks him as a man with a future, and the interests of Republicans and Democrats alike will be safeguarded by a Governor who declares his intention to serve all New Jersey.

JOHN LA FARGE.

The place of Mr. La Farge in the aesthetic and intellectual life of the country, and especially of New York, cannot be filled. The circumstances of his descent and life, the quality and extent of his culture, the variety of his work, the personal influence he exerted, cannot be repeated.

Of purely French family, born in New York when St. John's Park was a choice residential quarter of the modest town, studying letters and art in Paris amid a circle of culture and distinguished relatives, and working out his career amid the confusing and strenuous development of the United States in the latter half of the nineteenth and the first decade of the twentieth century, he attained excellence and distinction without being a leader or the founder of a school, and probably without wishing to be. By the traditions and tendencies of his ancestry, in his work as in his social life, he had the aristocratic bent in the sense that only what he regarded as the best and the highest would satisfy him. The range of his gifts and qualities was very great. As a painter, whether of delicate and elusive flowers or of large mural compositions; as an inventor, worker, artist in glass from jeweled panes to great windows; and still more as a student of art, its possibilities, its limitations, its vital secret, his life was a long series of progressive success and still more progressive effort. And with his achievement in the line of his profession he showed at odd times in his lectures, in his account of his experience and impressions of travel in the South Seas and in occasional essays in criticism, a literary gift of rare subtlety, effectiveness and charm, and of complete individuality. Paul Bourget, a remote, intellectual kinsman, speaks of La Farge's "nervous activity, unappeased by any effort, unsatisfied through any experience, and seeking, and seeking again." It is a suggestive characterization and a just one.

THE INCOME TAX.

Cannot the House of Governors, in the five days' session beginning the 29th of this month, find time to consider the progress which the proposed sixteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution is making among the States?

The latest platforms of both parties in twelve States—namely, Ohio, Maine, Iowa, New Hampshire, Indiana, Wisconsin, Montana, Kansas, Idaho, Nevada, North Dakota, and Colorado—favor without qualification the passage of this amendment by their respective Legislatures; the platforms of the victorious Republicans of California and Utah commit them in its favor, and the Democrats of Connecticut, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Nebraska, Rhode Island, Vermont, and Tennessee are likewise pledged in their respective platforms. The Legislatures of Illinois, Georgia, Alabama, Maryland, South Carolina, Oklahoma, and Mississippi, seven in all, have ratified the amendment since its submission by Congress one year ago. Inasmuch as forty-two State Legislatures will convene in 1911, ratification by thirty-five States, making the necessary three-fourths majority, may not be long delayed, unless some firm check of reason and of leadership shall be applied.

Such a check was applied last year by one strong Governor. Largely because of Gov. Hughes's candid objection to the proposed amendment in its present form, the States of New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Ohio deferred ratification of the amendment, and the Legislature of Virginia rejected it. Twenty-seven Governors have this Fall been elected. More than this number of Governors will be asked next January to recommend the measure in their messages. Their approval or their disapproval of it will have weight.

"I am in favor of conferring upon the Federal Government the power to lay and collect an income tax without apportionment among the States according to population," Gov. Hughes said in his special message of Jan. 5, 1909. He added:

> But the power to tax incomes should not be granted in such terms as to subject to Federal taxation the incomes derived from bonds issued by the State itself, or those issued by municipal Governments organized under the State's authority. To place the borrowing capacity of the State and of its governmental agencies at the mercy of the Federal taxing power would be an impairment of the essential rights of the State which, as its officers, we are bound to defend.

The amendment proposes that the Federal Government may lay and collect taxes on incomes "from whatever source derived." Incomes not only from ordinary real or personal property, but also incomes derived from State and municipal securities, are included in this sweeping grant of power. Congress has repeatedly endeavored to tax such incomes, and the Supreme Court has ruled that by "necessary implication" it was never intended that the means of the States' separate existence should be thus imperiled. The power to tax is the power to destroy. Why should the States, knowingly and explicitly, hand this power over to the Government at Washington?

DOWN WITH PRICES.

Joy was unrestrained because Wall Street got the sort of verdict at the polls that it wanted, and Wall Street prices fell. That will teach Wall Street a lesson, was the comment of those who delight in Wall Street's misery, not appreciating how very vicarious are the pains and pleasures of Wall Street. Now the prices of foodstuffs are falling, and joy is unrestrained once more. See how the cost of living is reduced already, and we are getting already what we voted for.

We join the rejoicing at the reductions, and yet we admit that we are puzzled. The election produced neither cows nor calves, nor yet pigs nor sheep. And yet all meats are falling further and faster than the stocks and bonds in Wall Street. How is this? The Republican tariff, of course, produced the nine-billion dollar crops, and the crops in the course of time will produce flesh meat. But the lower prices are here to-day. How is it that the omnipotent Beef Trust does not mark up its prices on the same day that the courts decide the litigation against it in its favor? If the perverse people persist in eating less meat, why should not the trust make them pay enough more to keep up its profits? Can it be possible that the trust has no power to make people eat what they cannot pay for, and that it was only able to mark up prices because its goods were taken away by those who paid for them? Can it be that trusts are impotent on falling markets?

ONE TRUST SMASHED.

Last week the Imperial Glass Company was convicted and fined under the anti-trust law. The ordinary procedure is to appeal. This trust is not that kind of trust. It did not mean to break the law, but, having been told on the court's authority that it was breaking the law, it forthwith resolved to comply with the law. Accordingly it stopped operations altogether. The telegram from Pittsburg proceeds:

> The action will throw about 1,000 skilled workmen out of work. Unless the window glass workers accept a reduction in wages, every window glass plant being worked by hand will be closed.

There are less employment and lower wages for the workers, and an end of competition for all the rivals of the trust. Is this what the anti-trust law was designed to produce, and if so what would be the effect of enforcing it generally? In one of the earliest decisions under the statute the Federal Supreme Court said that the plea of "disaster" from the enforcement of the law was wrongly made to the court, which could not be influenced by any such argument. President Roosevelt said that business could not be conducted in accordance with the statute, and President Taft said that "this statute could be used to punish combinations of the most useful character, like partnerships, and other business arrangements conceded by all to be legitimate and proper." Can there be any doubt of the wisdom of the law which reveals its true character as it is enforced, and whose enforcement has too long been delayed because of the perception of what would be the results of compelling compliance with it?

THE OPERA SEASON.

The opening of the opera season in New York has been for many years both as a social incident and a public function of unrivaled brilliance. As a gathering together of an immense crowd of very wealthy persons, bringing with them visible certificates of their riches, it can be equaled in no other city of the modern world. Covent Garden and the Paris Opéra can show nothing in this way to rival the now world-famous parterre of the Metropolitan Opera House. From this point of view the opening of our opera season is generally treated in print, with many apt reflections, moral, ironical, or amiably humorous. But to dismiss it merely as a more or less vulgar display of wealth, expressed in millinery and jewelry, is unfair and short-sighted.

New York generously supports music of the best quality. The Philharmonic concerts and those of the New York Symphony Society, the Boston Orchestra, the Kneisel and Olive Mead quartets, and the many recitals of famous instrumentalists and singers in the Winter months draw great crowds. A large proportion of the people who thus liberally and appreciatively support pure music are in the opera audiences. The assemblage of Monday night was as thoroughly representative of the intellectual and artistic sides of life in the metropolis as it was of inherited or recently accumulated wealth. The "new rich" were not in the majority, nor did wealth dominate in the audience, though it was so conspicuously placed. Every field of intellectual endeavor was well represented. The best brains of the great city were there.

Opera must always be a luxury. It cannot be given cheaply, and it must have the support of fashion as well as that of the musical amateurs. In a New York opera audience such as that of Monday night the proportions are just. No one element in the complex crowd in boxes, stalls, and balconies actually counts for more than another. Society's support of the opera provides not only a pleasing and uplifting diversion for itself, but secures to the rest of us the best opera in the world, the greatest singers, the finest orchestra, the most competent leaders, the most efficient chorus, the best pictorial equipment.

It is a well-worn gibe that many persons who go to the opera do not comprehend the music, that their judgment is formed for them by others. Doubtless that is still true in New York to a certain extent, but musical taste has been greatly developed here by slow and sure processes. All the old jests about gossiping in the boxes while the performance is in progress and yawning over serious music belong to the past. Monday night's audience was alert, attentive, obviously appreciative. It could scarcely have waxed enthusiastic over an eighteenth century work which cannot be thoroughly revivified. One noticeable feature of the new season is the reclamation of the grand tier boxes. It is an agreeable feature. The beginning of the season has been auspicious and the promise of a full term of lyric drama of the best quality, well sung and acted, should interest and satisfy everybody.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Establishing a Fine Distinction. When one remembers how few years ago it was when our city officials, like all the rest of the world, managed to get along without any automobiles at all, and that even yet the rest of the world sees in these machines luxuries rather than necessities, the taxpayers of the city can, we think, be pardoned if it is with what are called "mingled emotions" that they read about the number of municipal motor cars, what they cost to buy, and what it costs to run and repair them.

Of course, the automobile has its uses as well as its pleasures, and there is no difficulty at all in seeing how the efficiency of an official whose duties take him to many parts of the city would be increased if he were able to make his daily journeys easily and swiftly. In all such cases the expenditure of public money for an automobile may well be an economy, instead of an extravagance, and some officials really need, probably, more than one of them. Only a few old fogies, therefore, will say that no city automobiles are justified, but there is something of excuse, to put the matter mildly, for the widespread suspicion that there are more city automobiles than would be required if they were used for nothing except the city's service, and if they were provided only for the officials whose work they facilitate to a degree that more than balances the additional expense.

This suspicion will be strengthened—it may even be turned into a belief, and that would be truly terrible—if the department heads and subheads and sub-subheads who now have one or more cars as completely at their disposal as are those of private owners are injudicious enough to antagonize the proposition to keep most of the city automobiles in city garages and to send them out as occasion arises for their legitimate use. That much money could thus be saved is obvious, but it is not obvious that the new plan would cause any avowable trouble or inconvenience. It would, indeed, emphasize the fact that a city automobile is public, not private, property, and it would put difficulties and dangers in the way of those who in the past have not kept that distinction either clearly or constantly in mind.

That would not be an intolerable misfortune for anybody, and its advantages would be so many that the mere suggestion of the reform makes its execution, sooner or later, practically inevitable.

Unemployed Answer Accusations. Several contractors having recently explained their employment of alien laborers on the ground that natives refuse to work, it is interesting to notice that at the anniversary meeting of the Bowery Mission several reasons for this refusal were presented with much vivacity by and in behalf of the unemployed Americans.

One of them said, for instance, that when he tried to get a job the contractor's agent looked at him suspiciously and, when told the truth, said that he wouldn't do. That seems unkind, but perhaps the agent knew by experience that the place would have been taken only to be soon abandoned, and that is both expensive and troublesome. Another native who did get a job complained that he was expected to work, or rather to live, in conditions intolerable to the native born, and that he did not get all the money he earned before he quit.

Looking beneath the surface of these statements, both sides to the controversy seem to be saying the same thing in different words. The contractors get the men who will do the work they want done, and they are men who live in ways not pleasant to those of higher social knowledge and ambition. The natives in effect admitted the charge that they do not want employment—of that particular kind.

As for the farmers, who complain that they cannot get workers at seed time and harvest, they were sufficiently answered by the statement that brief periods of employment have no attractions for those who can get anything else.

VALUE OF WANT ADS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your newspaper possesses many admirable features, news and editorial, but there is one which especially commends itself to me by reason of the care and discretion marking its development. I refer to your "want" department. This may appear to the philosopher a very trifling concern, but when one's comfort depends on the kind of domestic help one is enabled to obtain for the home the average man may feel disposed to give the matter serious consideration. I venture to say, and I know it from practical experience, that servants for general housework, cooks, and parlor maids obtained through an advertisement in The Times are far superior both in conduct and ability to those obtained through other mediums.

I also advertised recently in your newspaper for a clerk in my office, and placed a similar advertisement in one of your contemporaries. It is worth while to remark that the men who responded to the latter were crude in demeanor and uneducated, and that those who came in reply to the advertisement in The Times were courteous and polished, and gave every evidence of intelligent training. It is very certain that the scrutiny exercised by The Times helps employers of all kinds in the selection of the help they need—that is to say, if they are looking for the help that is help and not a hindrance and a nuisance in the home or the office.

McCLELLAN'S PLAYGROUNDS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

On page 2 of to-day's issue of The Times a report of the playground discussion at the Church of the Holy Trinity in Brooklyn last night credits Mr. Howard Bradstreet, who has earnestly worked for the betterment of playgrounds, with statements which do an injustice to the former Mayor of New York, Hon. George B. McClellan.

The Times, in quoting Mr. Bradstreet, says: "That committee was handed the largest gold brick I have ever heard of. We worked hard and took it seriously. It is a mystery to me now why it was ever called. Mayor McClellan certainly never cared anything about it. We held our meetings in a room next to his office, and he never came near us. We had an exhaustive report ready about the beginning of November, before he left office. But we never presented it to him, for we decided that there had been no sincerity behind his appointment of the committee. It was transmitted to Mayor Gaynor, and he has promised to take it up this Fall. It will be made the basis of our argument for better conditions."

Having had something to do with the appointment of the Playground Commission by Mayor McClellan, and having been honored with the position of Secretary of that commission, it would be an injustice to ex-Mayor McClellan for me to permit the statements attributed to Mr. Bradstreet to pass without a word in defense of the ex-Mayor. He is entitled to a great deal of credit for the advancement made in playground work in the City of New York. He was always willing to hear those who were desirous of bettering conditions, and if, for one reason or another, conditions were not greatly improved at the time it is hardly fair to place the blame on him.

I do not think the committee was gold-bricked at all; far from it. I think the work the committee did was along the right lines, and Mayor McClellan encouraged us in our good work. Mr. Bradstreet is credited with saying that it is a mystery to him why the committee was ever called. That it easily answered. During Mayor McClellan's administration I talked with him repeatedly on the subject of more playgrounds and better playgrounds, and he always exhibited a great deal of interest. Quite true, the meetings of the committee were held in the City Hall and the Mayor did not attend. It was not necessary. He had as his representative the President of the Board of Aldermen, Hon. Patrick F. McGowan, who kept the Mayor informed of the proceedings of the commission.

Now Mr. Bradstreet must know that the exhaustive report that he speaks of was ready to be handed to Mayor McClellan toward the close of his term of office, but the members of the committee felt that it would be much better for the future of the playground movement if they held over the report for the incoming Mayor, the Hon. William J. Gaynor, who had expressed great interest in playground work, and who is still very much interested.

The encouragement the committee received from Mayor McClellan was responsible for the Playground bill presented at Albany last Winter, and I really believe we accomplished a great deal. It was the first time in the history of New York that a Mayor could be interested sufficiently in playground work. It was the first time in the history of the city that a bill such as that presented by Assemblyman Toombs received the indorsement of the Legislature.

As one member of the commission, and as Secretary, I will not acquiesce in Mr. Bradstreet's charges, and I certainly think it was unfair to the former Mayor to criticise him for his alleged lack of interest in playground work. Mr. McClellan was interested in playgrounds and everything that pertained to the youth of our city, and did a lot to help this movement onward. Mr. Bradstreet must admit that even now, after a year's labor, the work is far from being in a perfect state.

In conclusion, I want to say that I think we owe a lot to our former Mayor, Hon. George B. McClellan. I would state further, as one of those who suggested to Mayor McClellan the appointment of this committee, that we explained to him that it would not be necessary for him to give up his valuable time to attend meetings. The committee attended to all the detail work, and the Hon. Patrick F. McGowan, President of the Board of Aldermen, acted as the Mayor's representative and kept him duly informed of the proceedings.

A FRIEND OF RAILROADS.

Says We Should Remember Theirs Is a Technical Business.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

To-day's comments in "Topics of the Times" by the always interesting writer of that column relative to the widespread unpopularity of the railways or rather perhaps of the managements of them suggested the following possible explanation of some phases of that distrust which I should rather call misunderstanding than hatred. However, we often hate what we do not understand.

A railway is a very technical enterprise. To be successful the management has to conform to courses of action determined by experience and which may be defined as the "present state of the art." Unless a man has had some scientific training he cannot realize the innumerable pains that must be taken to insure the success of any scientific experiment or enterprise, and a railway is really a scientific experiment of the first magnitude, with a vast number of infinitely varying ingredients. A single mischance out of some thousands of possibilities may cause failure or even disaster, and to then expect a man who has some idea of the difficulties to explain definitely to a crowd of people who have the least idea is about as reasonable as it would be to ask Wilbur Wright why he did not invent and perfect the aeroplane fifteen years ago and expect a complete explanation in five minutes. Because a railway man can't do a similar stunt we are apt to call him stupid or insolent or some other term of regard, when it is usually ourselves who should be blamed for expecting too much.

Railway men after all are human, and it is human nature to see the seamy side of one's own job and the smooth side of the other man's; it is also true that the more a job requires of special qualifications the surer the average man is that he can handle it. A man has to spend some years to learn a mechanical trade, but anybody can run a railroad or be President or write a popular novel. Let the irritated traveler think of how he should feel if he had to explain and apologize for all his own business mistakes and those of his associates several times a day to people for the most part utterly ignorant of the business.

And now in conclusion let the writer state that he is not remotely connected with or related to any railway; but that he has used them considerably and can recall but very few instances where a fair question did not get a frank and civil reply.

Flowers for Public Schools.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me through your columns publicly to thank the Commissioner of Parks for the Borough of the Bronx for his gift of flowers from the park greenhouses to the public schools. I believe if other Commissioners could hear the ecstatic "Ah!" that comes from a class of children when the school bouquet is carried into their room for the morning or the afternoon session that the happy practice, inaugurated by Commissioner Higgins, would find its counterpart in the other boroughs. There must be much of this greenhouse material that goes to waste.

To take the converse view: Why may not the Park greenhouses purposely grow flowers for such exhibition in the classrooms of the public schools?

In my own case, long-stemmed chrysanthemums being sent, I placed them into a pail and the pail into a ticker tape basket and made a cluster half a yard wide of glorious blooms. This huge bouquet then was sent circulating about the school, half a day in each classroom. This is nature study that needs no drilling!

PALISADES PARK ASSURED.

Vote in the State Promises to be Affirmative—Court Amendment Carried.

The vote cast in this city for the constitutional amendment to increase the number of Judges of the Court of Appeals and to increase their salary and the proposal to have the State issue bonds in the amount of $2,500,000 for the development of the Palisades Park practically assures the approval of both of those measures. The vote from districts outside of this city has not yet been fully canvassed, but the preliminary canvass in this city shows an overwhelming vote in favor of both.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman, widow of the railroad magnate, has already given 10,000 acres of land in the Highlands of the Hudson to insure the establishment of a State park along the west shore of the Hudson practically from Palisades to Newburg, and has added to this a gift of $1,000,000.

Contingent on the approval of the voters for the bond issue wealthy residents of this State and New Jersey have pledged themselves to add $1,625,000 to the munificent benefaction of Mrs. Harriman.

The constitutional amendment provides for the election of two additional Judges of the Court of Appeals. There are eight at present. With the two new ones, it is proposed to discontinue the practice of assigning Justices of the Supreme Court to service in the Court of Appeals. The proposed increase in the salaries of the Court of Appeals Judges will be in the case of the Chief Judge from $10,500 to $15,500 and in the case of the Associate Judges from $10,000 to $15,000. At present the Judges receive in addition to their salaries $3,700 a year in expenses. When the increase goes into effect this will be abolished.

	For.	Against.
Manhattan and the Bronx	116,370	32,039
Brooklyn	78,472	33,261
Queens	18,048	7,237

For the Constitutional amendment the plurality was 203,513 out of a total of 406,829 votes.

The Chamber of Commerce announced yesterday the names of the special committees authorized at the meeting on Nov. 3 to take up the matter of the Harriman Inter-State Park and the Bronx Parkway. The members are: John A. Bensel, Chairman; Isaac N. Seligman, Alfred T. Boller, J. Warren Thayer, and Julio S. Sorzano.

THE GOOD OF BIRDS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Some time ago you published an editorial article entitled "Shall Another Illusion Be Abandoned?" in which you gave some credence to the views of a certain would-be naturalist, who asserted that "birds do more harm than good." Such a statement, while certainly applicable to the English sparrows, when used in a broad sense, can only be regarded as vicious. In voicing such an opinion Mr. Baskett convicts himself of both ignorance and egotism. While his statement will be received with joy by the millinery interests, who are badly in need of some excuse for their rapacity and inhumanity in slaughtering millions of innocent and useful birds, it will be repudiated with disgust by any self-respecting naturalist. It has been repeatedly proved that birds as insect destroyers are intensely necessary to the pursuit of agriculture. The Audubon societies are not operating for the fun of it, but their unselfish efforts in endeavoring to protect the birds are often ridiculed by the thoughtless. Massachusetts has spent millions of dollars trying to check the gypsy and brown-tailed moths; more millions are annually expended on the elm leaf beetles, canker worms, and other orchard pests, &c. Much of this expense could be saved if certain species of birds had not decreased in numbers. And yet Mr. Baskett denies the balance of nature!

Twenty years ago a destructive species of insect borer infested the spruce forests of the Adirondacks. The noble evergreens seemed doomed to destruction when there occurred an immigration of woodpeckers to the affected regions. The borers were exterminated, and have not been heard from since. Quite recently an insect pest visited a certain patch of woods in Germany. Nearly every tree was defoliated, while a near-by forest, in which the birds were rigidly protected, was left untouched. Any number of similar instances might be cited, showing how invaluable birds are to the existence of vegetation, and hence to mankind. And their value is not merely an economic one. Through their songs and beautiful plumage they appeal to the aesthetic taste as no other animals can. By all means, let us give them all possible protection. If we do not, our children may find this country in as degraded and decadent a condition as Italy, whose ignorant inhabitants make a practice of killing every bird seen.

Once more Queen Luna crosses our earth's shadow, and once more she frowns weirdly upon an unsuperstitious world. Wednesday evening is at hand, and our attention will again be drawn to our faithful satellite—to her obscured surface marked with craters, mountains, plains, and hollows. Of these craters, the most noticeable are Tycho, Copernicus, and Clavius—the crater gap of Tycho having a width of over fifty miles and a depth of over three miles.

Of the lunar mountains, some of them run, as upon our earth, in ranges, and the principal ranges bear the names of Alps, Apennines, and Caucasus, the last two ranges rising in places to a height of 18,000 to 20,000 feet. Of the plains, Grimaldi and Schickard are of importance, while of the hollows, or areas where once seas and lakes may have sparkled under the radiance of King Sol, there are prominent the Mare Crisium, the Mare Foecunditatis, and the Mare Australe.

Ehrlich's Remedy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A communication to your paper on the 8th inst. has been called to my attention by one of my old patients. The communication is from my old friend, Mr. Herman A. I beg to take issue with the former head of the currency of New York City and to state positively that, while none has been for sale, I did procure a sample of that greatest of all remedies and applied the same and sent a patient of mine away with perfect confidence.

IN THE EQUINE SWELL SET.

What, Bijou! Such a glad surprise!
  It's just a twelvemonth since we met!
How often you've been in my thoughts!
  Think not your Prince could e'er forget!

The mem'ry of our tanbark talks
  Has lingered with me, sad, yet sweet.
Gray pony of my fondest dreams,
  Be sure it's Fate, that thus we meet!

How has my year gone? Bijou mine,
  How much I've seen of life and men!
My part in tragedy I've played,
  In city street and rural glen!

Do you recall the dame so sweet
  Who joyed when I my ribbons won?
Who fed me sugar in delight?
  The one who had the fair-haired son?

  When Master comes, a blonde, smart, gay,
Will joy with him in my success.
  (Right viciously you'll hear me neigh!)

But trust me, Bijou! Master's ways
And when we meet at next year's Show,
  No bay will have supplanted you!

POINT TO LOSS OF EFFICIENCY

Earning Capacity of Freight Cars Not Utilized—Great Sums Could Be Saved in Guarding Expenses for Trifles.

When the Inter-State Commerce Commission meets next Monday in Washington to resume its consideration of the raising of freight rates asked by the railroads, the shippers will put before the Commissioners a method by which, in their opinion, the companies can make both ends meet, even though wages have been adavnced considerably, without any addition to the rates. They will attempt to show that every railroad in the country can effect economies in operation. Engineers have estimated that $300,000,000 a year can be saved in operating expenses by economy in management and stopping leaks.

"We do not wish to convey the impression that we consider that the railroad operating officials do not understand their business, but we do hold that they have not used a tool ready to their hand which has been brought to great perfection. Recently the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, among railways, and a number of industrial corporations have been studying the question of economies in operation from a scientific standpoint, and have produced excellent results. It seems to us that before the freight rates are advanced the shippers should be certain that everything has been done that is possible in the way of reducing operating costs.

"For example, the average travel of freight cars per day is only twenty-five miles. Their economic rate of movement is fifteen miles an hour. If you allow the widest possible margin for demurrage and unpreventable delays, there seems to be a great loss there. Moreover, the cars are run one-third or one-half full, and there again is waste."

Asked if he could say what the attitude of the Inter-State Commerce Commission was likely to be toward this contention, Mr. Brandeis replied:

"I have so much confidence in the idea and so much confidence in the commission that I have little doubt what the issue will be."

In his recent cross-examination before the commission of President Brown of the New York Central and Vice President McCrea of the Pennsylvania and other railroad executives, Mr. Brandeis endeavored to bring out the efficiency side of the railroad question. He also made a record of the work actually accomplished in placing railroads and shops on an efficient basis by such men as F. W. Taylor, ex-President of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, and Harrington Emerson.

Discussing the issue with a Times reporter, Mr. Emerson said: "Railroad officials have been studying their problems with a telescope. They need now a microscope."

Mr. Emerson noted that if you take a trifling part of a locomotive like a grease cup, it makes a great deal of difference to the company whether it is produced for 50 cents or $1. An automobilist who buys a single one may be indifferent, but a railroad that spends $30,000 a year on them can save $3,000 by reducing the cost by 10 cents.

In the same way, he pointed out, it must be remembered that if a railroad track is only up to 50 per cent. of its proper standard of efficiency, and the locomotive, which uses it, is also only 50 per cent. as good as it should be the resultant efficiency will not be 50 per cent. off the ideal, but only 25 per cent. If, then, the engineer is also only 50 per cent. as skilled as he might be, he will only get 12½ per cent. of the work out of the engine that would have been obtained if everything had been kept up to its proper efficiency.

WOMAN WINS LABOR MEN.

American Federation Cheers Miss Younger's Suffragette Speech.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 15.—"Woman should be able to vote so as to protect her own sex industrially," declared Miss Maude Younger of San Francisco before the American Federation of Labor late this afternoon. The statement was greeted with enthusiasm by the delegates.

Miss Younger is connected with the San Francisco Wage Earners' Suffragette Convention and is an author. Her address and that of Gov. Hadley were the most important features of the day's session. Hadley urged that one-third of the Judges and one-half of the lawyers of the country were unnecessary to the best welfare of its people.

The working committees of the convention were organized to-day, and will begin regular sessions to-morrow. Twenty or more resolutions and reports were referred to them by President Gompers at the afternoon session.

Miss Younger was presented to the convention by President Gompers after he had completed the reading of his annual report, and her appearance on the platform was the signal for cheers.

"Male wage-earners have two methods of improving their condition," she said, "by unionizing and by the ballot. Women wage-earners have but the one means—by forming unions.

"Women go out of the house and work because they have to, not because they want to. They should be protected, therefore, with every weapon, including the ballot. Women are hard to unionize, because all of them have their eyes on matrimony as an escape from toil.

"If the men help the women to get the ballot, the women in turn will employ the ballot to help the men. There are 6,000,000 women wage-earners in this country."

Before the convention ends the delegates, according to leaders, will have to decide for or against Socialism. Gompers in his report said that politically an invariable problem which confronted the trade union movement was how to take action without binding itself to a hard and fast "ism," "ology," or platform.

Victor L. Berger of Milwaukee, the Socialist Congressman-elect, and Max Hayes of Cleveland are leading in the struggle to have the convention declare for Socialism. Hayes's friends would like to see him succeed Gompers in the Presidency.

A long-standing contest was brought to an issue in the report of the Executive Council. It recommended that a charter be issued to the Western Federation of Miners. Delegates of the machinists announced they would oppose the recommendation.

ANOTHER SUFFRAGIST STAR.

The woman suffragists are studying astronomy. They have twelve new large white stars now in the process of making for Mrs. Belmont's big blue "Votes for Women" banners, which now have only four stars, except the one on which Miss Inez Milholland pinned a fifth star at the Washington jubilee meeting by the women to celebrate that State's enfranchisement of women.

Now Mrs. Belmont is having extra stars made for all the banners which decorate her headquarters, 505 Fifth Avenue, and for the flags she has given to the seven branches of her Political Equality Association. There is one at the Harlem Club, the first suffrage settlement she started; another at the Wage Earners' League, East Broadway; the Negro Men and Women's Branch, 83 West 134th Street; the Bronx Branch, the East New York, The Trained Nurses and the Women Physicians and Surgeons' Branches.

NO END OF SPARKLE TO 'NOBODY'S WIDOW'

AN EVENING OF RARE COMEDY

Roxana Clayton	Blanche Bates
Betty Jackson	Adelaide Prince
Countess Manuela Valencia	Edith Campbell
Fanny Owens	Dorothy Shoemaker
Duke of Moreland	Bruce McRae
Baron Reuter	Henry Schuman-Heink
Peter	Westhrop Saunders

It is not often that such a conjunction of brilliant talents is seen in the theatre as that which made the production of "Nobody's Widow" at the Hudson Theatre last night an occasion to be long remembered.

Mr. Avery Hopwood has written a comedy which in freshness of theme is the equal of the best of the Sardou comedies—when they were still fresh—and has handled it with such sparkle of line and deftness of situation that the result could hardly fail to be amusing under almost any conditions. Last night, however, the conditions were of the very best. To begin with, the play was enriched by an incomparably fine comedy performance by Miss Blanche Bates, aided and most ably abetted by Mr. Bruce McRae and a company which was generally as perfect as one often sees. And finally in it all and of it all was the hand of Mr. David Belasco, whose amazingly sensitive, understanding genius in the theatre seems to become more wonderful with the passing of each year.

Mr. Hopwood's theme on its face seems extremely slight for a three-act comedy. That makes it all the more remarkable to find ludicrous situation building upon ludicrous situation, and seldom if ever in such a way as to be discounted by obviousness. When this widow—who is not a widow at all—meets her presumably dead husband in her friend's villa at Palm Beach, and he swears that he will make her love him, while she in her turn swears that she will make him sorry if he attempts it, you assume if you are an old theatregoer that they will kiss and make up in the end. And, indeed, they do just that. But experienced and seasoned theatregoer that you may be you cannot possibly foresee the way they will do it or the many and various fresh expedients by which your curiosity is piqued and your interest stimulated before this end is attained.

Nor would an isolated line quoted here or there serve to convey more than a faint idea of the brilliant humor of Mr. Hopwood's dialogue, which is natural dialogue, too, in that it sounds like what the people might say under the given conditons and serves as the index to their characters.

There is Roxana Clayton, to begin with, who has married hurriedly while on a Mediterranean tour, only to find her husband the very same evening kissing another woman—one with the disconcerting name of Suzette. What newly married wife could fail to go off into a tantrum at the presence of a fly Suzette in the matrimonial honey-pot? This wife does more. She cables her friend and family that the man has suddenly died—of enlargement of the heart, she tells him later—comes back home in widow's weeds, and only to find him camping on the premises, ready to sue and woo and bully, if necessary, to win her back again. For, you see, she is everything to him and Suzette—well—Suzette was merely an incident.

In that she is just like the bogus widow's best friend Betty, who further complicates matters just at the moment when, after he has sued and seemingly lost, Roxana has gone down on "the spot" and herself confessed that she loves him with all her widow's heart.

That is where complication No. 2 comes in—one speaks of the bigger complications, not the innumerable smaller ones which keep the fun going all along. For this dead-and-gone husband, who is so much alive, in a fit of desperation—or perhaps in hopes of stirring Roxana's jealousy—has arranged for a little tete-a-tete with the flirtatious Betty, who is engaged herself to a phlegmatic person, who doesn't realize that every woman needs to be made love to at least once in so often or maybe oftener.

Now that Roxane has accepted him he would like to get out of it. But Betty misunderstands, and a scene that is indescribably funny follows. Here the husband, distrait, absent-minded, thinking only of Roxane, and constantly stealing glances at his watch, is regarded by Betty as a bold, bad man, whose advances must be discouraged, when, poor fellow, his one thought is how he may escape. Then disappointed at his lack of ardour, Betty practically throwns herself at him. Of course, his "widow" finds him here, but not in the ordinary stage way—you may be sure of that—and so does Betty's fiancé. The act eventuates in a scene of bravado on the man's part and repudiation on the part of Roxane. Incidentally the husband learns for the first time that his wife has divorced him, but he forces her to go with him to a Justice of the Peace, where the bond is tied anew.

Time now about 2 A. M. and the next scene the wife's boudoir, with the pair still sparring for time, the wife, unconvinced, and the husband as resolute as ever.

To this and the preceding scenes the word "daring" might be applied, but there is never a moment in which the exercise of good taste and the feeling for what is real and human have not been employed to satisfy artistic sense and prevent unpleasant suggestion save perhaps for those whose minds will always prefer to dwell unpleasantly upon natural relationships.

The final act from first to last is a triumph of good writing and good judgment employed upon very delicate material. There are occasional interludes, funny beyond description, such as the discovery by the engaged young man of his fiancée in the going-to-bed regalia which means a clear complexion in the morning. And though his ejaculated "Oh, my God!" might be regarded as irreverent apart from the context, it is highly natural under the circumstances. And it brought the biggest single laugh of an evening that was full of laughter. The wife's exposition of the fact that all girls look the same under these conditions provides another extremely amusing passage in this act, which moves from one funny experience to another, with its final moments so beautifully handled and so tenderly and sweetly acted that it brings the humanizing touch to the whole proceeding.

As Mr. Hopwood's brilliant little comedy has been staged so it is acted with complete understanding and perfect art by Miss Bates. For her the difficulties are many. The role of Roxane compounds many moods and often with quick and delicate changes from one demeanor to another—from girlish roguishness to more mature feminine coquetry, suggested womanly tenderness, chagrin, disappointment, anger, and disillusionment. These and more tender depths she suggested unerringly, combining all into the portrait of a woman who was appealing always for her feminity, her good-heartedness, her humor, and intelligence. Indeed, Miss Bates's acting in this play is as sincere and sound a piece of comedy work as our stage has seen in years. tI is broad, rich, deep, and comprehending. It has gayety and sweetness, authority and reticence, and, when need be, willful tempestuousness and passion. It is, in short, a compedy portrait, beautifully blended and illumined with the fine art which comes from natural intelligence, variety of experience and resource—the sort of acting, in short, which is uncommon enough nowadays to justify most enthusiastic praise.

Mr McRae, an actor of exceptionally engaging personality and unusual charm, and playing with exquisite lightness of touch, provides the best sort of support. His manliness, sincerity, and ease are thoroughly delightful. Miss Adelaide Prince, as far as can be recalled, has never appeared to quite such good advantage. Her opportunities were few until the final act, but here she played with a capital grasp of the comic possibilities of the situation.

The minor roles were all adequately filled, and the stage setting, lighting, and various incidental aids to illusion were all suggestively rich and real in the best Belasco manner.

MAHLER PLAYS DEBUSSY.

Philharmonic Presents Novelty by French Composer.

During the two weeks ending next Sunday all of the Brahms Symphonies, save the D major, will have been played in New York. The Boston Symphony Orchestra played the F major last Saturday; the Symphony Society of New York will play the E minor next Sunday, and last night Mr. Mahler led the men of the Philharmonic Society at Carnegie Hall through a performance of the C minor.

There was a very large audience present, which followed the details of the programme with interest and frequently applauded vehemently. The symphony filled that portion of the programme following the intermission. Before that came several items.

In the first place there was the "Manfred" overture of Schumann, and between that and a Saint-Saëns concerto played by Josef Hofmann, fell the first American performance of Debussy's "Rondes de Printemps."

This work, which is founded, in part at least, on an old French children's dance song, presents Debussy in the guise of a painter of May and field dances and Spring roundelays; all, of course as felt and seen and heard by this individual composer.

Mr. Hofmann's performance of the concerto was extremely brilliant, and so was the playing of the orchestra throughout the evening.

COMTE DE LESSEPS TO WED.

Aviator to Marry Miss Mackenzie, Who Accompanied Him in Flights.

The announcement was made yesterday in this city by Comte Bertrand de Lesseps of the engagement of the aviator, Comte Jacques de Lesseps, to Miss Grace Mackenzie, the youngestt daughter of William Mackenzie, the Toronto railroad man. This engagement has been rumored since midsummer, when the Comte was in Toronto at the aviation meet. The Comte became the house guest of the Mackenzies, and later a party, including the Comte and Miss Grace Mackenzie, the latter's sister, Mrs. W. S. Beardmore, and the brother and sister of the Comte, the Comte Bertrand de Lesseps and the Countess de la Begassiare, made a trip down the St. Lawrence.

Later the Comte went to Paris. He again returned to this country, and Miss Mackenzie and her two sisters came down for the Belmont Park aviation meet, and while there Miss Mackenzie took two flights with the Comte. From New York the Comte went to Baltimore and thence to Toronto, where he now is.

The Comte Jacques de Lesseps is 27 years of age, and is a son of the noted engineer, Ferdinand de Lesseps. He has always been noted for his interest in sports, and though he has been an aviator for only about a year, he is one of the most daring of his craft.

MME. JOMELLI'S RECITAL.

A Programme in Many Languages Delivered in Carnegie Hall.

A song recital by Mme. Jeanne Jomelli was given yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall. Mme. Jomelli is well known to New York from her singing in concert, and for a time in Mr. Hammerstein's opera company. She has many qualities that please the lover of singing, a brilliant and powerful soprano voice, rather hard, especially in its upper portion, and when its full power is called upon, a free and spontaneous delivery of her tones, and good ideas about phrasing. She has also a certain dramatic leaning that stands her in good stead in many of her songs, though it does not suffice to enable her always strongly to differentiate in the mood. It is unfortunate that her higher notes have the disadvantage mentioned, because in mezza voce, especially in her middle range, the voice has much beauty. It must be observed also that at times Mme. Jomelli's intonation is not of perfect purity.

She sang a programme made up of songs by Americans, Frenchmen, Germans, and an Italian; also two Netherland songs. Among the American was a long setting of a "Japanese romance" by Charles Wakefield Cadman, not so successful as other compositions of his, and containing a good deal of what is now styled "debussying." Two of the German songs were of the very "advanced" wing by Hakon Schmedes and Erich Wolff, songs that made Richard Strauss's "Mit deinen blauen Augen" one of tender beauty, seem very old fashioned. Among Mme. Jomelli's most successful attempts were the amusing setting by Brahms of songs in the dialect of Cologne and another of a similar spirit that she added to the list.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

The admirers of the Kneisel Quartet, every year an augmented band of connoisseurs, gathered in large numbers last evening at Mendelssohn Hall for the opening concert of the organization's nineteenth season in New York. The playing of the quartet was of the well-remembered perfection and beauty in all that relates to the form of art it cultivates, and it was received with all the admiration and all the manifestations of a profound satisfaction that have so long been the tribute of its audiences.

The admiration and the satisfaction were given in largest measure to the performance of Brahms's quartet in A minor, his second work in this style, one of the ripest and most beautiful of his compositions of chamber music, and one that Mr. Kneisel has not infrequently put upon his programmes. He plays it with especial authority, and with intimate knowledge of the spirit of the music and of the composer's intentions, and the performance last evening was of fine eloquence. The two middle movements, the Andante and Allegretto, are peculiarly racy of Brahms's most characteristic thoughts and expression.

Also familiar from previous performances at these concerts is Dvorak's terzetto for two violins and viola, a work that he is said to have written for his children. Two movements of it were played, the allegro and scherzo; and whatever the intentions of the composer may have been, both are above the capacities, technical and intellectual, of the most gifted children. The allegro, especially, goes deeper than many of Dvorak's more ambitious compositions, and to-day sounds fresher than many of these. The writing for the three instruments has a singular sonority, largeness of style, and independece of movement, and the performance was one in which these qualities were pre-eminent.

The last number of the programme was Giovanni Sgambati's second quintet for piano and strings, Op. 5. The Italian composer's string quartet has more than once figured on Mr. Kneisel's lists; this quintet was played for the first time. It is an early work, a fact that is published not only by the number affixed to it, but by its style and content as well. There is the melodious Italian spirit in it that is a characteristic of other works of Sgambati's made known here and there is also the ambition for substantial workmanship and for convincing elaboration of the material that came to him from north of the Alps.

In the pursuit of this ambition, however, the composer's hand is often uncertain. His treatment becomes dry, and he is apt to fall into prolixity, from which he seems helpless to extricate himself. His musical ideas have a characteristic and individual physiognomy and he writes for the instruments with skill and independence. The first movement is the most successful, both in matter and manner. There is grace in the barcarolle, in which form he has cast the second movement; and in the andante he rises at least once to a considerable passage of real eloquence and power, only to lose himself in a scholastic elaboration.

There is not one of the four movements but is overburdened with the composer's endeavor to make more of his material than it will stand, whereby he has spread it out thin and dry. There is enough in the work, however, to make it worthy of a hearing, though it cannot be put among the more fortunate of Mr. Kneisel's experiments with the new and untried.

It was played with zeal and enthusiasm; and Mr. Ernesto Consolo, who was the pianist, showed an excellent understanding of his position in the ensemble, and set forth the piano part with delicacy, crisp rhythm, and sympathetic feeling.

DAVID TENNY PULSIFER DEAD.

Mr. Pulsifer began to fail in health just after the death of his favorite race horse. Tenny was highly prized by his turfman owner, and when he died, Mr. Pulsifer's friends say, the turfman ceased to take any further interest in racing. During the last six months Mr. Pulsifer kept to his rooms in the Hotel Endicott, receiving a few of his closest friends now and then, but gradually failing.

The Pulsifer colors were almost as well known as those of James R. Keene for many years at the big racing meets of the East. And his stable usually gave a good account of itself in the more important events. The best-known horses which raced under the Pulsifer colors were Cortez and Tenny. Friends of the late turfman say that he purchased Tenny as a yearling for $100 and that the race horse returned a thousandfold on the original investment. The only defeat of his entire career as a racer came to Tenny when Salvator, a long-legged racer from a rival stable, beat Tenny both in a stake race and a match race.

Mr. Pulsifer's friends were surprised in 1902 to learn that his wife, after thirty years of married life, had brought a suit for separation. They had quarreled, it was stated, over Mrs. Pulsifer's fondness for thoroughbred dogs. Mrs. Pulsifer was a well-known dog fancier at the time, and had won many prizes at the big dog shows. uJstice Scott, before whom the separation suit was heard, refused to entertain Mrs. Pulsifer's motion, and the case was dropped.

NINE COACHES DRILL YALE ON GRIDIRON

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15.—Yale to-day began the scrimmaging campaign, which is aimed to polish off the football eleven for the final game of the season here Saturday with Harvard. Since Saturday's event at Princeton the team has been resting, but it began work to-day exactly as it took the gridiron at Princeton. This will be Yale's line-up against Harvard, according to a statement made by Capt. Daly to-night.

Kilpatrick took little practice to-day and a substitute back field went into the play after scrimmaging had progressed five minutes. Kilpatrick did not carry the ball, but played for only a few scrimmages, when the 'Varsity was on the defense. The freshmen were the 'Varsity opponents. They employed the Harvard formations, but no gains were registered. Not a first down was gained on the regulars, although at one time orders were given to the 1914 players to keep the ball until they made first down. They had lost fifteen yards after they had made eight attacks and they surrendered the oval.

Using Tom Shevlin's Minnesota tackle shift, the regulars scored four times on the freshmen. There were no long runs, but consistent gains were recorded through the line, the gaining power of the play operating like that of the former tackles back formations for just about enough ground to secure first down. Van Sinderen replaced Kilpatrick at left end, Merritt succeeded Howe at quarter back, and Freeman, Baker, Reilly, Corey, and Deming were all used in the back field. Corey is a late addition to the half back squad. Within a week his play has improved remarkably and Capt. Daly said to-night that Corey looked sure to get into the Harvard game before it closed as a substitute back.

The freshmen were not delighted at being ordered out to-day for grueling scrimmaging. They broke training after their closing game Saturday, and did not adapt themselves to rugged football this afternoon. To-morrow a longer and harder scrimmage has been decided on for the 'Varsity, and the freshmen and the scrubs have both been ordered to the firing line to try to check them.

To-day's big coaching staff included Shevlin, Coy, Sanford, Bloomer, Butterworth, Hinkey, Holt, Roraback, and Walter Camp, who remained with the squad until it was dismissed. Shevlin showed the 'Varsity two new plays. Tom Shevlin said that the improvement of the eleven continued and that the team was a hundred per cent. stronger than the first day he saw it two weeks ago. Bloomer was especially enthusiastic over the improvement. He said:

"The eleven has this week lost all that hesitancy and uncertainty of play that marked its attack when the Princeton game began. The team really found itself as the Princeton game went along. I look to see it shoot two or three plays that will sweep Harvard of their feet soon after the game begins Saturday."

Plans for distributing the substitutes were completed by the coaches to-night. Bomeisler, Mersereau, and Vaughan are all likely to receive a chance at end during the Harvard game. Savage will replace Paul for part of the fray, and Tomlinson is likely to get a chance at Scully's berth at left tackle.

Buckingham will be first substitute guard and Francis may get a chance in this position. Read will be first substitute centre. Merritt may replace Howe for part of the game at quarter back. Reilly, Corey, Baker, Deming, and Freeman are all likely to get into the game at half back.

To-day Howe received a black eye and Baker wrenched a knee slightly. Both will be back in the play to-morrow.

Plans have been made for the Harvard eleven to take signal practice on the gridiron Thursday afternoon. The Crimson kickers will come down from Farmington, lunch at the Yale Dining Club, take signal drill here, and return to Farmington at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. It is likely that the Yale first eleven will go to the Meriden Country Club Thursday afternoon and make its headquarters there until after the game Saturday.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The candidates for the Cornell line-up against Pennsylvania had a grueling practice against Pennsylvania of the coaches concentrating on half a dozen big men who look like good material, but have not shown up to the best advantage so far this year. Coaches Reed, O'Rourke, Davall, Caldwell, and Smith pounded the line hard all afternoon, putting Miller against Whyte at centre, and Goff and Austin against Hale and Franklin at guards and tackles, and for an hour these big fellows battled hard. Champaigne, O'Rourke, Munk, Delano, Zeller, and Weekes, the other 'Varsity linesmen, were detained at their studies, so the coaches had all afternoon for the others. At the close of this practice Coach Reed announced that he was more than pleased with the showing of Goff and Austin, who thus far have not gotten beyond the substitute class.

Coach Hutchinson had charge of the half backs and ends, and he was assisted by E. G. MacArthur, who played end for several years, but who did not come out this year because of his duties as captain of the 'Varsity track team.

The coaches had planned a scrimmage, but because of the absence of a dozen members of the 'Varsity squad, including such men as O'Connor, Bates, Butler, Seagrave, and Eyrich, they had to call it off.

Army Eleven All Out for Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The coaches were able to-day to get out the whole team, including those that have been on the crippled list. There was only a short scrimmage, but the men were driven through the long signal drill, using various new formations that are being worked out. The Army has been somewhat unfortunate this season with injuries to the backfield. First, Hyatt injured his ankle almost at the beginning of the season, and just before the Harvard game another wrench to the same ankle has kept him out of the game since. Brown, one of the best ground gainers the Army has, also had to lay off with a sprained ankle for over two weeks, and Dean and Surtes have just got back after nursing sprains for some time. With these men all back in the game the Army can now start the final work of building the team so as to reach its highest possible standard on Nov. 26.

Small Boy Dies of Football Injury.

MILFORD, Mass., Nov. 15.—Football has claimed a victim in this town, Edward J. Byrnes, 13 years old, dying last night of injuries received in a scrimmage three months ago. The lad was a pupil in the Park Grammar School, and while playing football was tackled and thrown against a tree. The fall caused an abscess to form on his right leg. He was the son of Thomas Byrnes.

Old Yale Centre at the Horse Show.

Capt. Wilson Mitchell Lewis, the old Yale centre, was a visitor at the Horse Show yesterday. Lewis hails from Racine, Wis., now, and while the head of the Mitchell-Lewis Motor Company, he is interested in utility horses. The Captain says there is a big demand for high-class utility horses in the West, and points to this feature as a healthy sign of the times. Incidentally the Captain saw the Yale-Princeton game last Saturday.

Hoblitzell to Remain with Reds.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Nov. 15.—President Herrmann of the Cincinnati National League Club said to-day there was no truth in the report that "Dick" Hoblitzell, first baseman of the Cincinnati team, would be exchanged for "Mike" Doolan, the Philadelphia shortstop. Herrmann stated that all matters in connection with the recent four-cornered trade between the Cincinnati and Philadelphia Clubs had been closed, and that there was no negotiations on for the trading of additional players.

Yale Dining Hall Open to Public.

The Yale University authorities will throw open the university dining hall in New Haven on Friday and Saturday for the convenience of the thousands who will attend the Yale-Harvard game on Saturday. This action has been taken because of the fact that New Haven's largest hotel, the New Haven House, is being torn down. The University Dining Club is at the corner of Grove and College Streets, and will be open to all who wish to avail themselves of its use from Friday, Nov. 18, to Monday, Nov. 21.

HARVARD QUITS STADIUM.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 15.—The Harvard eleven to-day closed its season of work in the Stadium. The entire squad will hit the trail for Farmington, Conn., to-morrow, to stay there until the game with Yale. A short visit will be paid to New Haven on Thursday and some practice will be held at Yale Field. There was light practice to-day. After the secret session, at which there was no scrimmaging, the locks were taken off the gates, the first time in a month in which other than secret practice was held, and the students flocked into the Stadium.

The student parade to the field had 2,500 men in line and made an imposing array. The 'Varsity eleven went through a short session of dummy scrimmage and kicks for the edification of the students, who cheered and sang with great fervor. Everybody was supremely confident of victory over the blue, and the new song how the old Yale bulldog is to be done up made a big hit. The tune is very much like that of the Yale undertaker song.

In the back field to-day were Wigglesworth, Corbett, Wendell, and H. Leslie, and in the line were Lewis and L. Smith, ends; McKay and Withington, tackles; Minot and Fisher, guards, and Perkins, centre. The eleven men mentioned are in all probability those who will start the game against Yale. Ted Frothingham may be in the back field, but it is doubtful, as he has jaundice.

Word was received here to-day of Yale money waiting to be put up, but at odds of 2 to 1 and 10 to 6. A Yale man sent word that there was $500 Yale money waiting to be wagered against $1,000, and another Eli backer wanted to put up $60 against $100. Harvard supporters say 2 to 1 is pretty stiff odds to ask, but think 10 to 6 is more reasonable.

REVISION OF FOOTBALL.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 15.—Plans for the revision of the football rules this Winter have progressed rapidly and there is every indication that the sessions of the Intercollegiate Rules Committee will be the most harmonious which have attended any general revision. The members have been in correspondence all Fall and have carefully watched the effect of the code which was adopted for this season. Ideas expressed by different members of the committee indicate that the members are closer together as to the present needs of football.

The material collected by Walter Camp, the Yale athletic adviser, on his trip to California, fill be placed before the committee. No football official ever made such an extensive trip, nor ever collected so much evidence of the needs of the game. Mr. Camp is a warm advocate of the main features of the revision which was ordered for this season, but he has some valuable changes of a minor nature to offer at the coming meeting of the committee.

The question which will probably be taken up first at the coming meeting is that of retaining rules which officials at games declare they could not enforce and have regarded as a dead letter all the season. These are incident to the 20-yard neutral zone for onside kicks and forward passes. It is thought that the proposed rule cutting out coaching like that at professional baseball games will be passed without opposition. The most prominent feature of the situation as the Rules Committee begins its revision plans is that the changes will be made in an entirely scientific manner and will not be left to the wishes of disconnected elements.

Some of the provisions adopted last year will be tossed out as being cumbersome and contradictory.

N. Y. U. Determined to Whip Navy.

Two consecutive defeats seem to have effected a considerable change in attitude at New York University both among the players and the students. Of late the student body has looked upon their team as a sure winner and has taken victory as a matter of course. The players, too, have had far too much confidence, and have not thought it necessary to exert themselves greatly in their recent contests. As a result they have been defeated by two teams that expected a whipping. Greatly chagrined over the turn of events, the local collegians have started to train with renewed efforts, and are determined to end their season successfully.

A new spirit was evident in yesterday's practice. The sturdy little Clinton eleven that defeated Morris High last Saturday was taken up to Ohio Field yesterday afternoon and lined up against the Violet players. They put up a pretty good fight, but the New York University men are in earnest now, and played with a determination which they have not shown in two weeks. They were able, therefore, to gain much ground from their opponents, and although no scoring was permitted, succeeded in carrying the ball up and down the field several times. New York University has only one more game on her schedule, that with the navy next Saturday afternoon.

The Annapolis eleven has a fast back field, and plays up-to-date football, which has given the New York University so much trouble of late. The midshipmen are liable to tax the local eleven's strength to the utmost. The new spirit which defeat has injected into the New Yorkers, however, will probably figure largely in the navy contest, and if the local players can show the same fighting qualities that they exhibited in yesterday's practice they have a good chance of winning. The navy is one of the few teams that has not been scored on this season. A victory over it, therefore, would make the New York University feel as though it had vindicated itself.

Navy Team's Work Satisfactory.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 15.—Though practice at the Naval Academy this afternoon was secret and will probably be conducted in the same way until the close of the season, Head Coach Berrien stated that there was little other than straight football along the lines, which would not harm the team if the Army boys knew all about it. On the whole the work of the team is satisfactory, and the question of what to do with one or two players who are showing marked ability is bothering the coaches more than the filling of weak places. This is particularly the case with McReavey, the fourth-class man, who began the season at quarter back. McReavey is doing such good work just now that there is danger that he might work out the veteran Dalton. Not only has McReavey improved in every department of the game, but he has also increased in weight during the season, going from 165 pounds to over 180, and will make a splendid substitute for any back field position. Douglas, the 190-pound crew man, is likely to fill the place vacated by Capt. King's illness, but is being pressed by Davis and Lattimere, while Hamilton appears to have beaten out Cobb for left end.

Army-Navy Officials Named.

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—The list of those who will officiate at the Army-Navy football game to be played in Philadelphia on Nov. 26 has been agreed upon by the authorities of the two institutions and the acceptance obtained in each case. They are: Referee—Al Sharpe, Yale; Umpire—M. J. Thompson, Georgetown; Field Judge—Dave Fultz, Brown; Head Linesman—Andy Smith, University of Pennsylvania.

MRS. KING GAINS LEAD IN POOL MATCH

The winner of last night's session contributed several runs of ten as her portion of the entertainment, thereby equaling the high run made by Miss Clearwater on the opening night. Mrs. King scored in much more courageous fashion, going after shots she apparently overlooked in the first block. On the contrary, the Pittsburg miss seemed in a maze after her rival began to show the way, thus bespeaking her inexperience as a match player.

Each had her quota of rooters in the largely increased gallery, most of whom were prone to applaud almost any and every shot in their endeavors to show partisanship.

Several times Miss Clearwater had great opportunities to at least tie her rival in the middle of the game, but she failed to avail herself of shots which had not teazed her on Monday, essaying plays which proved not to be on the table. On the contrary Mrs. King pumped the spheres in with a confidence born of her forward position, executing some really difficult shots.

As in the opening session Miss Clearwater excelled in her long cut shots which would roll the length of the table before being holed. She was venturesome at times, pounding into combinations and leaving the balls spread all over the table for her opponent to corral. In the third frame this occurred and Mrs. King profited to the extent of 9, thus giving her the necessary confidence in which she had apparently been lacking.

With the string showing 117 to 123 against her and after a frame in which she had tallied but 2, Mrs. King got the balls in nice position after each shot, and, aided by a run of 10 supplemented by 2, got in front for the first time in the match, the score showing 129 to 125 in her favor.

She came right back with 10 in the next frame, and, although it looked as though she would make a runaway race of it, Miss Clearwater made such a good bid that she failed in catching Mrs. King through making a scratch. Had she made the ball the score would have stood 150 all. Following this the miss was in hopeless pursuit, as in the four final frames Mrs. King rolled up 11, 10, 13, and 13.

In the last two frames she pocketed 10 each time without a miss, her good work in the final frame sending her to within one of her required total as she slipped up on a comparatively easy shot when she needed one. According to the rules the frame had to be played out with the result that the final marking was Mrs. King 202, Miss Clearwater 160. The summary:

Mrs. King—8 7 9 2 12 10 5 8 3 11 10 13 13. Total—202.

Miss Clearwater—2 7 3 6 2 5 6 5 9 4 4 0 2. Total—160.

Play will be continued to-night and to-morrow.

Eight Pool Players in Tourney.

Eight pool players, reputed as the best in New York, will begin play to-night in the Union Parlors in a series which is to consist of twenty-eight games of 150 points each night. The entrants include F. M. Tallman, Charles Grogan, George Clark, James McCoy, John Duffy, R. D. Buttie, Thomas Burns, and William Wenrick. Duffy and Clark will meet to-night.

Results of Billiard Games.

George Slosson, who is practicing at his billiard Academy, Thirty-first Street and Broadway, for his coming championship billiard match with Willie Hoppe for the 18.1 balk line title, which takes place at Madison Square Garden on Dec. 1 and 2, played two games yesterday and won both matches. The championship match consists of 1,000 points, 500 points to be made each evening. In yesterday afternoon's game Slosson, playing 18.1, defeated Fred Williams, playing 18.2, by the score of 300 to 112. Slosson made high runs of 78 and 65 and an average of 20. Williams's best efforts netted him high runs of 44 and 28 and an average of 7 7-15.

In the evening contest Slosson defeated Edward Gardner, the holder of the amateur 18.2 balk line title, by the score of 300 to 212. Slosson's high run for this game was 75 and his average 14 6-21. Gardner's high run was 49 and his average 10 2-21. Slosson has also arranged to play Calvin Demarest, the former 18.2 balk line champion, a match. This match will consist of 3,600 points, six days of playing, two games to be played each day. Each player is expected to make 300 points in the afternoon and the same number of points in the evening. The match will start at Slosson's Academy to-morrow. Slosson will play 18.1 balk line billiards and Demarest will play 18.2 billiards. The winner will receive a purse of $250.

In last night's game of the three-cushion carrom billiard tournament at McGraw's Billiard Academy, Thirty-fifth Street and Sixth Avenue, C. H. Byers defeated Frank Durbin by the score of 40 to 33, in 110 innings. It was a close game throughout. Byers made a high run of 6, and Durbin's best effort netted him 4. This evennig C. H. Ditmars and James Weed will cross cues.

M'GRAW'S LONG CONTRACT.

John J. McGraw, who has been manager of the New York Nationals since July 19, 1902, yesterday signed a five-year contract with President John T. Brush to continue to act as the commander of the Giants. In the eight complete seasons that McGraw has been manager of the local team, it has finished first twice, second four times, third once, and fourth once. This is the first time McGraw ever has been signed by President Brush for a term longer than two years.

Ovations for Tris Speaker in Texas.

DALLAS, Texas, Nov. 15.—Tris Speaker of the Boston American League Baseball Club reached Dallas at noon to-day, having made the trip from Boston in an automobile. Speaker was in good health and spirits and received a cordial reception from local baseball enthusiasts. He left this afternoon and reached his home in Hubbard City this evening, where he got another ovation.

Long Acre Club's Entertainment.

Bill Leary of Summit Hill, N. J., will meet "Kid" Wilson of Orange in the ten-round final at the Long Acre Athletic Club to-morrow night. Wilson, the colored boxer, and his rival, Leary, have been training hard for the bout, and, with several fast preliminaries, the night's card should attract a good crowd.

STEWART BEATEN IN BOSTON.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—Jim Barry of Chicago got the decision over Jim Stewart of New York in twelve rounds at the Armory Athletic Association to-night. Stewart substituted for Joe Jeanette of New York, who said he sprained his hand, which prevented his fighting. Jeanette appeared as second for Stewart.

The New Yorker used a lively left with some effect through the first three rounds, but from that time on Barry took every round. Stewart's left eye was cut in the third round and bothered him throughout the rest of the bout. The other eye was cut in the last round, and about the same time a blow by Barry sent a tooth spinning across the mat. The New York boy landed but few blows in the last nine rounds. Charley White of New York was referee.

Young Britt to Fight Here.

Young Britt of Baltimore, the recognized bantam and featherweight champion of the South, will make his first New York appearance at the Sharkey Athletic Club to-night, when he will meet Tommy Stagg of Philadelphia in a ten-round bout. Britt arrived in town a few days ago with his manager. He has a long record of knockouts, has defeated Jimmy Dunn and Jimmy Moran and recently fought a fifteen-round draw with Monte Attell. Britt is training at Bronxwood Park, under Billy Qeall, the champion runner. Marty Brown will meet Kid Ghetto in the semi-final of six rounds.

NOTES OF THE ATHLETES.

The Irish-American Athletic Club expects to make a determined bid for the junior cross-country honors with a team which has been doing all that the trainer, Lawson Robertson, has asked of it, seeming to be particularly strong with Abel Kiviat and J. Dennaly. The make-up of the team in addition to the above named will be M. D. Huysman, Tom Nelson, T. E. Hayes, A. E. Reynolds, H. Barling, H. H. Furbank, Bill Powers, and James Hailey, the latter pair running for the individual honors. Hailey ran on the senior team last year, and made a good showing. Barling and Furbank are Englishmen whose cross-country abilities will strengthen the team to a great degree.

For senior honors the Winged Foot colors will be carried by Tom Collins, John J. Daly, Bill Powers, J. Hanley, J. W. Monument, J. P. Sullivan, and possibly Billy Kramer, if he can get his release from the Acorn A. C. The latter organization is averse to giving this to Kramer, fearing that he may join the Long Island A. C., to which they are antagonistic.

In the three-mile run at the Thirteenth Regiment games to-night in the Brooklyn Armory, the following star field will be seen in action: J. W. Monument, Tom Collins, Win Bailey, George Obermeyer, Fred Bellars, Billy Kramer, and Joe Malone. This will be Monument's first essay at a distance over two miles in this country, but his showing in the two-mile indoor championship, which he won in style, and in which he looked as though he could run all day, promises another victory for this sterling runner.

Company F, Twenty-second Regiment Engineers, which is commanded by Capt. Charles J. Dieges, announces a set of indoor games and a reception for Thanksgiving Eve for which many of the metropolitan cracks are entered. Six regular events have been arranged, in addition to which there will be several of a unique nature. Handsome prizes will be awarded to first and second in each event, and admittance will be by invitation only.

The field which is slated to start in the 300-yard scratch race at the Twenty-third Regiment games on Saturday night includes Edwards, Jim McEntee, Jim Rosenberger, Jack Bell, Houses, Schaff, and Schmale. Twelve riders will start in the two-mile bicycle race, chief among whom is W. Vanden Dries. The relay races between the Y. M. C. A. and the Sunday Schools Athletic League has also filled well.

Finnish Wrestler Against Hack.

Next Friday night at Sulzer's Harlem Casino George Hackenschmidt, the Russian Lion, and former world's champion wrestler, will be seen in action against Pliakoft, a Finnish expert of whom great things are said. The style will be catch-as-catch-can, with which both men are familiar, but despite this a rough match is almost certain to ensue. This will be "Hack's" first appearance in this city in several years, and the Russian is especially desirous of making a good showing, as he is on the trail of Frank Gotch, who beat him in Chicago under questionable refereeing, and [illegible] "Hack" has declared was barred in the articles of the match.

JIM WALSH WHIPS KELLER AT FAIRMONT

Jimmy Walsh of Boston, generally regarded as the bantamweight champion of America, gained the popular verdict over Sammy Keller, the English champion, in their ten-round bout before the Fairmont A. C. last night. The aggressiveness of the Boston bantam earned him the decision in the first nine rounds, during which time he carried all the fighting to the Briton, and he finished up with a whirlwind rally in the tenth which disposed of any claim that Keller might have had for an even break. The tenth round, easily the best of the evening, found Walsh chasing Keller around the ring, raining blow after blow to the stomach and head, besides getting a decided advantage in the exchanges during the clinches.

Up to the last round the bout was tame from a fighting standpoint. In only two of the previous rounds did the boys figure in any warm mix-ups, and there was little advantage for either to claim, as neither was punished to any extent. Fast footwork and good blocking by both kept the hard wallops few and far between, and there was not a trace of the crimson until the eighth, when Walsh landed a hard right to Keller's jaw with enough force to draw blood. Neither man scored anything like a knockdown or had his opponent in distress until Walsh's shower of blows forced Keller to hold on in the final round.

The opening round was nothing more than a feeling out by both boys. Keller appeared a trifle nervous and refused to be drawn into any leads, which Walsh evidently wished him to make. After two minutes of sparring, during which time not a good blow was struck, Walsh began to force matters, and after rushing Keller to his corner, landed a hard left on the Briton's jaw. Just before the bell Walsh missed as he made a rush for Keller and ran into a hard right uppercut.

The second round was also quiet and was marked by considerable clinching. Few blows were struck until just before the bell, when the two indulged in their first fast exchange of body punches during a clinch. Walsh had a slight advantage in the mix-up, but got in the way of a stiff left jab to the jaw a few seconds later. The round showed no advantage for either boxer.

Shortly after the third round opened Keller rushed Walsh to the corner, and as the two broke in a clinch Keller shot a left jab to Walsh's jaw which rocked the Boston boy. This seemed to give Keller confidence, and he began to bore in, but he was greeted with some hard wallops to the head and body which caused him to change his tactics. Near the end of the second round Walsh landed a stiff uppercut on Keller's jaw, and followed with a right swing to the head. Walsh had a shade in this round.

The pair woke up in the fourth round and showed some real fighting for the first time. Walsh's second had been complaining that Keller was butting Jimmy and using the heel of his glive, and early in the round, as the two broke from a clinch, Walsh swung Keller around and the Britton went to the floor. Walsh was roundly hissed for his action, and thereupon began to wade in with both left and right. He forced Keller around the ring and had a slight advantage for the round.

The fifth round was fought at the same pace as the first three. Walsh continued to force matters, but Keller blocked cleverly, and few blows were struck by either man. Those which found their mark did no damage. The sixth round showed no more than the fifth, as both men blocked well. Early in this round Walsh rushed Keller to the ropes, but could not get over any hard jabs. In the seventh Walsh got in a hard right jab to Keller's stomach which doubled up the Englishman, and he repeated the blow twice before the round ended. But Keller was able to turn in some hard body punches in the clinches, and a hard uppercut landed on Walsh's jaw just before the bell. Walsh had a slight advantage in this round.

The eighth round showed some more fast fighting like the fourth. Both got over some hard blows, Keller in the clinches and Walsh in the open fighting. Walsh was still forcing all the fighting, Keller preferring to play a waiting game. The ninth, too, was marked by some fast exchanges. In this round Walsh landed a hard jolt on Keller's nose, which drew blood, the first of the fight. The final round was better than the other nine. Walsh began to force matters in the early part, and gave Keller no time to get set. He rushed the Briton around the ring, and the latter stopped at intervals to exchange punches. The entire crowd was standing and cheering the two men when the bell ended the bout. The last round was Walsh's by a far greater margin than any of the preceding rounds.

Attell Starts Training To-day.

Abe Attell, who will box with Pal Moore at the Fairmont Athletic Club Tuesday night, Nov. 22, arrived last night from New Orleans and will open his training quarters to-day at Johnson's Road House. [illegible] New York a chance to get a few lessons in the art of self defense. Pal Moore is training at Allenhurst, N. J. He will enter the ring next Tuesday night weighing about 120 pounds, which means that he will have [illegible] pounds on the featherweight champion.

Sylvan Club's Card of Bouts.

Johnny Baker, who has won two decisions over Jack Curley, will meet "Kid" Rose in the ten-round bout at the newly organized Sylvan Athletic Club, at its clubhouse, 150 East 125th Street, to-night. There will be two six-round semi-finals and four preliminary bouts.

OUR BEST EXPORT MONTH.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15.—The exports during October made a new high record in the history of the United States, according to the figures made public yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics, and gave us a favorable balance of trade amounting to $84,189,337. Their aggregate was $208,000,057, which exceeds by $930,000 the previous high record attained in December, 1907. Last month's figures exceeded those of October, 1909, by $7,360,000.

The excess of imports over exports which had made an unfavorable balance of trade in several of the earlier months of the year was reversed in September when the trade balance was $51,587,079 in our favor, but the larger showing of the October figures and the declines in commodity prices are taken as an indication that in succeeding months exports will show continued large excesses over imports and will bring the trade balance to proportions such as prevailed a few years ago.

The favorable showing of the October statistics as compared with other months of this year may be seen in this table:

	Exports.	Imports.	Excess.
June..	127,887,780	119,876,487	Exp. 8,011,293

Comparing October of this year with the same month in other years of the past decade it will be seen that exports have always exceeded imports but never to so large an extent as in last month.

	Exports.	Imports.	Excess Exports.

The turn of the trade balance in the last two months has not been sufficient to bring the year's total to date up to favorable comparison with other years. During the ten months ended with October for a series of years exports and imports and the excess of exports have been as follows:

	Exports.	Imports.	Exc. Exp.

BOARD HEARS MELLEN.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—President Charles S. Mellen of the Boston & Maine Railroad asked the approval of the Railroad Commission to-day for an additional issue of $10,093,700 of stock, authorized by the stockholders, for the purpose of improved equipment, abolition of grade crossings, and permanent improvements of the roadbed.

After Mr. Mellen had explained that the company desired to issue the stock at 110 a share to stockholders, E. J. Rice, attorney for the company, read a schedule of the expenditures projected under the new issue.

William B. Lawrence, a stockholder, who has frequently appeared before the Legislature in opposition to the recent merger with the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, urged the commission to investigate every item and learn if the expenditures are necessary.

Chairman Hall stated that experts of the commission would examine the schedule submitted by Mr. Mellen and Mr. Rice.

BOSTON, Nov. 15.—The local market opened steady and prices advanced during the early trading. After a general fractional advance selling orders made their appearance and a general reaction set in. East Butte declined over a point to 12½ and La Salle lost a point. Toward the middle of the afternoon the undertone again strengthened and the market recovered quite sharply.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—The Consular and trade report will note the following Foreign Trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufacturers, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

5792.—ROAD-MAKING MACHINERY AND RAILWAY SUPPLIES.—An American Consul in a European country reports that in consequence of a law recently passed by the Government providing for modern methods in road construction, the demand for steam road rollers and other road-making machinery will be very great in the near future, and there is no reason why American manufacturers of this kind of machinery should not have a leading share in the supply. There are also many miles of railroad to be constructed in the same country, and it is estimated that 50,000 tons of rails alone will be required. The United States at present has no share in the supply of this material, notwithstanding repeated urgings from the Consulate in question.

5793.—WRAPPING PAPER.—A commission merchant and former American Consular officer in the Far East has requested an American Consulate to put him in touch with paper manufacturers in the United States who can supply common wrapping paper like samples, which he forwards and which are on file in the Bureau of Manufactures. This inquirer desires to hear from manufacturers direct and to be supplied with samples and quotations. Further particulars regarding prices and method of shipment can be obtained from the Bureau of Manufactures.

5794.—CONSTRUCTION OF CUSTOMS SCHEDULES AND DEPOSITORIES.—An American Consular officer in Latin America reports that a resolution is now under consideration for the rejection of all bids so offered for the construction of customs sheds and depositories on the moles of a port in that country. As a result the renewal of the call for bids will be made by the respective decree and be open for one or two months and establishing at the same time that they shall be built consecutively.

5795.—BEER AND MILK BOTTLES MADE OF PAPER.—A report from an American Consulate in a European country states that an inquiry has been received from a local business man for the names of manufacturers in the United States of paper, beer, and milk bottles, as he wishes to make purchases of the same as soon as possible.

5796.—AGENCY OF AMERICAN MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.—A business firm in a South American country has requested the assistance of an American Consulate in establishing an agency of an American marine insurance company in that country. This firm is a large importer of American cotton goods, as well as having the agencies of four insurance companies against fire, hail, plate glass, and accident. The report states there should be a good opportunity for establishing an agency of the nature desired.

5797.—MOTOR OMNIBUSES.—An American Consulate in the Far East writes that it is reported that a local firm will shortly begin the operation of a line of motor omnibuses in his district. By the end of this year there will be about eighty miles of macadamized road of excellent construction in the region in question.

HOME TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15.—Further information regarding the following home trade opportunities may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufacturers, care of the Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of item referred to.

C., will be received at the Indian Office until 2 o'clock P. M., Dec. 6, 1910, for proposals for furnishing and erecting a tank and tower at the Pima Indian School, Arizona, in strict conformity with the plans, specifications, and instructions to bidders, which may be examined at the Indian Office; the offices of the builder and contractor, Los Angeles, Cal.; American Contractor, Chicago, Ill.; United States Indian Warehouses, San Francisco, Cal.; Chicago, Ill.; St. Louis, Mo., and Omaha, Neb., and at the Builders and Traders' Exchanges, St. Paul, Minn., and Omaha, Neb.; Northwestern Manufacturers' Association, St. Paul, Minn., and at the school.

57.—EXCAVATION WORK.—Sealed proposals will be received at the Office of the Project Engineer, United States Reclamation Service, North Yakima, Wash., until 2 P. M., Dec. 3, 1910, for the excavation of about seventy-three miles of sublaterals, tieton unit of Yakima project. For particulars address the United States Reclamation Service, Fourth Avenue and B Street, North Yakima, Wash.

COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Continued strength in the domestic situation, helped by advices which were of a more bullish tenor from foreign sources, resulted in a firmer wheat market during yesterday's session. The cables from Liverpool were better than anticipated and reflected reports to the effect that rain was desired in parts of Argentina, especially the southern section. There were also advices stating that seeding was being delayed in some other foreign countries as the result of continuous rain. The opening was at fair fractional advances, and while on the bulges offerings tended to increase, the undertone continued firm, with sales well absorbed. Bradstreet's report was bearish, but evidently had been anticipated, and had been discounted. The statement showed an increase of world's wheat for the week of 5,000,000 bushels, against an increase last week of 2,500,000 bushels, and a decrease last year of about 1,000,000 bushels. Total wheat stocks now in the world are approximately 200,000,000 bushels, against 135,000,000 last year and 143,000,000 bushels two years ago. Traders were disposed to follow the operations of a prominent Western elevator house, which, in connection with other large Chicago operators, has accumulated a large line of wheat. Although there was early selling credited to this source, in the afternoon for a time they were aggressively buying until an advance of over 1c a bushel from the previous night's final had been established. Shorts were also disposed to cover, influenced to a large extent by the estimate of 100,000,000 bushels for the Argentine exportable surplus. Although no export business was reported, outside markets were very strong, and it was said at Winnipeg that room for 6,000,000 to 8,000,000 bushels was engaged for Winter storage and that recently there has been considerable buying to fill this space. The close was near the best of the season, with sentiment more bullish, although the advance was checked by profit taking for the account of leading bulls. Export sales included: Cash, No. 2 red, quoted at 97½c elevator; No. 2 red, free on board, afloat, for export, 97¼c; No. 2 hard Winter, $1.03; No. 1 Northern, Spring, $1.16⅝, and No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.03.

The corn market was quiet and ruled generally heavy, although the steadiness in wheat prevented any marked decline. News from the country continued rather bearish, and while country acceptances were light, consignments were said to be in more liberal volume. The fact that cash interests were selling December had a good deal of effect on sentiment, with the absence of export business also against values. Stocks, however, continued to decrease, with Bradstreet's showing a reduction this week of 1,000,000 bushels, against a decrease last week of 500,000 bushels and a slight increase a year ago. No export sales were reported. Cash No. 2 corn quoted 57⅝c to arrive; No. 2, free on board, afloat, 58c.

Oats exhibited a firmer undertone during the greater part of the session. The strength in wheat induced short covering, and although it is predicted that receipts will increase, there has been no discernible extent of it as yet. In fact, Bradstreet's for the week showed a decrease of 1,360,000 bushels, against a decrease last year of 980,000 bushels and an increase two years ago of 961,000 bushels. Cash standard quoted at 37¼c; No. 2 white, 38½c; No. 3 white, 37½c.

The provision market was heavier on more liberal receipts than anticipated, with further weakness in the live hog market. Packers were free sellers at times, and the absence of demand for near months was not without effect on sentiment.

COTTON.

The cotton market opened at levels about 4 to 9 points below the previous night's final. This range of values reflected disappointing Liverpool advices, which market, despite favorable trade reports, seems to show evidence of being technically weak. There was also heavy selling at the outset, which was credited to prominent spot interests, and although the demand at times was good, buyers had but little difficulty in procuring contracts. The movement of cotton has shown signs of increasing materially, and port receipts yesterday were approximately 50 per cent. in excess of those a year ago. While it is admitted that this movement will have to increase in order to bear out prospects of a larger crop than a year ago, opinions differ as to the immediate effect of the heavier receipts. Some authorities say that the result will be large hedge sales, while others state that it indicates a fulfillment of contracts made some time ago. At all events, there was but little bull enthusiasm, with the public indisposed to enter the market. Crop estimates are at such a wide variance that they have but little effect on values at present, and it is evident that many heretofore accurate authorities are going to have a bad year in estimating. On the bulges offerings tended to increase, and it was said that spinners were buying only sparingly, as they have already protected themselves against any material advance. Spot advices were also of a rather bearish tenor, although the markets were officially quoted ⅛c advance to ⅛c decline. The fact that a prominent bull, who was predicting 20 cent cotton several weeks ago, issued a letter expressing extremely bearish views and predicting a 13,000,000 bale crop had considerable influence in the late trading. The close was at the low of the session, with support lacking. The New York spot market was quiet, at 10 points decline. Middling, 14.55c.

COTTONSEED OIL.

There was some firmness at the outset of the oil market due to influential buying thought to be for the account of prominent interests. While these purchases represented short covering and undoing of hedges to some extent, it was said that there was quite a little speculative buying, which was classified as being of a good character. It is well known that at present there is but little outside speculation in the market and what is to be encountered usually comes from sources well informed and in close touch with actual conditions. Crude oil in the South was steay with offerings light, but recent buyers were disposed to accept some profits, and demand was readily supplied, causing a later reaction.

Underlying Railroad Bonds

UNDERLYING railroad bonds represent in most cases the original mortgages placed on the properties. Since they are being gradually retired, or replaced by refunding or consolidated mortgages, the supply is limited, the demand good and the security steadily enhancing.

GOOD OCTOBER RETURNS

Of the 450,000 shares which changed hands on the Stock Exchange yesterday nearly 300,000 consisted of United States Steel common, Union Pacific, and Reading, and it was in those three stocks that there occurred the sharp advances, comprising nearly 2 points in each case, which gave to the market as a whole an appearance of considerable strength. Analysis of the movements of other active stocks disclosed the fact that transactions in them were small, a fact also true of the gains accruing to them at the end of the day. There was another aspect to the market equally interesting. Great Northern, Northern Pacific, and Southern Pacific were so distinctly heavy at all times as to offer a really striking contrast with the stocks absorbing the greater part of the trading, and at one time, around noon when the market became dull, the undisguised pressure exerted against the Hill stocks in particular communicated a feeling of uneasiness to the balance of the market, which was promptly reflected in very general declines through the list—declines which were not wholly made up in the remaining period of business. Poor earning statements recently submitted by Great Northern and Northern Pacific explain readily enough the heaviness of the stocks, but the concentration of activity in Union Pacific, Reading, and Steel, with their resultant strength, is not so easily accounted for, although the speculative origin of the dealings in these shares is at least easily discerned. On the Philadelphia market a very sharp rise in Lehigh Valley shares attracted Wall Street's attention, and brought forth the report that the meeting of the Directors of that property, which is imminent, will be followed by a substantial increase in the dividend of 6 per cent. now paid on the stock.

Extreme satisfaction was expressed in banking circles over the showing made by our foreign trade in October as reported by the Bureau of Statistics yesterday. It is not too much to say that the series of adverse balances, numbering not less than five in the first eight months of the year, had aroused much apprehension regarding our international financial position, for it left us at the opening of September without means from trade sources to meet our ever heavy obligations in Europe. In September a balance of $51,587,000 was recorded in our favor, and to this there has now been added by the October trade $84,189,000, with every prospect of further additions in the remaining two months of the present year, and presumably in the opening months of 1911. This happy change has been brought about by an increase in our exports for October to figures only exceeded in the months immediately following the 1907 panic. Fully as important, however, has been the certain, if slow, reduction in imports, which for the month are off nearly $4,000,000 as compared with October, 1909, but with that exception are the largest October figures recorded. Combined with our sales of securities the profits on our foreign trade secured in the past two months, and in prospect for several months to come, undoubtedly place us in a fairly strong position in the international exchanges, and remove, therefore, any grounds previously existing for uneasiness.

Money market changes were inconsequential, although the average rate for call loans for the day was probably fractionally below that of Monday, while the banks reported another gain from the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions, suggesting the probability of the duplication of last week's favorable outcome on movements with the interior. The Bank of England took in on balance above $5,600,000 in gold, and the English market was helped by the calmness with which the prospect of the dissolution of Parliament and a general election have been received.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—On the largest volume of transactions recorded in a long time the manipulation of Lehigh Valley continued to-day, most of the orders again emanating from New York. Starting out with an over-night jump of a point, to 88½, the quotation was lifted across 89, a gain before the end of the first hour on purchases aggregating approximately 11,000 shares during that period. Thereafter the movement became less violent, until the last hour, when another heavy influx of buying orders pushed the price up to 91¾, the highest point in many months. It closed but little below the best.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

CHICAGO, Nov. 15.—Illinois Brick was the feature on the Chicago Exchange to-day, and the pool which has been active in that stock in the past manipulated the price up from 66 to 72, closing it a shade under the top on earnings. It was stated that the October earnings are the largest for any month this year, and that the business is in such a position that consumers are now contracting for future delivery, a situation not heretofore known in this city.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Tuesday.

The rapid price recovery in the later dealings stimulated a general buying movement on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The middle-of-the-day decline had unsettled speculative sentiment, which had early favored an advance, and had induced not only some letting go of stocks bought in the first hour but resulted in some short selling for floor account. These shorts were retired hurriedly toward the close, in most cases at loses. Commission house business was fairly active and generally on the buying side. The day's total was 74,740 shares, with forty-seven different stocks on the list.

Improved Credit
Example No. 35

During February, 1898, we sold Mobile & Ohio, Montgomery Division, First Mortgage 5s at 97—a 5.15% basis; they are now 109¼ bid on the N. Y. Stock Exchange—a 4.45 basis. This is an advance of 12¼ points. The Montgomery Division is bonded at $21,500 a mile.

Recurring Opportunities

We now offer, with the same degree of confidence, to yield 5.15%, the First Mortgage Bonds of a Company operating in the same territory. The Road connects with the Montgomery Division of the Mobile & Ohio Railroad, and furnishes the latter at the junction point with more traffic than any other station on the Road. The Bonds are a First Mortgage at $8,000 per mile, and the Company is earning at the rate of about 8 times interest charges.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Talk of a City Bond Sale.

The rumor yesterday that the city was talking with bankers regarding an issue of $50,000,000 fifty-year bonds was said to be unfounded except to the extent that the city will undoubtedly have need of putting out a large issue some time in the next few months. The facts in the case are understood to be that the city officials are of opinion that no issue will have to be put out this year, and the prospects of easier money after the 1st of January make them desirous of putting off a sale of bonds until after the turn of the year. They have now, however, no plan whatever for an issue of bonds. One is not needed just at the moment, and until the need arises there is every disposition to put the sale of bonds off until better monetary conditions prevail. Under the city's financial system money in one fund cannot be transferred to another, and when any important fund becomes exhausted it becomes necessary to replenish it, and at the same time other funds, by an issue of bonds. Just when any of these funds will be in need of replenishing cannot now be definitely determined, hence it cannot be predicted when the city will have to put out more bonds.

The report came from Pittsburg yesterday that the South Pennsylvania Railroad project was to be revived and that tracks would soon be laid over this old right of way across the southern section of Pennsylvania. This recalled to many the days in the early eighties when the Vanderbilt lines and the Standard Oil Company were fighting the Pennsylvania Railroad. The South Pennsylvania Railroad was projected as a rival to the Pennsylvania, and much money was spent on the line for grading, but the war of railroads came to an end before the line was finished. About the same time the New York Central got control of the West Shore. There was a sale of the charter of the South Pennsylvania Railroad in 1904, and report had it that it had been bought in the interest of the Baltimore & Ohio. Now it is being sought to have this old charter voided, it is believed, with the purpose by outside interests of building a new line through Pennsylvania.

A Last-Hour Market.

After four hours of the narrowest sort of trading, the market picked up after 2 o'clock yesterday and made a brave but feeble showing in the last hour. From the opening until noon the session was at its dullest, and the desultory character of the market is illustrated in the course of the more active issues. Dealings in Reading amounted to 48,000 shares in the period from 10 o'clock to noon, and the price at 12 o'clock was the same as that when the gong sounded for the beginning of business. Steel common made a gain of ⅛ in the two hours on transactions of 78,000 shares. Union Pacific made the best showing of the leading group with an advance of ⅜ on transactions of 52,000. Between noon and 2 o'clock Reading rose ¼, while Steel and Union Pacific dropped ¼. In the last hour Reading rose ¾ on sales of 21,000 shares, Union Pacific rose ⅝ on sales of 19,000 and Steel ½ on dealings in 24,000. These three issues accounted for nearly 300,000 of the day's total of 455,000 shares.

Crop Financing.

With the general realization of the record-breaking size of the crops and the lack of bullish tendencies in the speculative grain markets, the farmers are showing less disposition this year to carry over their harvests. The easing up of demand for crop-moving funds is already a matter of comment. In a dispatch from Chicago yesterday Vice President Hitchcock of the First National Bank was quoted as saying that the demand for money for handling the crops reached the top of its movement some days ago.

Exports Mounting.

The turn of the tide of foreign trade, which in September gave a balance of exports amounting to $51,587,079, is even more strongly emphasized in the October figures made public yesterday with a balance of $84,167,337 in our favor, and the record-breaking total of $208,057,785 in exports. The bumper cereal crops, of which corn and oats exceed all past totals, and wheat amounts to a fair average, have had their fair share in the return of a favorable balance of trade, but it is the general expectation that when the figures are known in detail, the exports of manufactures will prove to have an important share in the highly favorable showing.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Business Claims Another Fifth Avenue Corner—Investors Buying East Side Tenement House Property—Plans for $1,200,000 Bronx Borough Flats Filed.

There was a bad slump in the realty market yesterday from a trading standpoint, and few sales of importance were recorded.

Medium-priced flat property and private dwellings, however, continued to be in demand, and plans for several large building projects were filed.

In the Bronx Building Bureau the filing of plans for flats aggregating $1,200,000 was accounted for by the law prohibiting building projections which goes into effect to-day.

Business Gets Another Fifth Avenue Corner.

Another big Fifth Avenue improvement is about to be made on the southeast corner of the avenue and Thirty-sixth Street, opposite Altman's, by the erection of a six-story structure for the millinery concern of M. Kurzman & Sons. The firm occupies at present the adjoining property at 385 Fifth Avenue, and has secured the corner property, 387, on a long lease from the owner, Mrs. George Bliss, who has hitherto resisted all offers to vacate the place for business. The new building, for which plans are now being prepared, will be erected over the two plots, having a frontage of 50 feet on Fifth Avenue and 125 feet on Thirty-sixth Street. The Bliss residence, which is one of the few old-time dwellings remaining in that section of Fifth Avenue, will be demolished in the near future. The Bliss estate owns the adjoining house occupied by the millinery firm, which was leased for business four years ago. Up to the present time Mrs. Bliss has refused to remove the restrictions on her house against the use of the corner for commercial purposes.

Buys West End Avenue Corner.

The demand for private dwellings both on the east and west side for immediate occupancy continues unabated. Many brokers are unable to fill the orders given them, and say that the demand for this class of real estate is greater than it has been for several years.

Among the sales reported yesterday was that of the southwest corner of Ninety-fourth Street and West End Avenue, known as 698. It was purchased by Israel Labowitz from the Napoleon Construction Company, and is a five-story American basement dwelling, on a lot 18.5 by 55. Edward C. Williams & Co. negotiated the sale. The sellers obtained this property from S. S. Carvalho, in a trade for 130 West Twenty-eighth Street last May.

East Side Tenements in Demand.

Two east side tenements, for which there has been an excellent demand this Fall on account of their price, low cost of maintenance, and the good return on the investment which they invariably produce, were disposed of yesterday to investors.

Jacob Oppenheimer sold for Herman Cohn to Carrie Jacobs 1,059 Lexington Avenue, a five-story flat, on a lot 20 by 95, adjoining the northeast corner of Seventy-fifth Street.

In east Harlem the Golden Rule Realty Company purchased 336 East 102d Street, a six-story new law tenement, on a plot 37.6 by 100.11.

Buys Washington Heights Lots.

The West Side Construction Company has sold to Robert R. Perkins the lot 20 by 100 on the northerly side of 153d Street, 220 feet east of Amsterdam Avenue. The price is in the neighborhood of $15,000. Julius Nehring negotiated the sale.

Bronx Sales.

Julius Trattner and J. Klein have sold for the Boulevard Construction Company, H. Gundlich, President, the five-story new law tenement at 1,056 Kelly Street, on plot 40 by 100 feet, and for Thomas Schneider the four-story building on the northwest corner of Union Avenue and 156th Street, on plot 20 by 100 feet.

$95,000 for Brooklyn Water Front.

The Brooklyn water-front property and old mill of the Hecker-Jones-Jewell Company was sold at auction yesterday in the Vesey Street salesrooms by Joseph P. Day, and, although it attracted a number of bidders, went for the low price of $95,000 to John J. McManus. The property is assessed at $115,000. The property occupies a plot 55.7 by 100 feet on the southwest corner of Fulton and Furman Streets, with riparian rights and a covered dock extending into the East River for 295 feet. On the plot is a six-story building and three one and two story buildings.

Brooklyn Sale.

Frank J. Mills has sold 295 Taaffe Place, a three-story dwelling house, for Peter H. Diller, to Mary Hudoff, for an investment.

Buys Rockaway Tract.

The Arethusa Realty Company has purchased a large tract of land at Rockaway for $37,500, subject to two mortgages aggregating $40,000. The property is on the south side of the Boulevard, about 133 feet west of Park Avenue and adjoining the old Rockaway Railroad and the ocean. Its average width is 170 feet and 700 feet deep.

Suburban Sales.

William Doscher has purchased an acre plot in Elmdorf, Scarsdale, N. Y., from W. J. Reed, and is having plans made for a fine residence, to be built in the early Spring.

William Cooper Procter of Cincinnati is reported to have bought 900 acres of land bordering on Shinnecock Bay, in Suffolk County, for $1,000,000.

The Abels-Gold Realty Company has conveyed to John J. Collins thirty-four lots at St. Joseph's Park, Jamaica, subject to a mortgage for $4,000.

Private Dwellings Leased.

The following dwellings have been leased by Pease & Elliman: 50 East Fifty-second Street, a new five-story American basement, for Mrs. George I. Malcolm; 58 East Seventy-ninth Street, a handsome new five-story American basement, for Francis Burrill Hoffman; 15 East Sixty-ninth Street, for Mrs. S. Neustadt; 38 West Fifty-third Street, for the estate of R. M. Gilbert; 116 East Fifty-seventh Street, for Jabish Holmes; 324 West 107th Street, for the Hoge estate.

Business Leases.

Louis H. Lowenstein has leased for the Maxlow Realty Company the northerly store at 645 Lexington Avenue for a term of years to the Fashion Tailoring Establishment.

Coney Island Avenue Decision.

The long contemplated improvement of Coney Island Avenue will soon begin. A decision has just been handed down by the Supreme Court, in which Justice Clark denies the contention of the plaintiffs in the long litigation that has been before the courts regarding the parking improvements proposed by the city. The suit was brought by Spencer C. Carey, who owns a frontage of 600 feet on the west side of the avenue and the adjacent one-half of the street subject to easements in the avenue for street purposes. The contention that the parking project did not involve a proper street use of the property is denied. The tracks of the Coney Island & Brooklyn Railroad will be shifted to make way for the new pavement which the city is to lay as soon as permission from the Brooklyn Commissioner of Public Works is obtained. The proper improvement of the avenue has been urged by many Brooklyn organizations for a long time.

Fifth Avenue Partition Sales.

Suit has been begun in the Supreme Court by Henry Bergh and Louise Dewsnap Bergh, his wife, against Willie Christian Bergh, Ella Sophia Bergh, Marie Dewsnap Bergh, and others, as executors and guardian, for the partition and sale of property on the east side of Fifth Avenue, 60.11 feet north of Thirty-eighth Street, 16 by 100, and the northeast corner of South Street and Gouverneur Slip, 150 by 140 feet and irregular.

Moore Estate at Auction.

Bryan L. Kennelly will sell at auction to-day in the real estate salesroom, 14 Vesey Street, the properties of the estate of William H. H. Moore, consisting of 22 East Thirty-third Street, an eighteen-room dwelling, on a lot 22 by 98.9 by 25 by irregular; also 28 East Seventy-fourth Street, located eighteen feet west of Madison Avenue, a four-story dwelling, on a lot 16.6 by 80. Mr. Kennelly will also sell 59, 61, 63, and 65 Goerck Street, 150 feet north of Delancy Street, and for the estate of Ellen Josephine Kuhne a one-twentieth undivided interest in the southeast corner of West and Perry Streets.

Big Fort Washington Apartment.

Plans have been filed for a six-story fireproof apartment house to be erected for the Gingold Realty Company, of which A. J. Goldstein is President, on the west side of Amsterdam Avenue, occupying the whole front between 176th and 177th Streets. The building will have a frontage of 199.10 feet on the avenue and 89.11 on each street. On the avenue frontage will be stores. The building will have accommodations for 120 families and will have a façade of brick and limestone. John C. Watson, the architect, estimates the cost at $400,000.

Cutting Off Riverside House Front.

Plans have been filed for cutting off that part of the private dwelling of Mrs. Josephine Du Bois, at 105 Riverside Drive, which projects beyond the legal building line, as recently ordered by the court. The building will be extended on the north side ten feet and a new front erected on the legal line at a cost of $5,000. Bosworth & Holden are the architects.

Remodel Apartments for Lofts.

Plans have been filed for making over the nine-story apartment house at 12 West Eighteenth Street into lofts for light manufacturing purposes for the B. L. Construction Company. The architects, Gronenberg & Leuchtas, estimate the cost at $35,000.

Notes.

As is more fully set forth in said decree, the Consolidated Mortgage bonds will be first offered in fifty separate parcels or lots, each containing 100 of said bonds, together with the unpaid coupons thereunto appertaining, and the undersigned will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for each such parcel so offered; thereafter the said $5,000,000, par value, of said bonds, together with the unpaid interest coupons appertaining thereto, will be offered as an entirety and in one block, and the undersigned will provisionally accept the bid of the highest qualified bidder for said bonds so sold as an entirety. CANADIANS CALL ANNEXATION DREAM

Club Favors Congressional Plan to Discuss the Limitation of International Armaments.

In six speeches from men living on both sides of the Canadian border the North American Continent was toasted at the annual dinner of the Canadian Club in the Hotel Astor last night. Speakers from south of the line vied with speakers from Montreal and Ontario in setting forth the respective merits of the Republic and the colony as a breeding ground for liberty, the Canadians declaring that a study of comparative conditions of the two peoples showed that to-day Canada knows more about political freedom than America.

The idea of annexation with the United States, even as a remote dream, was scouted, and this opinion was received with much applause.

There was a toast to the King and another to the President; "The Star-Spangled Banner" was sung while everybody stood, and right after it the orchestra broke into the strains of "God Save the King." Crossed flags were the most distinctive table decorations, while a plan for a monster celebration in 1914 of 100 years of peace between Anglo-Saxon peoples was the principal theme discussed.

For Canada spoke W. L. Mackenzie, Minister of Labor of the Dominion; the Hon. Adam C. Bell, K. C., and Principal William Peterson of McGill University. A paper prepared by J. A. McDonald, editor of The Toronto Globe, was also read. Gen. Stewart L. Woodford was the principal speaker for the United States. Neil Macphatter, President of the Canadian Club of New York, presided.

"This meeting is specially important," he said, "on account of the fact that the Canadian Club of New York is the representative organization of Canadians south of the border, and most truly can represent the sentiment of Canadians upon such great matters as the tariff, annexation, alliances by treaty, and other matters affecting both countries."

The speeches in favor of an international alliance looking toward enforced peace for the world were followed by the passing of a resolution, a copy of which was ordered sent to President Taft and to the Premier and President of the Privy Council of Canada.

It indorsed the action of Congress in appointing a commission to consider "the expediency of using existing international agencies to limit the armaments of nations by international agreement, and of constituting the combined navies of the world an international force for the preservation of universal peace." England was urged in a concluding paragraph to appoint a similar commission to join with that which President Taft is expected soon to name in an effort to lead the world along its destined path.

The strongest plea of the evening against annexation was made in Mr. MacDonald's letter, read by J. F. McKay, President of the Canadian Club of Toronto, Mr. MacDonald having been detained, it was announced, through illness.

"Your tariff laws have killed annexation," the Canadian held, "and if there are any in the United States who still dream of annexation, Canadians will disturb their dreams with words of truth and soberness. We desire friendly relations and just trade agreements. We will buy with you sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, eat with you, drink with you, pray with you, but we will not join your Republic nor follow your flag."

Gen. Woodford said that not the least miracle of the 100 years of peace now drawing to a close was that in that period the net loss through war had been the greatest in the world's history. "I cannot conceive of the absolute idiocy of our people and yours getting into a struggle," he declared.

Principal Peterson of McGill University called attention to the fact that the army-ridden monarchies of Europe would find in the celebration of our 100 years of peace an evidence of leagued power which they never again would be able to overlook or fail to take into account.

"They would be forced to see the folly," he declared, "of attacking a league of America and England linked solidly together, with Canada ready to help England to understand the Americans and the Americans to understand the British."

There were about 300 Canadians present at the dinner, many of them having come from Canada especially to be present.

SPHINX CLUB GETS HINTS.

Advertising Man Says Public Is No Longer Tolerant of Exaggeration.

A new after-dinner speaker blossomed forth last night at the dinner of the Sphinx Club at the Waldorf-Astoria. He was Frederick T. Murphy, son of Patrick Francis Murphy, himself one of the best-known after-dinner speakers in town.

Young Mr. Murphy is a beginner at the advertising business as well as at the art of after-dinner speaking. His first appearance in the latter rôle last night was received with vigorous approval by his fellow-members of the Sphinx Club, and when he had finished his maiden speech they hailed him as the able son of an able father, and the toastmaster predicted that young Frederick T. might soon be causing his father to take a back seat at public functions when the time comes to push back the chairs and listen to the wits.

Young Mr. Murphy had as his maiden theme "Advertising from an Inexperienced Point of View." He said that to approach his subject with a comparatively virgin mind was not such a lamentable position.

"For ignorance is a blank sheet upon which we may write," he said, "while error is a scribbled one from which we must first erase.

"By a pleasant fiction we designate 'experience' as 'the name we give to our mistakes.' While experience is an excellent teacher, she sends in terrific bills, and it is a melancholy reflection that experience cannot be purchased with other people's money. In this world there are many things better than money, but it is noticed that they are very expensive.

"An eminent cardinal was asked how long was required to write a sermon. 'A clever man,' said the cardinal, 'can write one sermon a week. An average man may write three. A thoroughly incapable man will write a dozen.' If this principle were applied to the preparation of advertising we would not have been confronted by the startling announcement which recently appeared in a London publication: 'For sale cheap; a Stradivarius violin; almost new.'

"Exaggeration no longer attracts the public eye, and the advertiser who seeks to obtain attention by such means would probably be as successful as the Hibernian lady who was so proud of her feet that she wore extra large shoes to compel people to notice how small her feet were.

"Advertising is the Gulf Stream of mercantile progress. Its life-giving waters fertilize every shore they touch. And along this invigorating stream may be seen the rivals—the newspapers and the magazines—each one trying to catch the other in bathing and steal his clothes."

Nathaniel C. Wright, editorial director of The Cleveland Leader and Toledo Blade, told the members of the club that American newspapers are becoming cleaner, more honest, and more decent every year, and that the advertisers of the country are keeping pace with the publishers. He responded to the toast, "The Editor and His Responsibility to His Readers." Both he and James Schermerhorn, publisher of The Detroit Times, who responded to the toast "The Publisher's Accountability to His Readers," said that the aim of all editors as well as all newspaper advertising managers should be to keep the columns of the newspapers clean, and to frown upon misrepresentations of any kind, either in the advertising or news columns. R. L. Goldberg, a cartoonist, was one of the speakers.

The Sphinx Club, which is composed of the advertising managers of newspapers and large business enterprises of the city, had set apart last night as "newspaper night," and most of the speechmaking bore upon the subject of newspaper advertising and its relation to the news columns of the daily papers.

Some 140 advertising men, editors, publishers, and proprietors of business establishments were on hand to hear the discussion. William R. Hotchkiss was toastmaster.

GOTHAM CLUB HAS A 'SALON.'

Staten Island Women Show a Keen Appreciation of Home-Grown Talent.

The Gotham Club, organized in the interest of "philanthropy, art, literature, hygiene, music, patriotism, drama, and dancing," according to its programmes, had another of its "salon entertainments" at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, and the audience of about fifty had a time which, as one woman from Staten Island expressed it, was "both entertaining and instructive."

Those two words strike the keynotes of the Gotham Club's "salon entertainments." Last night's was the club's "Thanksgiving salon." It hasn't been organized so very long, but as the woman chairman said last night its membership comes "from all over—Staten Island, Brooklyn, Albany—everywhere."

When the Chairman formally threw open the Thanksgiving Salon the entertainers did not answer her summons promptly, but after a while they began coming up. All grew so enthusiastic that even though the programme was cut down about half it was nearly midnight when a halt was called on the entertainment and instruction.

"I will now call upon Mme. Kate Moustaki, the Staten Island Patti," announced the Chairman, and there was a ripple of applause, accomplished in the very best manner. A pleasant-faced woman in blue, wearing pinch-nose glasses, took the little stage and bowed with extreme amiability for three or four minutes. The Staten Island contingent in the audience was heavy, and Mme. Moustaki sang an encore.

They referred to the ravages of the cigarette as pictured by Dr. Pease.

"Take a cigar," went on Dr. Pease. "Hold a piece of white paper above it. Let the smoke accumulate on the paper. After that scrape off the accumulated smoke. Put it on the tongue of a cat. What will happen? The cat will die."

Mrs. Mary Lawton Metcalfe, a middle-aged woman, also in blue, was introduced as from Staten Island. "From New York, thank you," she said, on arising. "We are part of the city." She had her piece typewritten. Clinching it hard, raising her eyes to the ceiling, speaking after the manner of the Shakespeare tragedies, she told about the pernicious adulteration of pies. [Much applause from the Staten Island group.]

Miss Nina Mills, looking not unlike the usual opera singer as regards size, wearing a white lace dress, sang an aria from "La Boheme." Her effort was received with enthusiastic applause. She gave an encore. It was Staten Island's night, as a matter of fact.

Lieut.-Col. A. M. Damon of the Salvation Army went over the history of his organization. He told, in conclusion, such a pathetic story about how an old gold-digger, returning from the California fields, had thrown away all his gold to save a little child from drowning in a lake that the Chairman at once gave a dollar to help on the cause of the Salvation Army, and a small collection was taken up.

Surgeon Major Grenville M. Weeks, "sole wounded survivor of the Monitor and Merrimac fight," according to the programme, then told how he had done all in his power to save a boatload of sailors from possible disaster one time.

There were several more numbers, among them Countess Rebagliati and her pupils in dancing and singing. She appears often at such "salon entertainments." The aged Countess, wearing a modified Salome costume, led three or four little girls on the stage. One danced a skirt dance, another a cymbal dance, and then one of them played on the piano.

It was near midnight when Col. Joseph McDonald finished telling "How I Passed My Leisure Hours in South Africa."

The English Vogue
¶ Although we led the procession, our suits are not all English models. American tastes and preferences have not been ignored in the pronounced vogue for English clothes. Only, instead of the usual stiff, upholstered variety, you will find our American models pliant, flexible and clinging. Hand tailoring and shaping make the difference.
¶ SUITS: $25 to $40.

Fall Overcoat & Raincoat
REDUCED
We have revised the prices of our entire stock of Fall Overcoats and Raincoats, and have put them all in two groups. This because our regular selling season for these garments is over, though the wearing season is at its height. Our entire stock, Plain Blacks, Oxfords and Fancy Mixtures—the new Wide Wales in tans and grays, many silk lined; some to the edge—all bright, new coats, fresh this season.
But Two Prices Now
